BRITISH ABANDON GOLD BASIS, INCREASE DISCOUNT CHARGES TO PREVENT CURRENCY CRASH

WIMBLEY SAYS WIFE'S NAME IN POLICY FORGED

His Alleged Third Spouse Held in Missouri; To Be Quizzed.

MATE OF DROWNING VICTIM ADMITS LIE

Further Inquiry Due on His Claims for Insurance; Insists on Accident.

The investigation into the alleged plot on the part of Harry C. Wimbley to drown his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wimbley, and her daughter, Wilma, spread further last night into the insurance angle of the case as Wimbley admitted having forged the signature of his wife to a $10,000 insurance policy.

Developments in the case were:

Ida Mae Graves, former Census Bureau clerk and alleged third wife of Wimbley, was detained by Barry County authorities at Cassville, Mo., at the request of Washington police.

In an interrogation by Detective Sergeants James P. Springman and Floyd A. Truscott, Wimbley admitted that he forged Mrs. Wimbley's name to the application for the accident insurance.

Wimbley also admitted that he burned his automobile in Oklahoma last May and collected $1,000 insurance from one company, and was trying to collect a similar amount from another company which underwrote a second policy.

Formal Murder Charges.

Formal murder charges against John M. Crowder, who confessed a plot to exterminate the entire family of Mrs. Wimbley at Dendron, Va., and against Wimbley, are expected to be placed today or tomorrow.

Further investigation of Wembley's claims against insurance companies appeared imminent as evidence of alleged fraudulent clai s were uncovered.

Insistence of Crowder and Wimbley that the deaths of Mrs. Wimbley and her daughter, Wilma, was accidental.

An inquest into the case is scheduled to begin at the District morgue tomorrow.

Only parts of Crowder's confession of the plot to commit a multiple murder on the family of Patrick Henry Tench, at Herndon, Va., and the alleged scheme to drown Mrs. Wimbley and the child in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal near the Dalecarlia Reservoir were made known to Wimbley.

Denies Parts of Story.

Confronted with parts of the story, he said, "Well, I have not murdered anybody and nobody can prove that I have murdered anyone."

When Wimbley, a convicted forger, admitted the forgery of the insurance application, he said, "Lots of people do that."

Although Wimbley, a man of many aliases, admitted he had lied in many details of the drowning he emphatically denied the following points of Crowder's confession: that he obtained gasoline and sand bags to use in the killing of the Tench family at Dendron; that he suggested such a plot to Crowder; that he motioned to Crowder to overturn the canoe while paddling in the canal; that he mentioned "insurance" to Crowder; that he was present when the gun was purchased Tuesday as they started for Dendron where Mrs. Wimbley was staying with her parents.

Detective Sergts. Springman and Truscott revealed last night that Wimbley, in borrowing $20 from William M. Jungren, the third man held in the case, told Jungren that he wanted it to visit his former wife and children in Baltimore, and that he used this money in purchasing a gun.

Jungren Brought Into Room.

Wimbley denied this, and Jungren was brought into the room with Wimbley, where Jungren repeated his story and Wimbley maintained his denial.

What may prove to be a dramatic scene is scheduled for today when Crowder and Wimbley will be brought together in one room where Crowder will repeat his story of the plotting of the deaths.

Miss Greaves, who married Wimbley on April 3, in Rockville, Md., under the name of Howard C. Dickerson, told Barry County authorities at Cassville, that she had no knowledge of any slaying plot or that she had known Wimbley by any other name than Dickerson.

Miss Graves is not being held in jail. A Washington detective is scheduled to leave Washington today for Cassville to interview her and in all likelihood she will be asked to return here to give what information she can regarding Wimbley.

According to Miss Daisy E. Wilson, of 311 C street northwest, Miss Graves went to visit her mother in Exeter, Mo. Miss Wilson said she knew Miss Graves as a very quiet and refined girl. Miss Graves came here in September, 1930, and obtained a job in the Census Bureau, where she worked until July.

In the belief of Miss Wilson, her coworker, Miss Graves was inveigled into the Rockville ceremony without knowledge of Wimbley's prior marriages.

First Wife Interviewed.

Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett went to Baltimore yesterday to interview Mrs. Lulu M. Wimbley, divorced first wife of Wimbley, who

SHOUSE 1932 PLANK URGES BEER RETURN

(United Press.)

A tentative platform for the 1932 presidential campaign was issued by the Democratic national committee last night under the signature of Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee.

The platform calls for—

1. Congressional amendment to the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beers.

2. Eventual referendum to the Nation of the eighteenth amendment, the referendum to guard against the return of the old-fashioned saloon and to provide for State control of the liquor traffic.

3. Unemployment relief and constructive prevention of future mass unemployment, by the enactment into law of the Wagner bills instituting public employment offices, computing accurately the number of unemployed, appropriating money for public works and forcing employers to adopt unemployment insurance plan.

4. Immediate revision of the tarif law.

5. Dismissal of the Federal Farm Board and provision of warehouse credits to help farmers market crops.

6. "A course of mutual upbuilding and cooperation" in relations with foreign governments.

7. Opposition to the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

8. Establishment of the five-day week by the Federal Government for its employes, as an example to private employers.

9. A tribunal to rule, in advance, on the legality of mergers to safeguard against industrial monopolies.

10. Local control of power companies, with the sources of power "maintained to the people," even if Government production of power becomes necessary; "problems of transmission and distribution, as a rule," to be "handled through private enterprise."

Shouse outlined the platform for the Women's National Democratic Club, which, the Democratic national committee announced, had requested "some suggestions for a Democratic platform." Shouse, in a covering letter transmitting his "suggestions," emphasized that they were personal.

The outline of the platform, however, was issued from the national committee's headquarters, and was regarded as undoubtedly the product of extensive conferences.

The only difference between the Shouse "personal" offering and an official Democratic party one is that it offers a chance for change if the reaction is unfavorable.

The platform will be published, as from Shouse, in the October issue of the Democratic women's magazine, "Democratic Bulletin."

The layout comprises first a letter from the "bulletin committee" of the Democratic women, suggesting the "constructive value" of an outline from Shouse; Shouse's reply, gladly acceding to the request for suggestions "that Democrats throughout the country may be thinking about relative to valuable work that may be done by the Democratic representatives in the seventy-second Congress and more particularly that

CHINA RENEWS PROTEST; RAIL LINE DAMAGED

JAPAN MAY LEND AID TO PREVENT CLASHES

Action by League of Nations Looms; Chang Says War Will Be Declined.

Changchun, Manchuria (Monday), Sept. 21 (U. P.).—Fighting between Chinese and Japanese broke out here at 7 a. m. today, and was still in progress several hours later.

(Associated Press.)

While a Rengo news agency dispatch early today told of the destruction by Chinese soldiers of a section of the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Chinese foreign office at Nanking last night dispatched a second note of protest to Japan against the "occupation of Japanese troops of Manchurian territory."

The protest demanded immediate evacuation by Japanese troops of all territory now occupied and restoration of conditions as they were before a clash at Peitaying last Friday.

Although the Chinese foreign office's first protest was received at Tokyo yesterday, it was not to be answered until some time today. The Japanese answer, a foreign office spokesman said, will protest what the government considers a deliberate attempt by Chinese troops to destroy property of the South Manchurian Railway.

Claim Kellogg Pact Ignored.

The original Chinese note called attention to the "disarming of Chinese soldiers at Kwanchengtse," contending such action ignores the Kellogg pact and threatens the peace of the Orient.

The Japanese foreign office spokesman said the Japanese government feels the bombing of South Manchurian Railway property at Peitaying was engineered chiefly by a group of Chinese officers. The Chinese thus indicated their opinion of the Japanese, who have been pressing Mukden for an account of the shooting of Capt. Shintaro Nakamura and several Russians as spies, the spokesman believed.

Nakamura and the Russians were mapping in Manchuria.

Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara and other Japanese officials yesterday conferred on the Manchurian situation, considering among other points what steps will be taken if the matter is presented to the League of Nations.

Seek to Prevent Spread.

Rengo News Agency quoted Japanese authorities as saying Japan will do everything possible to prevent spread of the Manchurian trouble.

Casualties during fighting at Kwanchengtse and Nanling were placed by Rengo at 63 dead, 119 wounded and 2 missing. A communique from Mukden said Japanese losses at Peitaying and vicinity were two dead, eighteen wounded.

Nothing official was available on Chinese losses, but they were described as "considerable."

At Nanking Foreign Minister Wang asserted his government was prepared to "lay all facts before the world so it could be judged which party was the aggressor." He said appropriate steps would be taken to appraise the signatories of the Kellogg pact and the League of Nations.

China to Refuse War.

Peiping, China, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—China will refuse to be drawn into armed conflict with Japan, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, said tonight.

"The surprise attack on Mukden on Friday night and the subsequent occupation of that and other places in Manchuria by Japanese army units constitutes an act of war and was as unwarranted as it was unprecedented," he said in his room at the Rockefeller Hospital here.

"It comes after weeks of agitation in Japan to inflame the minds of the

HOOVER'S MOVE LIKELY TO HALT BONUS DEMAND

PRESIDENT BOARDS TRAIN FOR DETROIT

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 20 (A.P.). President Hoover tonight boarded the special train here for his trip to the American Legion convention at Detroit.

Leaving his Rapidan camp in the early afternoon, the President and his party drove to Martinsburg by way of Sperryville, Front Royal and Winchester, Va. At Winchester a Sunday traffic jam was encountered, slowing up the trip.

At the railroad station an official reception committee escorted the President aboard the train. The crowd of several hundred persons that had gathered called for a speech, but the Chief Executive, standing on the rear platform of the train, declined. Mrs. Hoover stayed at the Rapidan camp.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—High officials of the American Legion were of the opinion tonight that President Hoover's dramatic dash here will head off the demand for loans on the full value of the war bonus certificates.

At the same time, these officials predict that the legion certainly will take some action on the prohibition question. The prospect is that the legion will vote on one of two things, modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the manufacture and sale of real beer and wine, or resubmission of the question to the States for another vote.

Before the White House announced that President Hoover would come out here, it was a two-to-one bet that a resolution for loans on the full value of the bonus would be adopted.

Situation Is Changed.

"Trying to stop it," said a legion official who arrived early, "is like trying to push back the ocean waves with a broom."

Now the entire situation has changed. News that President Hoover had reached an eleventh hour decision to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the American Legion caused a tremendous sensation. It was the sole topic of conversation in the hotel lobbies and on the streets today.

Although the White House, in announcing the President would come here, gave no intimation as to what he would have to say, it was generally assumed here that he will make a patriotic appeal to the veterans not to ask for further bonus loans.

To Speak at 11 a. m.

It is possible that he will do this without mentioning the bonus. He may confine himself simply to a description of the badly dented Treasury. The President is scheduled to address the opening session of the legion convention at 11 o'clock tomorrow, and to start back to Washington shortly thereafter.

Thus far President Hoover has had nothing to say about the proposal that the war veterans be allowed to borrow up to 100 per cent of the ultimate value of their bonus certificates.

However, men close to him—Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of State Penitentiary Receives Powers

Slayer of Five Is Moved From Menace of Mob at Jail.

Moundsville, W. Va., Sept. 20 (A.P.). Harry F. Powers, slayer of two women and three children, occupied a cell in the new death cell annex of the West Virginia State Prison tonight, after being rushed here from Clarksburg, where a threatening crowd milled about the county jail early today.

Powers was put under heavy guard and Warden A. C. Scroggins announced only authorized persons will be permitted to see the prisoner.

BANKERS MINIMIZE U. S. REPERCUSSION

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Great Britain's tumble from the gold standard, in the suspension of the gold redemption act, is expected by financial authorities in New York to cause a degree of inflation in England, and, at least temporarily, some stimulation of business activity.

Leading Wall street bankers conferred informally on the British monetary crisis this evening, and several who commented on the situation to the press expressed the opinion that possible repercussions in the United States scarcely demanded emergency measures.

While formal comment was withheld, officials of the stock exchange said that no meeting of the board of governors had been called this evening, and that the exchange was scheduled to open tomorrow. It was pointed out the suspension of gold payments by England had been anticipated in Wall stret in the liquidation on Friday and Saturday.

Effect on United States Limited.

No formal conferences at the Federal Reserve Bank or other leading financial offices were held, but heads of various banks and exchanges discussed the matter among themselves in small groups or by telephone.

Leading bankers were reluctant to discuss the matter formally, because of the political controversies raging in England, but made it clear they were in sympathy with the emergency measures adopted.

They also explained that the effects on the United States would be limited, owing to the small amount of American money now in England, much smaller, indeed, than the American funds in Germany.

It is clear from the action proposed that the British pound sterling will temporarily find a much lower level than the $4.86⅔, in terms of the dollar, to which it was restored in 1925, after falling far below parity during the war and the post-war deflation. The pound sterling fell as low as $3.20 in 1920.

Credits Not Affected.

It is clear from the announcement, however, that the $850,000,000 Franco-American credits extended to the British government and the Bank of England during August, will not be affected, since these are payable in gold dollars and francs, and will not be paid in the depreciated sterling. Also the American dollar bonds of Great Britain, offered in this market, are payable in gold dollars.

The suspension of the gold redemption act merely means that the Bank of England will cease to sell gold at the fixed price by which the pound sterling has been maintained in the fixed ratio of other currencies. In effect, it will presumably stop selling gold altogether

In the foreign exchange market, when there has been such offerings of the pound sterling that it was available below its gold parity, in relation to other currencies, it has been profitable for banks to acquire sterling pounds in the market, convert them into gold at parity, and

Capital Flier Sets Record to Newark

Floyd Cox, Ludington Pilot, Cuts One Minute Off Mark of Hawks.

Newark Airport, N. J., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Floyd Cox, piloting a six-passenger Lockheed-Orion from Washington, D. C. to Newark Airport, today set a new record of 57 minutes, 3 3-5 seconds for the trip.

The new record, which is official, was timed by W. C. Bauer, of the Federal Bureau of Standards.

Britain's Gold Move Called Constructive

Washington Officials Reserve Comment But Spokesmen Agree That Action Should Aid in Restoration of Exchange Stability.

(Associated Press.)

Administration officials last night received with intense interest news of Great Britain's partial suspension of gold payments as an emergency measure to halt the reduction in her reserve.

President Hoover was advised of the British government's action at his Rapidan camp just before departing for Detroit to attend the American Legion convention. Word was returned that the President had no comment to make.

Mr. Hoover and his chief financial advisors, Secretary Mellon, Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury, have been in daily touch with European conditions since the crisis leading to the debt moratorium. In recent days during the falling British exchange, the Treasury has kept itself advised hourly of the value of the pound sterling.

High officials who could be reached reserved comment, but other spokesmen accepted Britain's action as a constructive move which should prove effective in rebuilding exchange stability.

While Gov. Meyer, Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills were out of the city, officials were quick to point out that suspension of the free gold market restored by Great Britain in 1925 does not affect the Franco-American credit of $400,000,000 participated in by the Federal Reserve

STORY LINKS BOYS IN DEATH OF MARR

Tale of Lad, 8, Implicates His Two Brothers and Frees Three Adults.

The story told by a new witness, an 8-year-old boy, yesterday led Prince Georges County authorities to release the three adults held for investigation into the death of Alem K. Marr, 75, who was found dead in the caretaker's house of the Glebe Club at Mount Calvert, Md.

The new account of the shooting told to police by George McKinzie, jr., implicates his two younger brothers, Philip, 5, and Joseph, 6. George told Sheriff W. C. Hopkins that Philip and Joseph were playing with the shotgun a few minutes before the old man was shot. George said he tried to take the gun away from them, but that they resisted his efforts. He then left the house.

The three persons released are Rudolph Brady, his wife, Mildred, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Katie Vermilion. They were held on evidence given by an older McKinzie boy, John Henry 11, who said he saw Brady run from the house after the fatal shot was fired. John Henry said that Brady threatened to beat the McKinzie children, who live nearby, if they told that he left the house. John Henry's story was corroborated by his sister, Becky, 9, who found the body, and by Joseph and Philip.

Apparently the shooting was accidental. The police believe that Marr also attempted to take the gun away from the children and was killed while trying. The double-barreled shotgun, both chambers loaded, belonged to McKinzie and was kept in the kitchen. Only one shell was fired, apparently at close range, and the gun was found in an adjoining room. The floor of the kitchen appeared to have been recently

Anna Case, Now Bride, Leaves Concert Stage

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Anna Case, former Metropolitan Opera soprano, now the wife of Clarence Mackay, capitalist, today announced her intention to quit the professional concert field.

She made the announcement in a letter to the Standard Booking Co., which had negotiated with her for a series of musicales prior to her marriage to Mackay, chairman of the Postal Telegraph Co.

3 MIDWEST STATES FEEL EARTH SHOCKS

Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky Shaken; Two Churches in Anna, O., Damaged.

Sidney, Ohio, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Two churches, the high school and virtually every house in the village of Anna, Shelby County, were damaged badly by an earthquake that rumbled through western Ohio, eastern Indiana and northern Kentucky late today.

An outside wall of the Methodist Episcopal Church was cracked and the cornerstones of the Lutheran Church were jarred loose. The interiors of both structures were damaged.

Plastering was shaken from the walls of every room in the high school, while chimneys were toppled from village houses. All merchandise was shaken from the shelves of the general store. Authorities said the total damage would exceed $10,000.

The disturbances, according to geologists of the local weather bureau, were caused by the slipping of strata under the earth's surface. These geological readjustments occur sporadically in the Middlewest, but no serious damage has resulted during the past 100 years.

Besides Sidney, the oscillations were most severe at Cincinnati, Springfield and Lima, Ohio. Windows rattled, houses trembled and alarmed citizens telephoned police headquarters to ask if there had been an explosion.

Tremors also were felt at Indianapolis and Richmond, Connersville and Liberty, Ind. The maximum length reported for the shocks was about 15 seconds. There were no injuries reported.

Special Policeman Arthur Soos, of Wapakonetta, Ohio, said the floor shook and windows and dishes rattled in his home.

"I thought an automobile had jumped off the road and struck the house," he said. "I ran outside. Finding no damage had been done, I concluded it probably was an earthquake. The shock was pretty strong. It seemed to me it lasted about a half minute."

The tremors reached down into Kentucky too, many residents of the northern part of the State reported.

The shock lasted only a few seconds at Columbus, Ohio. Several hundred persons at Cincinnati called newspaper offices to report the tremors.

Embargo to Be Asked In Parliament Today to End Export.

STOCK EXCHANGES OF NATION CLOSED

Without Minimizing Danger, Government Discounts Panic Possibility.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

London, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—In one of its most serious financial crises since the World War, Great Britain went off the gold standard tonight and the Bank of England announced the raise of its discount rate from 4½ to 6 per cent.

Announcement of this drastic action to halt the outflow of gold followed a special session of the cabinet, which unanimously decided that only immediate suspension of the gold redemption act would prevent a currency catastrophe.

Parliament will drop all its other business tomorrow and it is expected that by night the necessary legislation will be passed and will have received royal approval.

The London Stock Exchange will be closed tomorrow, together with other exchanges throughout the country.

Banks, however, will operate as usual.

Bank Anticipates Action.

Although the necessary measures will not pass in Parliament before tomorrow night, the government authorized the Bank of England to proceed with the redemption suspension immediately in anticipation of parliamentary action.

That part of the gold standard act of 1925 which is suspended required the Bank of England to sell gold at a fixed price. From tomorrow until such time as the crisis is considered past, no more gold will leave the country and British Nationals are warned that buying of foreign securities is viewed as an unpatriotic act.

In a statement made public after the cabinet meeting at 10 Downing street, it was explained that the reason for today's action was that since last July funds amounting to more than £200,000,000 (approximately $1,000,000,000) had been withdrawn from the London market and that during the past few days withdrawals were so heavy that financiers and government officials saw a debacle confronting them.

Panic Not Expected.

While the government did not minimize the danger to the country's finances, at the same time it emphasized that nothing in the way of a panic is called for, that the present measures are only temporary and that the country is substantially sound.

Just what will happen to Franco-American credits of $850,000,000 to Great Britain was somewhat obscure tonight, but it generally was understood it was unnecessary to use the remaining credits now. Just what amount of these already had been utilized was not known.

What effect suspension of the gold act would have on business generally also was uncertain, but it was felt that imports would be checked while exports would be aided to some extent.

After the cabinet meeting, a statement was issued from 10 Downing street, residence of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, as follows:

Passage Asked Today.

"His majesty's government have decided after consultation with the Bank of England that it has become necessary to suspend for the time being operation of the subsection of the gold standard act of 1925 which requires the bank to sell gold at a fixed price.

"A bill for this purpose will be introduced immediately and it is the intention of his majesty's government to ask Parliament to pass it through all its stages on Monday, the 21st of September. In the meantime the Bank of England has been authorized to proceed accordingly in anticipation of the action of Parliament.

"The reasons which led to this decision are as follows:

"Since the middle of July, funds amounting to more than £200,000,000 (approximately $1,000,000,000) have

Reorganization Puts Bruce At Baltimore Trust's Head

Baltimore, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Reorganization of the governing structure of the Baltimore Trust Co., one of the largest financial institutions in the South, and additional financing were resorted to today to secure its stability after heavy withdrawals.

Howard Bruce, former Democratic National Committeeman from Maryland, entered into the affairs of the company as its active head, chairman of the board and chief executive officer. Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, former chairman, was made vice chairman and Donald Symington, former chairman of the governing board, became vice chairman of the executive committee.

A $15,000,000 cash credit was secured from New York banks today. In addition, more than $7,500,000 in new cash resources was added to the trust company's capital structure through subscriptions from a num-

SIR OSWALD MOSLEY.

Throng in Britain Sings "Red Flag;" Three Cut With Razors.

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 20 (A.P.). Sir Oswald Mosley, British Independent political leader, was assailed with sticks and stones tonight as he left Glasgow Green after addressing a crowd of about 40,000 persons.

He was struck on the back of the head with a stone, but only slightly injured. Three others of the party that occupied the platform, however, received slight razor cuts, and the clothes of some were slashed.

During the address the crowd interrupted Sir Oswald continuously and "The Internationale" and "The Red Flag" were sung at intervals. Free-for-all fights were in progress in the crowd at various times and cries of "Traitor!" greeted the speaker's explanation of why he resigned from the Labor party.

LEAGUE BODY PLANS DEBT REVISION PLEA

Finance Committee to Urge Early Measures, Geneva Report Asserts.

Geneva, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Immediate need for measures to revise international debts and reparations will be urged in the report of the finance committee of the League of Nations, to be presented to the League Council this week, it was learned tonight.

It will be the first time that an official organ of the league has expressed its views on the debts and reparations question.

The committee report will urge immediate action on intergovernment debts, the United Press was informed reliably. The report will identify itself with the recent report of the committee of international bankers, headed by Albert H. Wiggin, of New York, in declaring that debt revision is necessary to solve Europe's financial problems.

The report will cover all of the deliberations of the last month, during which time the committee has considered the appeals of various European nations facing critical financial problems.

It was believed the committee report would be presented to the council on Tuesday.

The opposition of a single member, it was learned, was all that prevented the finance committee from bluntly demanding measures for revision of war debts and reparations. By candidly identifying its views with the report of the Wiggin committee, however, the committee will leave no doubt of its attitude.

Law Urged to End Job Agency Racket

Operator Favors Plan in Use in Pennsylvania and New York.

Adoption of an "employment agency" law in the District, similar to the New York and Pennsylvania ordinances, which require the return of fees when jobs are not secured, would eliminate employment "racketeering" in Washington, John Milton Sinsheimer, operator of an employment agency at 504 E street northwest, declared yesterday in a statement to The Post.

Dishonest practices by many local agencies are not only hindering unemployment relief, but have injured the standing of legitimate employment offices, said Mr. Sinsheimer, who, following The Post's expose of the "racket" several months ago, carried his fight for a new employment law to the District Commissioners and members of Congress.

Now that the United States district attorney's office has lauched an investigation into the local "racket," the employment agency manager said he intends to push for adoption of a law similar to that in New York, which is more rigid than the Pennsylvania law, requiring return of all fees paid in if the applicant for a job fails to get one.

Plan to End War Topic of Sessions

150 Meetings Scheduled in United States and Canada.

"How May Another World War Be Averted" is the general subject to be discussed at 150 peace meetings to be held in the week of October 25 to 31 in the United States and Canada.

These meetings are sponsored by a committee of 275 prominent persons in the two nations. Washington is represented on this committee by the Rev. W. S. Abernethy, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church; Senator Edward P. Costigan, of Colorado; Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, and Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Washington meeting in this series will be held Monday evening, October 26. The speaker and the place of meeting will be announced later, according to Dr. Abernethy.

Quake Hits Tokyo; People in Streets

Great Damage Is Feared in Prefecture North of Japan's Capital.

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (A.P.). (Monday).—A severe earthquake struck Tokyo at 11:30 a. m. today (9:20 p. m. Sunday E. S. T.) and it is feared that considerable damage was done by the shocks.

The populace quit their homes in great alarm and thronged the streets. No damage or casualties were reported in the city.

Experts of Tokyo Central Observatory said the quake was the heaviest felt here this year. They feared great damage was done in Saitama Prefecture, north of Tokyo, where the quake apparently centered.

Some telephone wires between Tokyo and Osaka, Nagoya and other cities were broken. Ceilings and walls of some buildings fell here and chinaware shops suffered considerable damage. A few fires that broke out were quickly controlled.

Man Held in Shooting Of Relatives in Feud

Baltimore, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Charles F. Smith was shot to death and his wife probably fatally wounded tonight in what police said was a flare-up of long-standing family unrest in the Smith family.

Harrison Smith, Charles' nephew, who, police said, admitted the shooting, received three pistol slugs in the stomach when he sought to escape from Police Sergeant Ignatius Benesch a few minutes after he allegedly shot his uncle and aunt. He was not expected to live.

been withdrawn from the London market. The withdrawals have been met partly from gold and foreign currency held by the Bank of England, partly from proceeds of a credit of £50,000,000 ($250,000,000) which shortly matures, secured by the Bank of England from New York and Paris, and partly from proceeds of French and American credits amounting to £80,000,000 ($400,000,000) recently obtained by the government.

Crisis Developed Swiftly.

"During the last few days, withdrawals of foreign balances have accelerated so sharply that his majesty's government felt it was bound to take the decision mentioned above.

"This decision will, of course, not affect obligations of his majesty's government or of the Bank of England which are payable in foreign currencies.

"Gold holdings of the Bank of England amount to some £130,000,000 ($650,000,000) and, having regard to contingencies which may have to be met, it is inadvisable to allow this reserve to be further reduced.

"There will be no interruption of ordinary banking business. Banks will be open as usual for the convenience of their customers and there is no reason why sterling transactions should be affected in any way.

Stock Exchange Closed.

"'It has been arranged that the stock exchange shall not be opened on Monday, the day on which Parliament is passing necessary legislation. This will not, however, interfere with business or the current settlement on the stock exchange, which will be carried on as usual.

"His majesty's government has no reason to believe that the present difficulties are due to any substantial extent to the export of capital by British Nationals. Undoubtedly the bulk of withdrawals has been for foreign accounts.

"They desire, however, to repeat emphatically the warning given by the chancellor of the exchequer that any British citizen who increases the strain on exchanges by purchasing foreign securities himself or assists others to do so is deliberately adding to the country's difficulties.

"The banks have undertaken to cooperate in restricting the purchase by British citizens of foreign exchanges except those required for actual needs of trade or for meeting existing contracts and should further measures prove to be advisable his majesty's government will not hesitate to take them.

No Alternative Seen.

"His majesty's government have arrived at their decision with the greatest reluctance. But during the last ten days the international financial markets have become demoralized and have been liquidating their sterling assets regardless of their intrinsic worth. In the circumstances there was no alternative but to protect the financial position of this country by the only means at our disposal.

"His majesty's government are securing a balanced budget and the internal position of this country is sound. This position must be maintained. It is one thing to go off the gold standard with an unbalanced budget and uncontrolled inflation. It is quite another thing to take this measure, not because of internal financial difficulties but because of excessive withdrawals of borrowed capital.

"The ultimate resources of this country are enormous and there is no doubt that the present exchange difficulties will prove only temporay."

MacDonald Arrived on Run.

Prime Minister MacDonald dashed in from chequers this afternoon, arriving at 10 Downing street about 5 p. m. Most of the other cabinet members were already there when the prime minister jumped from his car in front of his official residence and ran into the building with his head bent down, apparently to avoid photographers.

Although he was supposed to be resting during the week-end at Chequers, the prime minister was really working as hard as he has worked in his life. Since his hurried visit to London Friday night he has maintained the closest possible contact with his principal advisors.

He left Downing street Friday evening, believing everything was going normally. But shortly after his return to the country he received information on the course of events in other world capitals during the afternoon.

Wales Enters Discussion.

He promptly decided to return to London immediately, and he remained in Downing street until last night, when he again returned to Chequers.

Throughout the whole of yesterday he worked unceasingly and returned to the country in the evening after a day spent in a long series of consultations and meetings with those most closely in touch with the situation.

The rapid march of events then caused the prime minister to call the special cabinet meeting for this evening at which the decision was made to suspend the gold standard immediately.

The Prince of Wales motored from his country house at Sunningdale to Chequers today and lunched with MacDonald. After being acquainted with the situation the prince decided to remain in London instead of going north, as he had planned. The prince returned from his holiday at Biarritz only Saturday.

Third Raise Since May.

This is the third time that the bank rate has been raised since it touched its lowest postwar figure of 2½ per cent last May. On July 23 the rate was raised to 3½ per cent and in the following week to 4½, at which figure it remained until today.

The bank rate has not stood at 6 per cent since October 31, 1929. In that month it was reduced from 6½ per cent. The highest figure at which it has stood since 1914 is 10 per cent, to which it was raised two days before the declaration of war on August 3, 1914.

There is no record of the rate ever before having been changed on Sunday. The highest it has been since the end of the war is 7 per cent, at which it stood from April, 1920, to April, 1921. On April 28, 1921, it dropped to 6½ per cent and in the following June to 6. In September, 1929, it again touched 6½, but was reduced in October to 6 and in November to 5½.

Confers With Bankers.

Upon his return to London Friday night Prime Minister MacDonald tried to get several of his ministers, but was unsuccessful, most of them having gone for the week-end in peaceful frames of mind as himself.

Bankers and treasury representatives were on hand, however, and the prime minister conferred with them.

It is understood he was informed that Bank of England officials had made up their mind they could not maintain sterling on a gold basis, but that they would like to have an opportunity of testing the markets on Saturday.

It was thought that Saturday, being a half-day, might be fairly safe and even if the day's operations were against the pound sterling, the loss would not be very serious.

The prime minister received a report Saturday that over £5,000,000 was lost on the half-day's trading and that this did not represent the complete account, as some particulars had still to come in. Later he was told the loss actually amounted to £10,000,000 (about $50,000,000).

Sailor Protests Blamed.

The recent recoup of the new government in bettering general conditions and balancing the butget apparently indicated that stabilization would be achieved, but as one prominent observer put it today, "Lack of confidence, however, moved from this country and got more and more into countries which had deposited money with us, our position being that of international banker."

"The happenings at Invergordon, Scotland, where the sailors of the navy protested their pay cuts," this observer said, "gave the country a bad shock and amazed the foreign countries. Alarming statements of the naval troubles were published abroad and these also aggravated the situation. A combination of these circumstances produced an avalanche which broke last Thursday and came down with full force on Friday and Saturday."

That part of the gold standard act which is being suspended compels the Bank of England to sell gold in bars at a fixed price. The object of its suspension is to stop the export of gold from Great Britain.

Britain to Probe Navy Pay Unrest

Official Investigation Will Begin Today and Last Several Days.

Portsmouth, England, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—An official investigation into the recent unrest in the navy and the effect of the pay cuts ordered in the government's economy program will begin here tomorrow.

The admiralty will be directly represented at the hearing by an admiral sent from London. The inquiry will last several days and will be based on replies made by the sailors to questionnaires regarding their incomes and expenditures.

Tokyo Exchange Closed For Hour After Flurry

Tokyo, Monday, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—The stock exchange suspended trading for one hour today after a drop of 10 points in the exchange's new stock, which was the market leader. There was wide speculation on the possible reaction to the British suspension of the gold standard.

The Tokyo exchange was the first in the world to open after the British announcement of abandonment of the gold standard. Tokyo is 14 hours ahead of American Eastern standard time.

British Gold Situation Stirs Chicago Exchange

Chicago, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Chicago Stock Exchange will hold a special meeting of members at 8:15 a. m. tomorrow to discuss the situation arising over British suspension of the gold redemption act. It was announced tonight.

LONDON PAPERS HAIL SUSPENSION OF GOLD

Labor Organ Sees Move as Forcing U. S. and France to Quit Hoarding.

London, Sept. 21 (Monday) (A.P.).—The London Daily Mail, which has always opposed British adherence to the gold standard, welcomed its suspension this morning and said it would stimulate every trade and industry and "take a load off the nation's back."

No better moment could have been chosen, the Mail's financial editor said, for the change, since commodity prices are low and stocks of wheat in Great Britain abnormally high. The paper expressed the belief that the suspension will lead to a great revival in the iron, coal and steel industries and in many other directions.

The depreciation of the exchange valuation of pounds will, it said, mean that Great Britain will be able to sell abroad more cheaply than her competitors, while the home market will be available for home manufacturers.

"There is not the least fear," it said, "that the pound will fall to impossible low levels."

The Daily Herald, Labor and Socialist organ, commends the government for what it calls a wise and salutary step which would be a distinct advantage to British export trade.

"It will compel the French and American bankers and governments," the Herald said, "to reconsider the whole problem of the gold standard, which has not been functioning properly because France and America have been hoarding gold. Now they must face the situation.

"It is obvious that the next move is the calling of an international conference to work out the gold and kindred problems."

The Telegraph, which has been a strong adherent of the gold standard, but those who conscientiously "Events have been too strong for the government." It describes the suspension as a blow to British national pride without peace-time precedent.

"Great Britain," the Telegraph said, "may have been driven to lower the proud flag of the gold standard, but thos who conscientiously helped to bring it about will be the first to regret it. • • • It is a moral certainty that Great Britain won't go off the gold standard alone."

British Situation Reflected in Berlin

Boerse Expected to Close Today; Reichsbank May Raise Rate.

Berlin, Sept. 20 (A.P.). — It was authoritatively indicated tonight the Berlin boerse would close tomorrow as a repercussion of the British financial situation.

The governing committee of the boerse called a meeting for tomorrow morning, at which an order closing the boerse was expected to be issued.

It was thought likely the Reichsbank's discount rate would be raised and restrictions placed on the purchase of foreign currency.

Brief bulletins of developments in London appeared tonight in early editions of morning newspapers and some observers forecast the closing of other continental stock exchanges pending reopening of the British market.

Bank of Norway Heads Confer on British Action

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The directors of the Bank of Norway conferred tonight on suspension of the gold standard in Britain. There was no official statement.

then convert the gold into other currencies by exporting the gold.

Americans with sterling balances in British banks will suffer a considerable depreciation of their holdings, but such balances are small. While no accurate estimates are available, well-informed bankers state they are probably under $50,000,000. On the other hand, Americans who have their funds in dollars, but who owe money in England, or contemplate purchases in England, will benefit to the same extent that those with sterling balances in London will be harmed.

Although the Federal Reserve has made a practice of purchasing sterling acceptances in the open market from time to time by arrangement with the Bank of England, these are specifically payable in gold dollars if necessary.

At present the Federal Reserve System is said to hold virtually no sterling acceptances save those purchased in connection with the $250,000,000 credit extended jointly with the Banque de France in August, and this credit was payable in gold, as well as the Franco-American $400,000,000 private banking credit extended August 28, of which $200,000,000 was extended by a group headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

It was with the aid of $300,000,000 American credit in 1925 that England climbed back to the gold standard. Of that amount, $100,000,000 was provided by the Federal Reserve and the remainder by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. While the recent credits have failed to bolster the pound sterling as hoped, they are said in banking circles to have greatly eased the situation.

The fresh financial crisis in London is attributed primarily to unsettlement in Holland, Switzerland and Sweden, which have been forced by difficulties at home to recall large balances customarily kept in London. Bankers here say very little money has been withdrawn from London by Americans recently, and dismiss as absurd reports published in British newspapers that American speculators have conducted a bear raid on sterling.

Security Dumping Seen.

As conditions have become more unsettled in London in the past few days, some foreign exchange traders have naturally endeavored to sell sterling short, but have been discouraged by banks. On Saturday, sterling cables fell only to $4.84¾, against a low of $4.83 touched in July.

The world turned more to New York for financial leadership during the unsettlement in London in the postwar deflation of 1920, and may do so in the present crisis. Describing the situation in London, one of America's leading bankers today said:

"London's ordinary strength as a financial center has in this instance been a weakness, by reason of the fact that London is the only international market where the securities of almost every country on the globe are listed and find a market. Such securities from every part of the world have recently been dumped on the London markets and the proceeds withdrawn, thus greatly accelerating the outflow of funds."

He said the effects of the new move would be much more marked in England itself than elsewhere, and although he said there may be a temporary increase in business activity there, he thought wages would probably be kept down.

To Aid Tariff Talk.

Whether the pound sterling will eventually be returned to its old parity remains to be seen, for one prominent school of financial philosophy in England, led by John Maynard Keynes, well known economist, has for months been urging part devaluation of the pound and a certain degree of inflation.

One effect of today's measures, some bankers here feel, may well be to increase the clamor in England for a protective tariff, so as to cut down the import of commodities and reduce the balance of payments for foreign goods. American bankers will watch with interest the debate in Parliament tomorrow and the criticism to which the new Nationalist government will be subjected, because of its now confessed inability to protect sterling at par.

Kellogg Holds Economy Is Only Hope of Nations

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Frank B. Kellogg, American member of the Permanent Court of International Justice, said tonight Great Britain's financial difficulties are the result of world financial conditions to which even the United States is not entirely immune.

The former Secretary of State declared the whole world must get down to a basis of national, State and municipal economy while the people must encourage thrift and economy.

Of conditions in the United States, Mr. Kellogg said:

"Our present unemployment and financial depression is not going to be corrected by further public extravagance, increased taxation or the issuing of fixed obligations of the Government, national or State."

Lloyd George Appeals For National Solidarity

London, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—David Lloyd George, veteran Liberal leader, on learning tonight of the sudden turn in the British financial situation, issued the following statement:

"If the nation remains steady and united we shall pull through all right. Our resources are quite adequate to meet the situation, but a factional fight among ourselves at this juncture would be unpatriotic lunacy.

"The mere threat of such a fight has precipitated this second and graver crisis. British common sense, if it is given a chance, will find a way out."

HOOVER TALK LIKELY TO KILL BONUS MOVE

Legion View Reveals Change Since President Decided to Visit Detroit.

Pennsylvania, for example — have stated that loans on the full value of the bonus certificates would necessitate the floating of $2,000,000,000 in Federal bonds and undoubtedly would result in a tax increase.

The American Legion rules that the legion shall not discuss any subject that smacks of politics. Tonight, however, there was plenty of evidence that politics do have a part in legion conventions.

There was a rally at the Armory, and the chief speaker was Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas. Patman is at the forefront of the movement for a cash payment on the full value of the bonus certificates.

Representative Patman, amid cheers, said that he had traveled all over the country, and that he had found sentiment to be overwhelmingly in favor of loans on the full value of the bonus certificates.

New Loan Called "Fine."

"Commander O'Neill," said Representative Patman, "has promised us a free and fair discussion of the bonus question. This is something we did not have in Boston, where the gag rule was in effect.

"Opponents of loans on the full value of the bonus say that it would require the floating of $2,000,000,000 in bonds. My answer to that is, 'fine.'

"Uncle Sam can borrow the money at 2 or 3 per cent. He charges the veterans 4½ per cent."

The Veterans' Bureau, he said, recently made a survey of the country to find out how the bonus loans were spent. This survey, he said, showed that 85 per cent of the money was spent for legitimate purposes.

Aid to Business Seen.

"If the loans are granted," Mr. Patman said, "and $2,000,000,000 is spent in the country, think of how it will stimulate business. Why, it would be a godsend. The trouble with the country today is that the people are not spending. Two billion dollars, thrown into the market all of a sudden, would have a marvelous effect."

In connection with a statement made previously about politics being banned by the legion, it is interesting to listen to the talk in the Statler and the Book Cadillac hotels here.

One encounters legionnaires, whose sole interest in life seems to be the nomination of young Teddy Roosevelt as President Hoover's running mate next year.

Liquor Stand in Doubt.

One also hears legionnaires booming Commander Ralph T. O'Neill for the vice presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket for 1932.

The legionnaires who arrived here today were in doubt as to what would be done in connection with the prohibition question. On their arrival, they found a tremendous wet sentiment. The news stories appearing in the local papers have served to strengthen the feeling that there should be a change.

The Washington correspondents for the Detroit papers: Jay Hayden, Eugene Leggett and Gladstone Williams had pretty much the same story to tell.

Cites Cabinet Views.

Says Mr. Hayden in a dispatch to the Detroit News: "It was stated in some dispatches today that seven of the ten members of the Cabinet now are in favor of beer and this so far has passed without denial. The Cabinet members favorable to amendment of the Volstead law, it was said, are Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State; Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War; Charles Frances Adams, Secretary of the Navy; Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General; Robert Patterson Lamont, Secretary of Commerce, and William N. Doak, Secretary of Labor.

"The three Cabinet members listed as opposed to the beer amendment are Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture; Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, and William D. Mitchell, Attorney General.

Demands are Pressed.

"It can be said with reasonable certainty that a majority of the Cabinet now believes that the President should retreat from his ultra dry position in preparation for the coming campaign, and that the quicker he takes this step the better for him politically.

"It also is known that the big business men of the country within the last few weeks have placed themselves in an overwhelming majority on the subject of beer, moved, as it appears, largely by the belief that there is going to be an increase in taxes by the next Congress and that this will be in the form of increased income and inheritance levies unless some new source of revenue can be discovered. It has been estimated that a tax on beer ultimately would return $400,000,000 a year to the Federal Treasury."

Cotton Acreage Meeting Dates Are Postponed

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—J. S. Wannamaker, president of the American Cotton Association, announced today that the Southwide convention of cotton farmers scheduled to be held in New Orleans October 1 to 3, has been postponed until November 16 and 17.

The convention was called to complete plans for cotton acreage reduction next year.

Says Future Prestige Hinges on Present Action; Urges Relief for Widows.

Detroit, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—A warning that the "tremendous influence" of the American Legion in legislative matters will continue "only so long as we use it wisely" was given to the legion's national convention in the report of Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander, which was made public tonight.

"Our prestige and influence in the years to come will be determined largely by our actions of today," the commander declared in his report, which was distributed among the delegates, many of whom are favoring action to put the legion on record as favoring immediate payment at face value of veterans' bonus certificates. O'Neil reiterated his previous statements that any prediction as to what the legion may do about the bonus is "guesswork," but declared that "the legion has always been fair and reasonable in every program presented to the American people," and asserted that he is satisfied the organization "will be fair and reasonable in the future."

Lower Interest Rates.

The report, however, favored a stand by the legion for lower interest rates on bonus loans than the present 4½ per cent and declared that the statement that the loans made on the certificates last winter placed an "additional financial burden on the taxpayers" is "not true." The Government, he said, financed the loans at less than the interest received. If it develops that any new "liberalizing" of the bonus law would "be detrimental to our country's welfare or place an unfair burden on our fellow citizens," the commander said, he is confident such liberalization will not be approved by the convention.

O'Neil opposed any legislation which "might stop payments or curtail privileges to which World War veterans are now entitled by law." He particularly opposed "a general needs or pauper clause in connection with payments for death or disability."

Several legislative recommendations, all dealing with veterans problems, were made in the report. These included:

Extension of the disability privileges to all chronic constitutional diseases which developed on or before January 1, 1925.

Relief for Widows.

Relief for widows and orphans of World War veterans along the lines of what extended to those of veterans of other wars.

Organization of veterans committee in the United States Senate, where veterans' legislation now is handled by the finance committee.

Reposing in the Department of Justice "full authority and necessary funds" to deal with the problem presented by communistic activities.

Another section of the report deals with the legion's unemployment work and estimates that approximately 200,000 men obtained employment through the organization's activities. "The unemployment situation," the commander said, "presents an emergency comparable to that of 1917, and our membership will function again. • • • Work must be found for those who are ready and willing to work—to save them from the stigma of pauperism and the dole and to save our Government from the menace of the racketeer and the Communist."

BRITISH GOLD MOVE CALLED CONSTRUCTIVE

Secretary Stimson and Undersecretary Castle of the State Department also were out of town, but it was made clear officials were watching closely with a view to the effect on the United States of Britain's emergency action to halt gold exports. In this connection it was pointed out the United States has reached a record level of gold holdings, exceeding $5,000,000,000 of a total world supply of less than $12,000,000,000.

The administration emphasized, in announcing the debt moratorium and the reserve system demonstrated in credit advances to the German Reichsbank and Bank of England, the importance to this country in returning to economic prosperity of maintaining the greatest possible exchange and credit stability among foreign customers.

Exchange in Montreal May Fix Bottom Prices

Montreal, Quebec, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The governing committee of the Montreal Stock Exchange will meet tomorrow morning to discuss what action they intend to take regarding Great Britain's temporary dropping of the gold standard. Their decision will be based, it is believed, on the public reaction as revealed in overnight buying and selling orders.

Officials stated tonight minimum prices may be imposed at the opening similar to those imposed in 1917 when the United States entered the World War.

Canada Will Maintani Gold Money Standard

Ottawa, Ontario, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Canada will remain on the gold standard despite today's action in London, it was learned tonight.

While there was no official announcement concerning Great Britain's suspension of the gold standard, it was said authoritatively that the Dominion will not follow the mother country's lead.

Copenhagen Exchange Suspends Quotations

Copenhagen, Denmark (Monday), Sept. 21 (A.P.).—As a consequence of British suspension of gold redemption, the board of the Copenhagen Stock Exchange met after midnight at the request of leading bankers and decided to suspend quotations of all stocks and bonds until further notice.

BRIBED JAIL GUARD PROMISED 'BLONDE'

Offered Riches and Pretty Girl in Alien Ring Case, Confession Says.

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Promise of a $400,000 fortune and a "beautiful 17-year-old blonde," officials said today, caused Corpl. Alfred G. Bral to permit the escape from Governors Island of Dr. Umberto Bianchi, Sing Sing convict.

Bianchi was to have been the Government's principal witness in its effort to convict a score of men of smuggling aliens.

Bral's superior officers, who obtained his confession after a twelve-hour grilling, said the corporal told them the temptation of a large roll of thousand dollar bills and an alluring story of how he might live in Paris in ease and luxury with the "blue-eyed blonde" overcame his impulse to report the bribe offer.

He told them, too, they said, that Bianchi threatened to kill him if he betrayed Bianchi's fellow conspirators after accepting the bribe.

"I wish they had done it," Bral was quoted as saying as his rank was stripped from him and his hands were cuffed.

Bianchi was "loaned" to Federal authorities last week by officials at Sing Sing Prison in the belief he would give valuable evidence against the alien smuggling ring which has been under investigation for some time.

Meanwhile, reports of a shake-up in the local naturalization office, as a result of disclosures in the investigation, continued with the revelation that Benjamin M. Day, commissioner of immigration, was given a special leave at the conclusion of his vacation.

It has been proven many times that Business opportunities, or merchandise for sale in the Classified Columns of The Post are worth investigating.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 51

THIS picture, taken in 1904 or 1905, shows three of the first of the bicycle policemen. Reading from left to right they are: Ben Williams, now dead; Sergt. Sam Johnson and Capt. Walter Emerson.

As we have noted before in this series, those dear days ran heavily to mustaches. One notes that all three of the gentlemen here are quite in the mode.

The uniforms are interesting, somewhat different from those of today. Note particularly the chain that runs from the officer's throat to his badge.

BAY MURDER VICTIM HELD LIQUOR RUNNER

May Have Been Thrown From Rum Vessel; Body Buried in Beach Grave.

Expressing the belief that the unidentified murder victim who was found floating in Chesapeake Bay Thursday might have been killed and thrown from a rum-running boat, St. Mary's County authorities yesterday continued their efforts to identify the body.

As the body was found very near Virginia waters, Justice of the Peace William Raleigh said that the killing might have been done in either Maryland or Virginia jurisdicton.

Police authorities of Washington and Baltimore were requested to check records of all missing persons answering the dead man's description, and it was intimated by county authorities that the Department of Justice might be asked to aid in the solution of the case.

No steps can be made in seeking the slayers until the man's identity is known, Judge Raleigh said. At present the circumstances of the slaying are a complete mystery, and any theories as to the motive are purely conjectural, he said.

The body, found 4 miles from shore by Capt. W. H. Brock, master of the power boat Claypro, was weighted with 25 pounds of sheet lead secured with a rope around the neck and the right arm. Capt. Brock noted the lead. He towed the body to Point Lookout and during this time the lead worked loose and sank.

Judge Raleigh immediately ordered an inquest, and appointed Dr. J. O. King to examine the body. Dr. King said the man met his death from a broken neck, which was probably the result of a heavy blow with a sand bag, as there were no bruises in evidence. There was a wound in the left cheek which was at first thought to have been made by a bullet, but Dr. King did not think it to be.

One upper tooth was found to have been knocked from the jaw. Authorities thought that it might have been done by a blow. The examination was hampered by the state of the body, which was thought to have been in the water from three to six days. There was no water in the lungs and no evidence of drowning.

In a pocket of the well-tailored blue suit, in which the man was dressed, was a chart of the bay and the Lower Potomac River.

Following the inquest the body was buried without service in a shallow grave on the beach.

The man's clothing was exceptionally good, Judge Raleigh said. In addition to the blue suit, he wore black shoes, a dark bow tie, and a white shirt. An unfolded and unsoiled handkerchief was found in a pocket. A watch bearing the initials J. H. S. was the most important clue toward establishing his name.

He was an elderly man, perhaps 55 years old, the justice of the peace said, and 5 feet 10 inches tall, and weighing 175 pounds. Both of the lower eye teeth were gold, and to them was anchored bridge work across the front of the jaw.

JAPAN'S FUTURE TIED UP WITH MANCHURIA

Lack of Natural Resources and Dense Population Island Problems.

New York, Sept. 20 (U.P.).—The most serious Far Eastern crisis in recent years was threatened tonight in the occupation of Manchurian military centers by Japanese troops.

The positions of youthful, chaotic, republican China, struggling desperately against civil war and disaster toward a new place in world affairs, and of the hard pressed Japanese empire, striving to solve tremendous problems that have restricted her growth, may be seriously affected by the outcome of the fighting and controversy in spite of every effort of government officials to restrain the troops and to halt conflict which verges on actual war.

The fundamental cause of conflict between China and Japan in recent years has been the unique position of the island empire in the Orient. Japan is the leading Far Eastern power. She is the world's third naval power, ranking above France, Italy, the demolished German navy and Soviet Russia. Her army is modern and well developed. Yet her rise to this position has been achieved over great obstacles.

Natural Resources Scanty.

Japan has the scantiest natural resources; virtually no coal, no iron and little oil. Her strength is built on industrialization, for which great imports are necessary. Her population in the arable parts of the islands is the densest in the world and her city slums are more overcrowded than any other.

The total area of the islands is less that that of California, yet it must support a population of almost 65,000,000, for Japan proper and of 87,000,000, including Korea, Formosa and Japanese Shakalin. Another 1,054,000 live in the leased Kwantung territory of Manchuria.

Two vital problems must be solved to guard the future of Japan. The nation must provide natural resources for her industries and must relieve the overcrowded population. Korea partly met these problems by providing resources and a place for colonization.

Special Rights Recognized.

In relation to Manchuria, Japan's special rights have been recognized by the leading world powers, the three provinces of Manchuria, which were once the home of the powerful Mongol Tartar tribes and later the stronghold of the Manchus, have an area as large as Texas and New Mexico combined, a population of around 25,000,000 and comparatively rich resources of coal, ore and timber.

In the present century the war lords of Manchuria, especially the late Chang Tso-Lin, have exercised more or less complete freedom from China, although the present ruler, Chang Hsueh-Lang, is an ally of the Chinese Nationalist government and now controls the Peiping military zone.

Japan, primarily, desires peace in Manchuria because she has extensive treaty rights for exploration of the resources of the three provinces and Japanese troops have guarded the Southern Manchurian Railway for that reason. There is an ultra-Nationalistic political faction in Japan which has demanded an aggressive attitude toward defense of Japanese rights in Manchuria. It is this group which has caused the greatest obstacles to the peaceful policy of Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara.

Japan's Future Involved.

In China also there has been a steadily increasing Nationalistic spirit under the republican regime. China decided to "drive out the British" in 1926 and later clashed with Soviet Russia over administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria. The road is jointly controlled by the two countries. In recent months the Japanese press has charged China with developing a definitely anti-Japanese policy in an effort to end Japan's influence in Manchuria, and a series of incidents, climaxed by the execution of a Japanese army captain as a spy, has aroused the Japanese army leaders to demand retaliation.

A clash between Japan and China would be far more serious than the difficulties of the Chinese republic with Britain and Russia, because Japan has everything at stake in Manchuria. For Japan it is not merely a billion-dollar investment that is in peril, nor is it entirely a question of the safety of a million Japanese, but it is a problem involving Japan's future.

Where it will lead to in the present crisis will not be clear until the circumstances are more fully explained.

CHINESE DESTROY PART OF RAIL LINE

Japanese people and is launched at a time when China is in the throes of calamity caused by floods, communism and civil war.

"The world has been afforded the spectacle for some time past of war being manufactured. It now has been launched, so far as Japan is concerned, but China has no intention of being an armed party to it.

"China is content to allow public opinion throughout the world to form its own judgment and hopes and expects justice to be done in this case."

The Manchurian governor said that as soon as he suspected the Japanese army contemplated action of some kind in Manchuria, he gave orders that in case of attack no resistance should be made by Chinese soldiers or police and that their arms and ammunition should be placed in depots.

Moscow, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Moscow today was following the Sino-Japanese developments in Manchuria with the closest attention, but all official comment was withheld.

All newspapers today published prominently accounts of the Japanese occupation of Mukden without adding editorial observations.

The government's primary interest in Manchuria lies in the Chinese-Eastern Railway, which it jointly owns and administers with China. It now is negotiating here for a permanent settlement of the railway's status.

May Ask League to Act.

Geneva, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Chinese delegation to the League of Nations assembly indicated tonight it was expecting momentarily instructions from the Nanking government, which would call upon the League Council to take definite action on the Mukden incident.

Information received by the delegation today from the Far East was still incomplete, but was to the effect that the Japanese have occupied several important ports or cities in Manchuria besides Mukden.

Chinese Party in U. S. Protests to Hoover

San Francisco, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Kuomintang in America, a branch of the Chinese political party supporting the Nanking Nationalist government in China, today sent a telegram of protest to President Hoover over action of Japan in capturing Mukden and other Manchurian territory.

"The attack," the telegram said, "is a flagrant violation of China's sovereignty, the Washington conference treaty and the Kellogg antiwar pact."

Even If Nations Battle, Who Wants Railways?

By JOHN J. DALY

JAPAN and China, battling in Manchuria, engage the attention of the world, eyes shifting from the Western to the Eastern front. The squabble seems to be over a railroad.

What with the condition of the markets, railroad stocks at their lowest points, it seems rather silly that two great powers should get all hot and bothered over a railroad—even a network of railroads. In this country, at least, railroads are more bother than they are worth.

Any nation that wants a railroad can get one without going to war; barring, of course, the perennial fight for increased freight rates.

What will happen in Manchuria is plain to see: Japan and China, whichever comes out winner, must eventually declare war to make the loser take back the railroad. Upkeep, improvements and all the wear and tear from constant excursions, put railroads on the skids.

* * * *

IN these days a railroad is about as desirable as a straw hat factory.

Not since the time of Casey Jones, the brave engineer, has there been any real romance in railroading.

Just hear that en-jine hum.
That train's sure goin' some.
It makes you go to sleep in Fargo,
And you wake up in Chicago;
It goes Choo-choo!
Choo-choo-choo!
That's the railroad rag.

Of course, neither the Japanese nor the Chinese ever had such inspirations as that, nor such a national hero as Casey Jones, who "mounted to the cabin with his orders in his hand and took his farewell trip into that promised land."

* * * *

THE Japanese may have heard about the continuous tolling of the bells which the ancient Florentines called the Martinella—a clarion call to war; a warning that a siege was about to begin. If so, having heard the bells of an engine on the Southern Manchurian Railroad, a train running late into Mukden, the Japanese probably figured this was the time of attack—a mistaken idea, of course. Those bells merely meant to clear the tracks.

It seems a pity that so much commotion should arise over such a simple thing as a railroad; that peace and good will on earth should be destroyed merely to annex an engine and several passenger coaches. With just a trace of Roman strategy, Grecian subtlety, or Punic cunning, both Japan and China could patch up their differences, come to America and get all the railroads they want—with the consent of the owners, and the blessings of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

U. S. RELIEF OUTPUT PAST BILLION MARK

White House Estimates Sum by End of June Will Top $1,550,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

The White House estimates Federal expenditures for relief since the beginning of the depression will pass $1,550,000,000 by the end of next June.

The announcement yesterday was based upon tabulations by the public construction division of the Commerce Department. It summarized drought and unemployment relief expenditures as amounting to $452,301,000 in 1930; $787,587,000 in 1931, estimating them at $373,593,000 for the first half of 1932.

"The rate of expenditure for the first half of 1932 in aid of unemployment," the statement said, "if continued over the whole year, would mean a continued rate of expenditure of $746,186,000 for the calendar year.

"The total expenditure of the Federal Government in aid to unemployment since the depression began, omitting drought relief, will by the end of the present fiscal year aggregate over $1,550,000,000."

The statement said the figures for 1930 and 1931 included Federal construction, maintenance and drought relief expenditures.

1932 Figures Classified.

Prospective expenditures for the first half of 1932 were subdivided as follows: Public buildings and lands, $126,980,000; construction other than buildings and construction work by the Engineer Corps, $95,737,000; works under direction of Engineer Corps, $40,000,000; repairs and maintenance, $37,283,000; roads, $73,593,000.

The statement showed $49,020,000 was spent for drought relief in 1931 and $5,338,000 in 1930. Arkansas received the most with $9,277,000; Mississippi was second with $4,448,000; Georgia was third with $4,041,000, and Texas fourth with $3,401,000.

The Labor Department yesterday made public an extract of the report on employment exchange systems in Europe prepared by John J. Leary, jr., on the basis of a study he made for Secretary Doak in England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland and Belgium.

"Any employment system to be successful," Leary said, "must be based on recognition of the fact that unemployment is not a local matter and can best be limited by making labor as mobile as possible.

Federal Basis Necessary.

"This being so, it naturally follows, as experience abroad has shown, that any employment system must be operated on a national or Federal basis."

Among Leary's recommendations were that contracts for public works, designed to relieve unemployment, provide that 80 per cent of all employment on such work be hired through the employment service, subject to modification by the Secretary of Labor that employment offices be staffed with noncivil service specialists, later to be placed under civil service, if desirable; that exchanges be neutral in all industrial disputes; that Government establishments be required to obtain workmen through the exchanges.

Meanwhile the Commerce Department, in the current issue of commerce reports, said it was generally anticipated that European unemployment next winter would surpass that of last winter.

Spring Relief Failed.

The spring decline in unemployment, said R. M. Stephenson, chief of the European section, division regional information, did not materialize. "Consequently unemployment reported at the end of June was generally the highest on record for the midyear."

In the White House summary of relief expenditures by States, the following figures are included:

District of Columbia, $40,396,000 for 1930; $55,719,000 for 1931, and $36,996,000 estimated for the first half of 1932.

Maryland, $7,922,000 for 1930; $10,579,000 for 1931, and $4,833,000 estimated for the first half of next year.

Virginia, $32,997,000 for 1930; $43,771,000 for 1931, and $19,873,000 estimated for from January to June, 1932.

West Virginia, $3,372,000 for 1930; $8,192,000 for 1931, and $3,295,000 estimated for January to June next year.

North Carolina, $4,804,000 for 1930; $12,349,000 for 1931; with the estimate for the first part of next year $3,923,000.

The GIRL About Town

CHEERIO for a happy lark at Mrs. Doak's today, with the Young Republicans. Mrs. Doak is giving a garden party in connection with the League of Republican Women and the National Capital Republican Club. Notre Nid, the Doak home, has a glorious garden, with lovely little nooks and dells in which to discuss politics with one's beau. Tom promised to motor us out. He is a good party man and has a future. It pays to keep your eyes on young people in political parties. The first thing you know they are in the Cabinet, just like Pat Hurley.

* * * *

All of the girls are rather provoked at the Italian Ambassador and Secretary of the Navy Adams because they kept Admiral Alfredo Acton of the Royal Italian Navy from the gentler sex. Not a single girl was asked to any of the parties for him. I'll wager the women of the American Legion Auxiliary will capture him for a luncheon while he is in Detroit.

At Charlottesville Anne Henderson Michie is to marry Harry Lamberton. The last time I saw Harry he was in the naval uniform of the Junior Defense Guard, and here is his engagement announced. Harry is in civil life. He left the naval tradition, somehow, although it was his dream when a lad to go to the Academy.

Lindy, jr., breaks into the news column with his first pair of long trousers. They are white flannel ones, belonging to a sailor suit presented to him on his first birthday. Of course, he wanted a pair of wings instead. If he watches the sky hard enough he'll see daddy and mama flying home some day.

I am filling out my blank on beer for the Census Bureau ahead of time. When their experts come to my crowd, the answer will be "highballs" with a big "H." There will be lots of chatter by the Young Republicans at the garden party today about beer, but more about Scotch.

TOM says the only equipment a bachelor needs for a season in Washington is a cocktail shaker, two boxes of books and a radio. Why the books and the radio? Why not lamb chops? Judging from the reports of poverty-stricken diplomats, the bread line may have to function in their behalf. At a tea lately a second secretary told me he could not get along except for the free lunch route. Of course, he occasionally brought his hostess a bottle of "embassy liquor," more welcome nowadays than gardenias and orchids.

Lady Astor is not coming to the Yorktown sesquicentennial, after all. Perhaps she thought it was a bad time to be reminding the British of any surrenders.

Six Members of Family Die in Crash at Crossing

Delano, Calif., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Six members of a family were killed when a Southern Pacific train struck the automobile in which they were returning from Advance, 12 miles east of Delano, today.

The dead are William E. Youngblood, 39, formerly of Henryetta, Okla.; Mrs. Laura Ellen Youngblood, 38, his wife, and their children, Raymond 15; Harold Youngblood, 13, and Ellen Youngblood, 8. Engineer R. O. Quackenbush said he blew the train whistle a considerable distance from the crossing.

Germany Takes Lead In Exports to Soviet

Moscow, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Germany replaced the United States as Soviet Russia's principal buying market in the first six months of 1931, as compared with the same period in 1930, according to figures released by the Chamber of Commerce for Western Trade today.

The figures show that Soviet imports from Germany during the period were 162,718,000 rubles compared with 142,652,000 from the United States. This is compared with 104,503,000 rubles spent in Germany during the first six months of 1930 and 167,056,000 spent in the United States.

LINDBERGHS ENJOY PICNIC AT NANKING

Also Take Sight-Seeing Trip; Colonel Awaits Answer to Plane Offer.

Nanking, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Favored by fine weather, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh spent a happy Sunday on a picnic and sight seeing.

Accompanied by the American Consul General and Mrs. Peck, they drove to Sun Yat-Sen Memorial Park and lunched in the open air, undisturbed by the visitors.

Later the party drove around the beautiful Purple Mountain on the sides of which is located the impressive Sun Yat-Sen mausoleum, erected in 1928 in honor of the founder of the Chinese Republic. The party also visited the tombs of the Ming emperors, returning to Nanking late this afternoon.

The Lindberghs arrived here yesterday after an 800-mile airplane flight from Kukuoka, Japan, in continuance of a vacation flight.

Refuels His Plane.

Lindbergh visited Lotus Lake today and refueled his plane to have it ready should it be needed by the flood relief commission in accordance with an offer of the colonel to use it in such activity.

In offering his plane Lindbergh said that both he and his wife desired to visit Shanghai and Peiping, but added that their itinerary must wait until authorities decide whether he and his plane can be of assistance in the flood situation.

Late today officials expressed gratitude for the offer, but had not signified whether they would accept it.

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The how and when of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's return to the United States became a matter of speculation among his friends here today as the number of days in which he can return from China by way of Alaska shortened.

Although weather experts said he might retrace the route he took on his way to the Far East as late as November 1, provided he gets a "weather break," the probability that he would extend his trip around the world by way of Persia, Turkey, Morocco, the Canary Islands, Cape Verdi Islands and Brazil was advanced in aviation circles.

November 1 Held Final Date.

Dr. James Kimball, the United States Weather Department director here, who has given aviators, including Lindbergh, more advice about flying conditions than perhaps any other man, gave November 1 as the final date on which the Lindberghs might hope to return by the Alaskan route they took going. Temperatures at Point Barrow, he pointed out, already have fallen below freezing.

"Storms are coming up quickly now," he said, "and in addition to the cold, cloudy region and wind and general storm conditions to be encountered, there is the likelihood of taking on ice."

Dr. Kimball expressed doubt that the Lindberghs would try the Africa to Brazil hop across the south Atlantic. "I don't think Col. Lindbergh would take such a risk, especially with Mrs. Lindbergh," he said.

Other persons familiar with the Lindbergh plane, however, believe that the most likely possibility. They say the monoplane, equipped with pontoons, could make the 1,200-mile hop from the Cape Verde Islands to Pernambuco, Brazil, with comparative ease.

He sees a "growing demand throughout the country for a full and frank discussion of questions of governmental interest and action which are proper subjects for considerations in party platforms."

Begins With Unemployment.

The Shouse platform starts off with unemployment. The three bills offered by Senator Wagner, Tammany Democrat of New York, at the last session of Congress, should be made effective, it says. A public works program should be inaugurated, the platform says, funds if necessary to be provided by a bond issue.

Further, it is said, there should be a governmental survey to "recommend further legislation to limit, insofar as possible, the recurrent periods of depression with their resultant unemployment." Next comes the tariff: Immediate revision of the "most unwise of the schedules of the tariff enormity known as the Hawley-Smoot tariff act."

Congress would retake the power to fix tariff taxes, now vested by law in the President and the tariff commission. The tariff commission would be reorganized. The "principle of fair trade" would be recognized "in its application to manufacturers and consumers alike, and in its relation to the foreign nations with which we do business."

Agricultural Relief.

Agricultural relief is the next heading—repeal of legislation that authorized the Farm Board, which legislation "has resulted in infinite damage to the agricultural industry as well as the loss of tens of millions of taxpayers' money."

"Orderly marketing of farm products" is recommended and a system of warehouse credits and "proper machinery" by which "a profitable domestic price for the stable commodities can be maintained and the exporting surplus disposed of at the expense of the crop benefited."

Then comes the prohibition clause. It is 54 lines long, while the unemployment clause is 31 lines long.

"More than twelve years of trial of of the most difficult social experiment ever attempted by a government have shown that the conditions arising under the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead law are intolerable," the outline says.

Has Filled Jails.

It states that the law has filled the jails, engendered disrespect for laws, and continues:

"The Democratic party must meet the prohibition issue. That issue must be dealt with politically. It is a political question pure and simple."

There are four subordinate paragraphs suggesting what must be done. The Volstead law clause says:

"The Volstead law should be amended to do away with its ridiculous definition of intoxicating liquors and to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beers. This can be done by act of Congress." "The employment of several hundred thousand idle men" and the revenues possibilities are pointed out.

Clause B says that the "open saloon was an economic evil of the worst type," and must not be allowed to return.

Referendum Urged.

Clause B would commit the party to a referendum to the electorate which can be done "only by offering a substitute for the eighteenth amendment." Congress would not have to vote on prohibition itself, it is pointed out, only on the referendum. There should be State control of liquor if the referendum succeeds, it is added. "With every protection in those States which desire a continuance of prohibition within their borders."

On fiscal affairs, the question of taxes is not discussed directly, but the need for economy is stressed.

The outline comes at a time here when Democrats are jubilantly predicting what would happen if there were an election "tomorrow" and Republicans responding that if there were an election tomorrow the Democratic votes would be split among a dozen candidates, to the benefit of President Hoover.

Consensus on Platform Generally Unfavorable

(United Press.)

Democratic leaders here last night received the 1932 platform proposals of Executive Secretary Jouett Shouse without marked enthusiasm.

While a number favored individual planks in the platform, no important senator or representative was willing to place himself on record as approving the proposal in general.

A number declined to comment pending a detailed examination of the platform, but the consensus was generally unfavorable.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), Montana, said, "It was very kind of Mr. Shouse to give the Democratic party a platform so far in advance. I would say generally that I heartily disapprove of several features of the platform." Mr. Walsh added that he favored the five-day week for labor, proposed by Mr. Shouse, and was also in accord with any stand against the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

Senator Thomas F. Gore (Democrat), of Oklahoma, said, "I should say that the Democrats have no Daniel come to judgment, Mr. Shouse has the right to offer his platform as any one of 20,000,000 other Democrats might as a purely personal matter. Any platform ought to represent the consensus of many minds and should reflect consultation."

GOOD SITES REMAIN AT WOODLAND BEACH

Opportunity Left for Many More to Enjoy Advantages of Post Property.

You don't have to be prosperous to enjoy the summer season in this vicinity. Of course, if you are, that much better, but Capital residents are being offered an opportunity for enjoyment, rest and comfort at a price seldom presented.

The opportunity is Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland. This is a resort which will appeal to every one. As a matter of fact it has appealed to hundreds who are now listed as property owners there. Of this number, a large number have built or are planning to build cottages.

Woodland Beach property is offered at such a low rate and on such easy terms that no budget is strained through a purchase. Lots there cost only $93 each, with a down payment of $9 and a subscription to The Post as the only requirements before selecting a location. After that monthly payments of $3.50 will take care of the balance.

Although only a few months old, Woodland Beach is already one of the most popular resorts in this territory. It is ideally located, just 32 miles away and easy to reach by motor, bus or electric line. It offers all the advantages of the higher priced resorts. Right now it affords opportunity to those who want to grow with the community and have a hand in its regulation.

RELIGION DECLARED "CHIEF ADVENTURE"

Dr. Pierce Says Men Develop Spiritual Convictions to Suit Own Needs.

"Religion has been the chief adventure and experience of the human race from the earliest times until today, and when it ceases to become an experiment or an adventure it is because it has lost its power of expansion and has forfeited its characteristics of growth," said Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce yesterday morning at the All Soul's Unitarian Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, when speaking on "The Fruit of the Land."

The text for the sermon was drawn from the thirteenth chapter of Numbers, the twenty-seventh verse, "And they told Moses and said, we come unto the land whither thou sentest us, and surely it floweth with milk and honey: and this is the fruit of it."

The speaker went on to say that the reason religion is an adventure and that we must be always on tiptoe to receive it in its fullest form lies in the very nature of it, "for religion is man's attempt to live in harmony with the whole universe, obviously a rather large order."

Dr. Pierce contended that every man adjusts his own religion to suit his particular nature, weeding out the things that do not seem to fit the individual personality. "No one is content with a ready-made or handed-down religion," he said.

Stimson, 64 Today, Shows Only Graying Hair as Mark

Secretary Will Spend Day at Desk on Problem of World Peace.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary of State Henry Lewis Stimson will be 64 today.

The anniversary will find him at his desk, immersed in problems of disarmament and peace.

Passing years and the strain of conducting the foreign relations of a nation have made the Secretary somewhat gray around the temples, but otherwise he shows little sign of having reached 64—the age at which Army and Navy officers are required by law to retire.

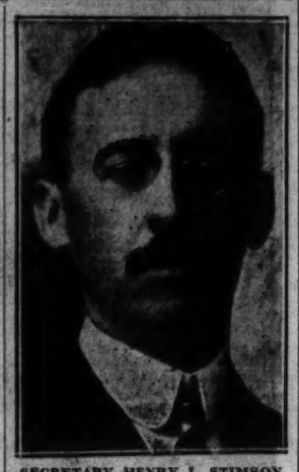
Tennis and horseback riding play an important part in keeping him in good physical condition. His favorite pastime is a gallop over a winding bridle path in Rock Creek Park or on his $800,000 estate on Cathedral avenue.

Tennis runs a close second. He prefers its comparatively strenuous action to golf and ranks with Secretary Adams of the Navy among the best players in the Cabinet.

In his office, the Secretary works fast and demands that his assistants do likewise. His usual working hours are from about 9 o'clock to 4.

By combining recreation with work on this summer's trip to Europe, Secretary Stimson preserved his health so successfully that he announced on his recent return that he felt better than when he left.

He is tall and erect with a clear, ruddy complexion, a small dark mustache and a patrician Roman nose. A somewhat nervous smile plays about the corners of his mouth as he conducts his almost daily conferences with newspapermen.



SECRETARY HENRY L. STIMSON.

The Secretary came back from Europe more thoroughly sold than ever on the idea of world disarmament. He fully realizes, however, that many difficult European political problems remain in the path of complete disarmament.

POLISH DELEGATES ARRIVE FOR SESSION

Women's Alliance Group to Formally Open Convention Today.

Members of the Polish Women's Alliance of America, who arrived in the Capital yesterday morning for the annual convention of the body, attended high mass at the Catholic University shortly after their arrival and lunched at that institution.

The convention will open formally at the Willard Hotel this morning.

Following luncheon yesterday at the university, the members visited the statues to Kosciusko and Pulaski and later the Washington Monument.

Election of officers will follow an executive session Tuesday morning. There will be a banquet Tuesday night at which Representative Leonard W. Schuetz, of Chicago, will be the principal speaker.

A trip to Mount Vernon is planned for Tuesday afternoon, a reception at the Polish Embassy Wednesday at 5 p. m., meeting with President Hoover at 5:30 p. m. Thursday and a trip to Annapolis Friday. The convention's sessions will conclude Saturday.

Cherrydale P.-T. A. Meets Tonight.

The first meeting of the school year of the Parent-Teachers Association of the Cherrydale School will be held tonight in the school auditorium at 8 o'clock. The feature will be a reception to the teachers. Mrs. Martha Rauh, president, will preside.

"That bully old slogan hits me just right—

...no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!

BILL PLANS TO AID OVERSEAS WOMEN

1,000 Who Served With Army Not Now Provided For in Veterans' Act.

About 1,000 American women who served with the U. S. Army overseas during the World War are not now considered eligible for care under the veterans' act, according to a statement issued by the Women's Overseas Service League. The statement says:

"Of the 11,000 women who saw service with the Army and Navy overseas, all of the Army Nurse Corps and all women with service with the Navy, about 10,000 in all, are recognized as having been militarized and as being, therefore, now eligible for hospitalization and compensation. The 1,000 who are not so recognized and who would benefit by proposed legislation, which is sponsored by the Women's Overseas Service League, are those who were taken over by the U. S. Government for service with the Signal Corps, the Quartermaster Corps, the Ordnance Corps and other branches of the U. S. Army.

Introduced Last Spring.

"For these women with service directly with our Army a bill was introduced in Congress last spring by Representative Goss and will be reintroduced next December. This bill would recognize these 1,000 women as having been enrolled into active service in the military forces of the U. S. and as being, therefore, eligible for Government care.

"Many national organizations have pledged their support to the Women's Overseas Service League in its effort to obtain passage of this legislation. Prominent among the groups backing the bill nationally are the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Women's Legion, the Re-Aides Association of the World War and many of the veteran organizations throughout the country. At least six department conventions of the American Legion have approved this legislation and have referred the matter to the national convention in Detroit.

Welfare Women Excluded.

This proposed legislation has nothing to do with the 11,000 women with service overseas with the various welfare organizations such as the American Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. For these women nothing is being asked from the Government. The Women's Overseas Service League has a national fund which it is slowly increasing from which loans or grants are made to any overseas woman now disabled whether or not she is a member, or whether her present disability was caused by her wartime service.

"Many of the units of the league have local funds for helping their disabled and a magnificent work is being done throughout the country for the relief of the disabled women of the war. It is, however, a great task and the league is making every effort to have its burden lightened by obtaining passage of the bill which would insure Government recognition and care for all, and not merely a part of the women whom the Army itself took over for service."

Jury Clears Officers Of Mail Driver's Death

Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Four New Hanover County officers, tried on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of Lupo Roberts, mail truck driver, who was shot to death in a gun battle precipitated when they halted his truck while seeking a liquor runner, were acquitted today.

The jury's verdict was returned at 4:37 p. m. It received the case at 4:40 p. m. yesterday. Judge N. A. Sinclair warned the four defendants—E. J. Hale, L. M. Massey and E. B. Crews, sheriff's deputies, and Porter Davis, county officer—after the verdict was returned not to violate other laws in attempting to enforce the prohibition laws.

"Fatty" Arbuckle Held; Breaking Glass Charged

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, once famous as a screen comedian, was arrested today on a charge of breaking glass on a highway after a police officer had questioned him to learn if he was intoxicated.

Eugene Allen, 49, who gave his address as Educational Film Studios, was arrested on a charge of interfering with an officer. Two women comanions of the men were not held. Arbuckle and Allen were in custody two hours. They were given a sobriety test and were declared sober. They were liberated under $100 bond each.

Democrats of Florida Start Summerall Boom

Tampa, Fla., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Tribune says a movement is under way in Florida to bring out Gen. Charles P. Summerall, former chief of staff of the United States Army, as a Democratic candidate for governor next year.

There is no intimation as to whether the General, now president of The Citadel, a military college at Charleston, S. C., has been approached by party leaders who want him to seek the nomination. It is understood here that he agreed to remain at The Citadel for a year only.

VIRGINIA TOUR SET BY THIRD CAVALRY

Historic Regiment to Leave Today on Jaunt to Six Towns in State.

Fort Myer's historic Third Cavalry, with a record dating back to "The Mounted Riflemen" in 1846, will leave its post across the river today on a ten-day jaunt through Virginia, stopping to give exhibitions in at least six Old Dominion towns.

The regiment, which was the first organization to enter the City of Mexico in the Mexican War, the first to place the Stars and Stripes on San Juan Hill and the first cavalry regiment to be sent to France, will leave Fort Myer at 7:30 this morning and make its first stop today at Fairfax, Va.

Participating in the exhibitions, polo matches and band concerts will be about 300 officers and men, including the Third Cavalry Band. The schedule calls for a stop at Gainesville, tomorrow; Middleburg, Wednesday; Marshall, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and Fairfax, September 28 and 29.

The outstanding feature of the march will be a free exhibition and drill at Marshall at 4 p. m. Saturday. In addition to a band concert, the troops of the regiment will present the entire series of equestrian stunts that make up a week's routine at the Fort Myer post.

There will be a musical ride by Troop E, a tadem and rough riding by Troop F, and the gymnastic ride of the machine gun troop. A cooperative mission between the regiment and two planes of the Air Service is scheduled for Marshall September 25. On the afternoon of that day and again on Saturday, the cavalry polo team will play the Marshall team.

Commanding the regiment will be Col. Harry N. Cootes, a Virginian, who graduated from the Staunton Military Academy and the Virginia Military Institute.

Other officers with the regiment on the march are Maj. A. D. Surles, Capts. G. I. Smith, J. T. Menzio, T. W. Ligon, H. J. Fitzgerald, C. H. Palmer, Lieuts. C. Knudson, W. A. Holbrook, D. W. Sawtelle, F. W. Makinney, H. G. Hoge, L. M. Grenor, P. R. Greenhaigh, W. A. Fuller, L. F. Cole and J. K. Waters.

GREEK PRIEST RAPS LAW GROUP REPORT

Assails Lawlessness Charge in Wickersham Report; False, He Says.

Strong exception was taken yesterday by Father Thomas Daniels, of the Greek Orthodox Church of Saints Constantine and Helen, to the Wickersham Commission's report in which criminals are enumerated by racial groups. In the report, the commission, tracing the origin of criminals of foreign birth or parentage, asserted that the Greek group stood, numerically, in third place.

"Neither Wickersham Commission, as a whole, nor President Hoover, is responsible for the injustices done to the Greek name by the unjustifiable error in the report of the commission," Father Daniels told his congregation.

"There must be some hostile clerk who hates the Greeks and their race, to report to the Wickersham Commission such untrue conditions," continued Father Daniels.

"It is up to the President of the United States and the Wickersham Commission to correct the wilful, untrue report not only by saying it was an error, but by eradicating from the report this terrible falsity and reprinting the truth. We demand this as American citizens. Everybody knows that the Greeks are not criminals as portraited in the report," continued the speaker.

A member of Father Daniels' congregation, Soterios Nicholson, who recently was elected supreme commander at the annual convention of the Order of Ahepa, national Greek organization, held in San Francisco, said yesterday that that convention adopted a resolution declaring the report of the Wickersham Commission, insofar as it reflected upon the Greek race, to be inaccurate and untrue.

Cotton Acreage Law In Texas Held Certain

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Passage early this wek of a compromise cotton restriction bill, limiting 1932 Texas planting to 30 per cent of this year's acreage, was freely predicted today by legislative leaders.

EPISCOPAL BOARD CREDITS MEDICINE

Report to Convention Holds Church Should Work With Doctors.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—A joint commission of the Protestant Episcopal Church, after nine years' study of the problem of Christian healing, recommended to the general convention of the church here today that those who practice such healing in the church operate in cooperation with the medical profession.

Its report created a new lively issue for the convention already grappling with disarmament, remarriage of divorced persons, birth control and other moot problems.

The disarmament debate became more active today when Col. G. W. Stuart, chief of staff of the 103d Division, Organized Reserve Corps, suggested to delegates they will find the Ten Commandments more effective for peace than casting aside of weapons.

The Christian healing commission pointed out in its report that, while the church must teach that spiritual healing is an integral part of the gospel of Christ and part of the pastoral office, it must not teach or use any methods tending to lead people to believe it is the only, or even the primary, element of that gospel.

"No sober-minded man," the report recites, "can dispute what materia medica has done for humanity to alleviate the suffering caused by disease and accidents and the practical eradication of certain diseases.

"We may believe that this progress in medical science has been due to certain illumination of the spirit of God. The church will not fail to give due credit to the medical profession for its noble work for poor suffering humanity."

Another of the series of spectacles which the convention has brought to Denver was staged in the Municipal Auditorium tonight. In a setting of the flags of twelve nations where missionary work of the church is conducted, a missionary mass meeting was held.

Delegates were watching, with considerable speculation, the introduction of any subjects which may have been discussed at the secret meeting of the House of Bishops yesterday.

New Peace Marks Rome Observance

Sixty-first Anniversary of Fall of City Ruled Out as Celebration.

Vatican City, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—A new peace today marked the sixty-first anniversary of the fall of Rome before Italian arms, with its subsequent 58-year breach between the church and the state during which the popes were "prisoners in the Vatican."

Today Pope Piux XI and Premier Mussolini had strengthened the new agreement under the Laterin Treaty and the concordat by their accord actuated on September 2, defining more clearly the scope of religious and civil authority.

The Italian army entered Rome on September 20, 1870. This is the first year the date has not been celebrated. In deference to the church, and as a symbol of the restoration of peace it duce abolished it as a national holiday.

Bounding Stone Injures Her.

Endicott, N. Y. (U.P.).—A small stone which fell from a truck caused severe injuries to Mrs. Elizabeth L. Miller, 65, of Washington, D. C. The stone bounded when it struck the pavement and crashed through the windshield of an automobile in which Mrs. Miller was riding. She suffered from several deep cuts.

New Skin Disease Laid To Worry Over Jobs

New York, Sept. 20 (U. P.).—Economic depression has given birth to a disease called dermatalgia, or neuralgia of the skin, according to Dr. Charles F. Pabst, New York dermatologist.

The spread of the disease, which is caused by derangement of the nerve supply brought on by worry, fear and brooding, is comparable to the increase in skin ailments which followed the World War, Dr. Pabst said.

"The man who still has a job," he said, "should stop worrying about it because he may bring on an attack of dermatalgia. And the man without a job should stop worrying or he will not only be out of a job but have an attack of dermatalgia to boot."

Butler to Review Last Dress Parade

Quantico Marines to Pass Before Retiring Officer Tomorrow.

Quantico Marines will pass in final review tomorrow before their commander, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retiring from the service after more than 30 years with the forest green ranks that have stood by him through a career of civil and military strife.

Gen. Butler, who left the military service several years ago to battle liquor and vice in Philadelphia, and more recently incurred the disfavor of the Navy Department when he made a speech in criticism of Mussolini, has ordered his last dress parade before retirement.

As part of the same program at the Marine Corps base, mobilization action and a landing attack against a fortified beach, will be presented by the troops on the following day. Gen. Butler, born in West Chester, Pa., July 30, 1881, was appointed to the Marine Corps in 1899, and rose through the various ranks to major general.

BURLESQUE TO OPEN RADIO SHOW TONIGHT

Daily Programs to Be Given Through Entire Week at Auditorium.

Washington's first Radio and Electric Show will open at 8 o'clock tonight at the Washington Auditorium. Chief among the varied attractions listed for the week is the personal appearance of 27 well-known radio stars. Their contributions to the entertainment will be supplemented by electrical demonstrations staged by engineers of the General Electric Co. and Westinghouse Electrical Research Laboratories.

Programs of entertainment will be changed each day and will be continuous from 2 o'clock p. m. until 11 p. m., following the official opening. The entertainment feature tonight will be presentation of a radio burlesque skit, "Microphobia." This skit was written by Raymond Knight, known to radio fans as Prof. Ambrose J. Weems of Station KUKU.

John Bellamy Taylor, electrical engineer, will give a demonstration of audible light and visible sound. Mr. Televox, the electric robot, will appear on the stage and obey the commands of his operator.

The show is sponsored by the Electric League of Washington.

Quick to Learn

The young people are starting out for school again—questioning, curious, eager.... Fortunate are the grown-ups, who as they grow older, continue eager to learn, ready to accept newer and better ways of doing things.

The last generation, for example, has seen marked improvement in the manner of leaving money under wills. The modern method is to appoint a corporate executor and trustee, an institution like ours—

—which has a continuous life

—which is schooled in prompt and efficient ways of settling estates

—which is equipped to give disinterested financial advice to heirs.

Whether you have made your will or not, come in and learn more about this "new and better way" of safeguarding your family's future. Our Trust Officer is ready to explain all phases of the subject.

BRITAIN'S DRASTIC ACTION.

The British financial crisis has forced the government to take the radical step of suspending the operation of the gold standard. The MacDonald coalition cabinet decided upon the necessity of this action after lengthy Sunday sessions following the continued heavy withdrawals of gold from the Bank of England. Nothing short of the gravest necessity would have forced such a decision. It is a last resort measure to save Great Britain's financial position.

Withdrawals of gold in the last 60 days have so jeopardized the reserves of the Bank of England as to threaten seriously the stability of the pound sterling. More than a billion dollars in gold have been sent abroad since the middle of July. This heavy loss was a drain upon a gold stock, already depleted, that threatened the collapse of the pound with all the attendant ills of inflated prices, financial disorder and world-wide dislocations affecting not only Great Britain, but all financial centers.

The section of the gold standard act which will be suspended compels the Bank of England to sell gold in bars at a fixed price and the object of its suspension, naturally, is to prevent the further export of gold from Great Britain. Suspension of the gold redemption act will mean that paper currency will not be convertible into gold during the period of suspension. These steps, together with the increase of the discount rate to 6 per cent, will combine, in the opinion of British financial leaders, to conserve the remaining gold stock and give time to quiet the rumors that have caused a lack of confidence in the stability of the British financial structure.

The momentous nature of this action by Britain can be gauged by orders suspending of bank dealing in exchange and the closing of the stock exchanges today pending the passage of the emergency financial legislation by Parliament, which is considered a foregone conclusion, due to the coalition majority The measures taken are considered only as temporary expedients by the MacDonald cabinet. Undoubtedly their effect will, by force of necessity, prevent gold withdrawals from England. What such an acknowledgement of weakness will have in other nations throughout the world is difficult to forecast. It is specifically stated that government obligations and those of the Bank of England payable in foreign currencies will not be affected.

There is no escaping the evident fact that the temporary expedients now resorted to by Great Britain reveal the sorry condition of her financial structure, a situation brought about by an unfavorable trade balance with continued declines in exports and increases in imports. Americans must be thankful for a protective tariff that has preserved them from such a lamentable situation. England begins to realize the necessity of adopting similar measures if her industries are to be built up and her financial position restored.

The repercussion of this British crisis will doubtless hit American and all securities throughout the world, as well as those of Great Britain. American industry is properly fortified and American currency and credit, the strongest in the world, are bulwarked with the world's great stock of gold and there will be no ultimate loss suffered here even if temporary reverses are felt as sympathetic reactions to the British crisis.

TAMING OLD MAN RIVER.

Probably few Americans realize that the amount of earth that is being placed in the levees in the gigantic work of controlling the flood waters of the Mississippi amounts to twice the excavation required on the Panama Canal. Two-thirds completed, the project calls for the moving of 500,000,000 yards of dirt. The work is going forward at the rate of about 8,000,000 yards a month.

Of the $325,000,000 authorized for this great improvement $127,000,000 has been expended on schedule. President Hoover's intense interest in the project and the direct personal supervision he gave it was well justified by its inherent importance and the value it will be to vast sections, but it is doubly justified at present because it now supplies work for an army of employes.

The Government employs many workers directly, but thousands of others receive employment through contractors, and still more are indirectly benefited by orders to manufacturers of machinery, boats, trucks, automobiles, cement and many construction materials, all of which are required in large quantities. Needless to say the latest and largest types of graders, tractors, hydraulic dredges and conveyors are in use, and the work is being done with every economy that ingenuity, mechanical efficiency and engineering skill can devise.

The Mississippi flood control improvements extend all the way from the Rock Island district to the Gulf of Mexico. Protection from flood waters is afforded mostly by levees, which are simply great ridges of earth built up paralleling the river. These are placed far enough back to escape the danger of caving banks, and to provide space between the river channel and the levees to carry flood waters. The levees vary in height from 20 to 30 feet. At many points the process is not as simple as this; dams must be built, and river banks fixed by revetment. Piling is at times required, and spillways have to be constructed.

All this vast undertaking is financed without any local contributions whatever, the entire expense being borne by the United States. The enterprise, of course, is not only of vital importance at this time to a great stretch of territory in providing work that is most opportune, but it is building up permanent values for many thousands of acres of rich land. Improvements can now be made with assurance of security that was impossible before. The control of the Mississippi, bringing peace and prosperity along the Father of Waters, may well be considered the great physical achievement of the present administration.

DEBT-FREE FARMERS.

Rock-ribbed New Hampshire offers an example to one-crop farming States that should not be overlooked. Gov. Winant gives some figures that are truly surprising to those whose hazy idea of New England agriculture is confused with tales of abandoned farms and wornout rocky fields. While New England farm products have suffered from low prices, New Hampshire has 15,000 farms that produced marketable products valued at over $32,000,000 last year.

The principal item is dairy products, which accounts for more than $10,000,000. When the milk and butter men found their output suffering from prices that did not bring proper returns they did not abandon the crop, but have organized the New England Dairies, Inc., a central marketing agency, and the producer is getting a fair deal. New Hampshire has increased its average milk production 1,500 pounds per cow in a dozen years, and is 500 pounds above the national average. Today 56 per cent of the New Hampshire bulls are pure bred, and dairy herds are rapidly improving.

Potato and apple growers of New Hampshire furnish high-grade products for the nearby cities of the Atlantic seaboard. Extensive diversification in fruits and vegetables affords a much longer marketing season than formerly. A peculiarity of the farming population of the State is the large number of those who own their land. States that run as high as 50 per farm renters will be surprised to know that in New Hampshire less than 5 per cent of the rural population are tenant farmers. Equally commendable is the fact that nearly 77 per cent of the farmers of New Hampshire own their farms entirely free of any mortgage indebtedness. This will make cotton and wheat farmers jealous, and even more so when they learn that if a Granite State farmer does have to borrow money he can get it at 5 per cent.

FASHIONABLE FEATHERS.

The new fall styles in millinery have led to a revival of prosperity in that industry. So changed are the new models from the former modes that a fashionable woman can not appear in last year's hat, with the result that the demand for the Eugenie creations is Nation-wide. It is not often possible to launch an innovation so successfully. Radical changes are frequently not acceptable to the feminine world. About six years ago one of the great couturiers of Paris sought to change the ladies' silhouette by restoring the normal waist line. His entire collection of gowns had this feature, and though they were unusually beautiful they did not strike the right note in feminine fancy, and the designer was almost ruined. Two years later the style was adopted by other houses and met with greater success, but it was two years more before American women accepted it.

The far-reaching effects of a change of style frequently involve industries of a completely differing character. The influence of Empress Eugenie is a boon to the ostrich farmers of this country and especially those of South Africa. Since 1914 feathers have not enjoyed much popularity, due especially to the American tariff forbidding the importation of plumage from wild birds. Styles were modified to meet this requirement and all feathers were gradually omitted as hat trimmings. According to the Bureau of Animal Industry about 10,000 ostriches were maintained in this country in 1914, while by 1920 the number had declined to about 231, used mostly for show purposes. Today there are approximately 500.

In South Africa the effect of the decline in popularity of feathers was not felt so quickly. In 1913 there were 757,000 ostriches, and the number declined to 314,000 in 1918. In 1927 the blow of decreased demand had fallen so heavily that Cape Town reported between 400 and 500 birds being slaughtered daily. Prices for feathers had dropped from $14 a pound to less than $4 and much of the stock held in warehouses had become virtually worthless. Farmers will hesitate before resuming extensive ostrich farms, yet it is probable that the smart little hats of this season will revive the ostrich industry.

EXTENDING STATE HIGHWAYS.

The expenditures on road building and maintenance by State highway departments in 1930 were increased 22 per cent over the amount for 1929. Of the $980,000,000 expended, $713,000,000 was for construction, $191,700,0000 for maintenance, and the remainder for equipment, interest on bonds, &c. State highway systems were improved during the year by surfacing of 27,464 miles of road and the improvement of 7,813 miles to a point ready for surfacing, according to reports received by the Bureau of Public Roads. These systems include 324,496 miles, of which 226,221 miles are now surfaced. The higher type roads, extending 84,112 miles, are surfaced with bituminous macadam, bituminous concrete, cement concrete and brick. The lower type roads are of sand clay, gravel and water-bound macadam, in all 142,109 miles.

The financing of these projects is now met largely by the revenue from motor vehicles, gasoline tax and bonds. The retirement of bonds is largely accomplished through motor vehicle funds. Formerly property taxes and State appropriations provided the greater part of the revenue, but today these form a small percentage of the money used for highways. The present system, which places the support largely upon those elements which profit from the expenditure, is undoubtedly an equitable arrangement.

The total income for State highway improvement during 1930 was $1,136,673,437 derived from the following sources: Motor vehicle revenues, 26 per cent; gasoline taxes, 36 per cent; bonds 20 per cent; Federal aid, 8 per cent; State taxes and appropriations, 4 per cent; funds transferred from counties, 5 per cent; miscellaneous revenue, 1 per cent. Only nine States reported a decrease in their incomes for the year. The increase in road building in this time of depression was of the greatest value in helping the unemployed.

THE SILVER MIRAGE

From the Minneapolis Journal.

Senator Henrik Shipstead again urges remonetization of silver as a cure for the world's economic ills. Gold is too scarce a commodity to be any longer reasonably available as a medium for the making of international settlements, he argues. Debtor nations can get gold for such purposes only by trading commodities for it. And the consequent bidding for the world's gold keeps cutting the value of commodities. Hence hard times everywhere. Our foreign debtors, it is urged, can not even pay their debts, to say nothing of buying normally from us, because of their inability to get hold of enough gold. But give silver a stamped value, and they can pay with that.

In other words, debase the world's currencies, including our own, so that there will be a better chance of collecting what other nations now owe us, and a better chance of selling them the goods we produce! Too much like borrowing money on a life insurance policy to gamble in the stock market.

Senator Shipstead goes back to Bryan and "Coin" Harvey for his argument that the demonetization of silver in 1873 was responsible for the hard times of the seventies and the nineties. But the cold facts of history refute, and always have refuted, the Bryan-Harvey position.

Silver was demonetized at a time when the mint could get no silver, and had been able to get little silver for nearly a quarter of a century, owing to the fact that the metal for many years had been worth to silversmiths more by the ounce than its coin value, fixed at sixteen-to-one with gold throughout the period 1834-1873. Thus the "crime of 1873" was no crime at all. The Government did not cheapen silver by refusing longer to coin it, by "repudiating" the metal, by deliberately plotting to make it harder for debtors to settle their obligations. No, it was silver prospectors and miners that cheapened silver by jumping this country's production from an average of a million dollars' worth a year up to thirty million dollars' worth a year.

Multiply by thirty the production of any commodity, and the price naturally falls. What amounted to remonetization of silver was decreed by Congress in the Bland-Allison act of 1878 and the Sherman silver purchase act of 1890. The latter measure merely increased the amount of silver which the earlier law obliged the Treasury to buy every month.

It was not the actual scarcity of gold that brought on the hard times of the nineties so much as it was this shortsighted attempt to peg silver. The Treasury bulged with silver, against which legal tender notes had to be issued, but with the white metal hoard underlying this currency constantly shrinking in value, due to higher and higher output at the mines. The thing happened that is bound to happen, when a country has two kinds of money, one less valuable than the other. The cheaper kind invariably drives the higher grade money out of circulation and into hiding, for it is the nature of man to hold onto the dollar that he knows will always be worth a dollar, and to pay his bills with the dubious dollar.

It is as impossible to have a fixed ratio between gold and silver values as between gold and wheat values or gold and coal values, for the reason that there is no naturally fixed ratio between rates of production. The bootstrap lifting plan of raising prices by cheapening money has been tried so often, and so disastrously, in so many parts of the world—notably in continental Europe in the earlier post-war years—that by this time it should be thoroughly discredited.

POST HASTE.

The President has gone to the legion convention at Detroit. "Fortune favors the brave."

Six hundred resolutions already await consideration by the soldiers' convention in Detroit. You see what would happen if Congress were in session, with all its lawyer members.

Here's the situation: It is doubtful whether even legion support would get bonus legislation through Congress under present conditions; if the legion now will generously aid the general campaign to help all unemployed, next time it can have anything it asks for.

Senator Brookhart says the "whole country is crying to Congress." Listen to the echo: "Stay at home."

The Japanese government has sued for peace—just as soon as the army was in a position to get whatever it is Japan wants of China.

The Prince of Wales has returned from a vacation. Doubtless he will be interested in looking over some of the new cabinet pieces acquired by the family during his absence.

After Washington has spent several years learning to pronounce the name of Ambassador Tellez, now Mexico is sending Puig Casaurano here.

A Mount Rainier man owns a Washington brick, not grape, but doubtless good old cherry bounce.

The League of Nations has invited Uncle Sam to sit in on the disarmament committee meetings of the assembly. And Mr. Culbertson just loves to look on at a back-parlor bridge game.

British sailors are told to put their grievances in writing. They might also be reminded that Chile answered the sky writing.

Punch, Herbert, punch with care,
Punch in the presence of the Legionnaire,
Strike him to "pull" his bonus pleads
Till we supply six millions' needs,

The only thing omitted from the agenda of Senator Brookhart's radio speech to make it millenniumly universal was "a bird's-eye view of Heaven."

Lindbergh offers himself and his plane to help China's flood sufferers. China would probably prefer to employ his skill to drop a few bombs on his erstwhile Japanese hosts.

The New York Legislature canceled its "blank check" demand, capitulated to Roosevelt and adjourned to contemplate with a blank stare its inept record.

If William Allen White was able to report upon the state of the Union as cheerfully as he told, "What's the matter with Kansas" the President left the Rapidan for Detroit in quite an optimistic mood.

PAUL HUDSON.

The Economic Paradox.

Topeka Capital.

The world is in a strange dilemma when American cotton-growing States are seriously considering in their Legislatures the prohibition of all cotton-planting for next year.

There is, of course, a somewhat similar drive against production of food, when millions of the world's population have insufficient means of obtaining food and clothing. Curtailment of production presents the paradox of stimulating consumption by making the price high. There is "overproduction" from the point of view of producers, but not from that of consumers.

Promoting prosperity by making food and clothing scarce is so fantastic a conception on its face as to lead to the unavoidable inference that something is wrong, there is a screw loose, with any economic organization that must resort to such a measure. When such a meaningless situation arises, economics as practiced seem to partake less of the character of a science than of mysticism.

Why Save Room for Dessert When You Know the Ice Cream Is Melting?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THERE is no kind of investment that is safe.

There is no kind of property whose value is unchanged by the years.

Gold dollars laid away in vaults may dwindle in value as goods do on a merchant's shelves.

If you had inherited a fortune of 50,000 gold dollars in the year 1850, and had left the whole of it safely stored in a bank until old age prompted you to make tardy use of it in 1929, you would have found yourself defrauded of more than half of your property.

Every coin might have been intact, but the years would have taken from each dollar more than half of its purchasing power. The dollar that bought two articles in 1850 would have bought only one in 1929. In purchasing power, which is the only measure of money's worth, your 50 thousand dollars would have shrunk to a mere 25 thousand.

When the ordinary man thinks of changing values, he thinks only of goods—of flour, shoes, clothing, rugs, automobiles. But the true value of these things is measured by the quantity of labor required to get them, and this value changes little. For example—though no effort is made to be exact—when the money value of shoes is $2, a day's labor is required to get them; and when the money value of shoes is $10, wages have made a similar advance and a day's labor still represents the same value in footwear.

Apparent changes in the value of goods usually are changes in the value of money.

And because the value of money changes greatly and rapidly, every savings-bank patron who now saves a dollar is defrauding himself of 50 cents.

Every dollar he lays away will shrink to a half-dollar before he is ready to spend it.

His apparent thrift is in fact the worst form of extravagance. He is throwing away half of his savings—wasting half of his labor.

For the article he could buy now for $10—the kind of article bought to last for years—will cost him $20 when business booms again.

Is it thrift to save your pennies when somebody is offering double their value in goods you will need next week?

PRO AND CON

The Bonus Baby.

Minneapolis Journal.

Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, who was chief of staff of the A. E. F. in the war, gave his old comrades something to think about at the American Legion unemployment conference in Washington last Monday. He besought them not to go to the legion convention at Detroit next week "with a program of relief in one hand and a tin cup in the other." He advised them to slow up on bonus demands and to concentrate on their brotherly task of looking after the 750,000 veterans estimated to be out of employment.

This elicited from Howard P. Savage, chairman of the legion's unemployment relief commission, the assurance that if a proper picture of the bonus situation was presented at Detroit, the right answer would be forthcoming. But Mr. Savage added this dark hint:

"I do feel this, that if they keep on goading the fellows into it, they will have a battle. The whole bonus matter, in my opinion, did not originate in the legion convention. It is not our baby."

Regardless of whose baby the bonus is, it is a lusty and voracious infant, whose insistent cries for more pecuniary food are making sleepless nights for the custodians of Uncle Sam's deficit-burdened Treasury.

Some politicians who are worrying about the surplus of wheat, oil, cotton and other commodities are also becoming anxious about a shortage of campaign issues.

Pinchot's About-Face.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Gov. Pinchot's decision to call an extra session of the Legislature to consider relief for the unemployed, representing a right-about-face from his previous position, will be widely commended. Signs had been gathering of a change of mind on the part of the governor since his ill-advised appeal to President Hoover for Federal assistance a month ago, in which he painted the situation in this State in the darkest colors and presented Pennsylvania before the Nation as a suppliant for alms.

Since Gov. Pinchot has now resolved to take the only proper course for handling the coming emergency, inquiry need not be made too closely into the factors that have brought about his change of policy. Doubtless the widespread unfavorable reaction to his petition for Federal aid, both from the people of this and neighboring States, has had its effect. He must also have been influenced by the wholesome examples of self-reliance and self-respect that have been afforded by the governors and people of other States, most of them not to be compared to Pennsylvania in respect of public and private income and wealth of natural resources.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Give a Billion to the "Tin Cup Mendicants," Says Court Wood—We May Need Them Again to Fight.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In yesterday morning's Post Gen. Harbord is quoted as saying: "I can not imagine anything more ridiculous than for you (referring to the legion) to go down to Detroit with a program of relief for the whole country, and at the same time hold out an empty tin cup."

Who are these tin cup mendicants? I'll tell you who they are, they are the ones we called heroes during the World War, standing in the trenches, many times in mud and water, facing the enemy at $30 a month, while business men were home getting rich, some of them making raincoats that did not shed the rain, and overcoats that did not keep the men warm.

Why not be a little generous to these brave and worthy veterans? If they were paid the billion we would not feel it in the least, and it would be given to many in dire need. Stop piling up the four or five hundred million to apply on the public debt, just for one year, and assess a surtax on the incomes of the rich and the entire amount would be realized. These veterans would put the billion in circulation and times would improve.

When the blood in the body ceases to circulate we are dead. Money is the circulating medium of the Nation, and we are partially dead as a Nation because money has ceased to circulate. If we have another war we will want these tin cup mendicants to go to the front again. Why not be good to them in peace? We do not know how soon we shall need them to fight our battles for us.

COURT F. WOOD.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Honored by American Bar Association.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Only three legal lights of America have been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal of the Law bestowed by the American Bar Association. This year the honor falls to Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court. In 1929 Prof. Samuel Williston, of Harvard, was honored, and in 1930 the medal went to Elihu Root.

For more than 30 years Justice Holmes has worn the ermine of the Supreme Court, and in that time he has become noted amongst his fellows for his opinions. Aside from his judicial labors, the jurist is a poet and a philosopher, and his letter of acceptance, issued from a sick room at Beverley Farms, Mass., and penned in longhand, contains all the elements of a fine philosophy.

"If," writes the learned jurist, "we have helped to throw light upon the general scope of any subject, or some part of it, we have so far helped our fellows along a predestined road and have been of use. It has been the deepest wish and passion of my soul to do something of this service and, although, as one draws to the end, every human effort seems small, the American Bar Association has done all that could be done to assure me that the long struggle has not been in vain."

In a long life of usefulness, distinguished by some of the happiest writing ever contributed to American literature, this eminent jurist need never fear that he has failed to fill his niche in the ranks of a proud profession, and fill it with honor.

As the schools will open very soon would it not be a good idea to publish same again?

THE CHEAT.

Ill-gotten fame has this about it still,
The dismal knowledge that the work was ill.
The cheat who wins knows this; he soon must meet
The stronger warrior or the cleverer cheat.
Crowns undeserved are never worn for long,
Who gains a prize worth keeping must stay strong.

Once in a contest all unseen a youth
Seeking high glory fell away from truth;
Gained by deceit the title and the prize
And for the moment thought his cunning wise.
But calm reflection troubled him at night.
There still remained stern challengers to fight.

Could he expect his title to retain
Another chance, unseen, to cheat again?
Not quite so trusting might the next man be,
A keener umpire might his cunning see;
Forced in an open field, fair means to use,
His poorly-purchased title he would lose.

The boy grew worried. On his heels they pressed,
Strong men and clever, eager for the test,
And day by day and night by night in fear
He saw his sturdy conqueror drawing near,
And lacking strength in honor to compete,
He lost the crown the day he couldn't cheat.

Cross to Wed Daughter of Treasury Aid

Engagement of Miss Barbara Ballantine Is Announced.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Arthur A. Ballantine announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Barbara Ballantine, to Mr. John Cross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cross, of Weston, Mass. The wedding will take place in December in Washington.

Miss Ballantine was graduated from the Brearley School in 1927, and the following winter was presented to society in New York. She is a member of the Junior League of that city. Washington has seen little of her since her parents came to the Capital to reside last winter, following Mr. Ballantine's appointment to succeed Mr. Walter Ewing Hope as Assitsant Secretary of the Treasury. And now, with her marriage only the matter of a few months away and Boston designated as her future home, members of the younger set here will have little chance to know her. She is the eldest of the three Ballantine children. The others are Helen and Arthur A., Jr., who is a student at Milton Academy, preparing to enter his father's alma mater, Harvard University.

Mr. Cross was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1930. He is associated with the Dewey & Almy Chemical Co., in Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Ballantine and her children have divided their time this summer between their Long Island residence and Hot Springs, Va., and Mr. Ballantine has joined his family over week-ends. In Washington they reside at 1757 N street, which was the home of Mr. Ballantine's predecessor, Mr. Hope.

Mrs. George Steele, wife of Capt. Steele, former naval attache of the American Embassy in Paris, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Alex R. Thompson, of New York, is at Old Point Comfort, Va., at the Chamberlin, where she plans to remain until November. Capt. Steele, now in charge of aviation at the naval base, arrived in Old Point Comfort Saturday to join Mrs. Steele.

Miss Louise Robbins, of Indianapolis, has arrived here to spend a month at the National Capital. She is living at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mrs. Louis Lehr and Miss Mary Elkins Reed, who have been abroad for several months, traveling in France, Germany, Italy, Belgium and England, recently arrived in Quebec and are at Bar Harbor for the early autumn. Later Mrs. Lehr will return to her home in Washington and Miss Reed to Baltimore.

Mrs. Thomas S. Weaver, of Nashville, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Martha, to Mr. George O'Bryan Bailey, of this city, the wedding to take place in the early fall.

Mr. Bailey is the son of Associate Justice Jennings Bailey, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

Debut Not Abandoned By Miss Leslie Wright.

The Post regrets its erroneous statement regarding Miss Leslie Wright, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton Wright, who has not abandoned her debut, but will be presented to society in November at a dance to be announced later.

The marriage has been announced of Miss Adele Wiseman Gantt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Orris Gannt, of McLean, Fairfax County, Va., to Mr. James Philip Rogers, son of the late Mr. Edward E. Rogers, of Middletown, Pa., and Mrs. Nellie Rogers, on Thursday, September 17, in the Western Presbyterian Church in this city, the Rev. J. H. Dunham, pastor, officiating. The bride was unattended and wore an ensemble suit of dark blue flat crepe with accessories to match. The $ Saves You $ by Saving Your Manhattan Washes Your Clothes in Net Bags to Keep Out the Wear . . . and Delivers Them in Three Short Days!

YOU, like every other woman, must make your choice. You must either put up with the work and worry of home laundering or send everything to a good modern laundry such as Manhattan.

A surprising number of women have caught on to the fact that Manhattan not only turns out beautiful work but actually saves them money! And there's a logical reason.

Here everything is washed in soft Net Bags to keep out the wear that wears out clothes. As a result even delicate fabrics last far longer.

Pure palm oil soap suds swirl through these bags, loosening the dirt without scrubbing. Floods of soft filtered water rinse it away. And your clothes come home in three short days—fresh and clean as new. All at no extra cost.

Give our unusual laundry a trial. We know we can please you. And we promise you extra wear at no extra cost. Your routeman is waiting to call and explain our many money saving services. Telephone for him today—now!

Net Bags Save You Money By Saving Your Clothes

VIRGINIA OFFICE: WILSON BOULEVARD AND MILITARY ROAD, ROSSLYN, VIRGINIA

Modern Laundry Expert Explains "Net Bag System"

Tells How Manhattan Saves You Money By Saving Your Clothes

Present day laundry methods, which preserve clothes as well as clean them, are far superior to the old home method of rubbing and scrubbing, according to Mr. E. F. Wesely, chief of the Research Department of Manhattan Laundry. Mr. Wesely attributes a large part of the Manhattan Laundry's success to their Net Bag System.

Manhattan's famous Net Bag System of washing, as described by Mr. Wesely, follows: First, the clothes are assorted according to their color and material and placed in individual net bags which bear the customer's name and contain only that customer's articles. Safe in the nets and protected from all metal or other hard surfaces, the clothes go into the washers. Here they are subjected to the gentle cleansing action of swirling hot suds which penetrate each garment and loosen every particle of dirt. Only the purest of Palm Oil soaps and soft, filtered water are used, after first having been inspected and tested by the Research Department. Many rinsings of fresh, clear water follow, removing every trace of dirt. This thorough care in washing is one reason why Manhattan laundered clothes stay new-looking so much longer.

Customer Praises Net Bags

In a recent letter to the Manhattan Laundry, Mrs. E. R. D. writes:

". . . But the one actual fact that pleases me most is that the clothes do not show as much wear as they did when I had my laundry done at home . . . It is indeed a pleasure to recommend you . . ."

This letter is typical of the many received by Manhattan from satisfied customers throughout the District of Columbia and Virginia.

3-Day Collection and Delivery

Quite another Manhattan feature which has found great favor with Washington housewives is their 3-Day Collection and Delivery Service. In this highly developed system your clothes are collected one day, laundered to your order the next and delivered to you promptly the afternoon of the third day. For instance, if your clothes are collected Monday morning they are delivered Wednesday afternoon; called for Tuesday, back home Thursday, and so on. No delay. No worry. And there is no additional charge for this extra service.

Services to Fit Every Need

Manhattan offers the housewife a wide selection of economical services — from Complete Finished Family to individual piece work. There is a service to fit every need and purse, and every service receives Net Bag Care—which saves you money by saving your clothes.

SOIL FOR POTTED PLANTS.

NOW that plants are being potted for house decoration, I am receiving so many inquiries regarding soil. Many have the impression that almost any soil will do for house plants. Now, while I must admit that most plants grow in any soil, it is also true that to get the best results you must, in a measure, adapt the soil to the plant.

For example, should your soil be rather heavy, with more clay than loam in it, you can easily change it by adding sand. Thus you will have converted an almost impossible soil for some kinds of plants into a light, friable one that will furnish the necessary elements for the development of all varieties with strong roots. Any kind of sand available will do, but coarse, sharp sand is best.

By experimenting with the soil, you will be able to determine the quantity needed. A good test is to mix some soil and sand together, then take it up in the hand and squeeze it firmly together. If, when the pressure is relaxed, the soil crumbles and falls apart, or even shows a tendency to do so, it is safe to conclude that you have used enough sand.

This will make an ideal soil for most strong-wooded plants. Plants having finer roots, of the fibrous sort, will do better in a soil containing more loam than clay. Leaf mold suits them even better than loam. It is impossible to give very definite instructions along this line, for some plants are a law unto themselves. Many kinds of plants like the gloxinia, fuchsia and some varieties of begonia do best in a soil composed largely of leaf mold. Leaf mold has a large percentage of vegetable matter, which is essential to many of our soft-wooded plants.

Should you live where leaf mold is unobtainable, let me tell you of a substitute that will prove almost, if not quite, as valuable. This substitute is to be found on the under side of old sod. Cut the sod with a spade (or a knife, if you are only potting a plant or two) and turn it over. You will find that immediately below the grass is a soil full of very fine, hair-like roots. Shave this off and use it in place of leaf mold.

Real leaf mold comes from the woods. You can find it where old leaves have drifted into hollows about the roots of old trees, where they have lain until thoroughly decomposed. This soil is fine and mellow, almost black in color and very rich in fertilizing elements.

Always use sand when using either of the above-mentioned soils. This must be added to keep the loam porous. Not so much sand as when clay or garden loam is the basis of your soil. Leaf mold is springy and will not pack and become hard as does clay when it is watered.

Finely ground bonemeal is a welcome addition to most soil used for potting house plants, and is a safe form of nourishment.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RADIO Week opens tonight and will be observed in Washington by the first annual radio and electric show, sponsored by the Electric League of Washington. Likewise tonight the eighth annual display of new radio set models opens in Madison Square Garden, New York.

The show at the Washington Auditorium has many added attractions of particular interest to radio listeners, starting off tonight with Raymond Knight's "Microphobia"—a two-hour entertainment featuring several radio celebrities.

With less than 36 hours' notice, the coast-to-coast facilities of both networks were made available for distribution of President Hoover's address before the American Legion, meeting in Detroit. Two hours after the President decided to discuss the bonus with the legionnaires, the broadcasters were in the midst of arrangements for the most hurriedly arranged presidential broadcast to date.

WHEN a suspicious character looking like the picture in the paper of George E. Hicks, charged by police with 61 burglaries, who talked his way out of the Twelfth Precinct Station, came to our door and other houses along California street at 7 o'clock Friday night, and his presence was telephoned to police headquarters, who replied that some one would be sent immediately; we said to ourselves: "Here we will see a practical example of how our widely advertised police radio alarm works."

Having heard how suspects were frequently nabbed a minute or so after a citizen had telephoned headquarters, we naturally expected to quickly hear police cruising cars with shrieking sirens come sizzling down the street.

The suspect, telling an oily story of how, if he could raise enough money, he would go to Bayonne where a job was waiting for him as oiler on an oil tanker, in the meantime had disappeared, leisurely walking in the direction of Massachusetts avenue.

There was, however, no need for him to hurry because so far as known, no radio alarm was ever sounded, no shrieking sirens broke the night air, and apparently not the slightest attention was ever paid to the call of the citizens who feel sure they were on the track of the suspect the police allowed to walk away from them.

The man, whose actions were suspicious enough to cause him to be questioned irregardless of whether or not he was Hicks, the alleged burglar, could have easily been apprehended almost any time up to a half an hour.

With the radio system we now have—one of the most up-to-date in the country—it should have taken only a matter of a few minutes, but as yet no one from the Police Department has been around to investigate.

Hope has not been quite abandoned, however, because one of the neighbors told of a case of a prominent Washington jeweler telling her of spotting a suspect and notifying headquarters, telling them he would keep him engaged until the arrival of the police.

Two days later, according to the jeweler, an individual from headquarters appeared saying, "Did you send for a detective around here?".

PROBABLY the first man in the United States to be so engaged, George A. Mahone, of Baltimore, is a radio station broker. Mr. Mahone, a lawyer and radio engineer formerly connected with WFBR, Baltimore, recently leased by the NBC, keeps an eye on the smaller stations of the country.

Whenever one of them appears to be wobbly financially or about ready to blow up, he seeks to refinance or find a buyer for it.

While it is true that many of the smaller stations of the country are making money, a large number of others which have been hanging on in the hopes of realizing something on their wave lengths are just about ready to give up the ghost.

Downing rumors that the plans for the Chicago radio trade show have been abandoned for this year, Arthur Stringer, who stages it, declares that it has been postponed until January 18-24, 1932, when it will be held in the Chicago Coliseum. The major radio set manufacturers have the feeling that the New York and Chicago shows have been held too close together and that a combination trade and public show nearly half a year after the New York display would greatly benefit the industry.

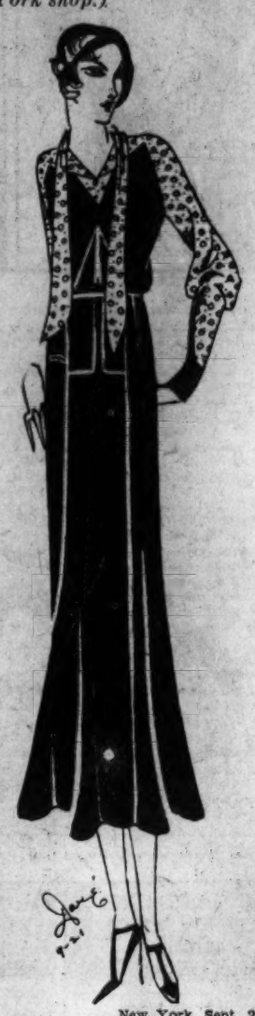
Jane Interprets the Mode

Purple wool crepe and beaded beige crepe de chine are used in this very wearable early autumn ensemble, with an odd shoulder yoke, sleeves and scarf. (Sketched in a New York shop.)



New York, Sept. 20.

"AND behold—all was brilliance and light. And though the night was dark, color and light flowed around about us and we were dazzled and made joyful and woes were forgotten and onr joy was the joy of a child!" What was the ancient vesta! virgin, Calestra, talking about, when she discussed her vision with her other attendant maidens?

Could she by any chance, have been discussing the recent rendezvous of smart women at Saratoga's nightly haunts? Her words wouldn't have been far fetched if she had used them thus.

For in color, concept and material, all the evening gowns seen at Saratoga's nightly gatherings during the races were examples of brilliance and light—and how! And the nights may have been dark, or warm, or almost anything, but they in no way stopped the romantically beautiful evening gowns from appearing at the smartest balls. Each costume differed from its neighbors, each was brilliant in color, and each well worth the scrutiny of a Fastun Cricket rather more up-to-date in her knowledge of things than Calestra.

One frock, for instance, was of emerald green taffeta, with matching taffeta ruchings as shoulder straps and the width of the skirt emphasized by graduated ruchings in rows from the knees to the just-off-the-floor hem. Another very effective frock was of silver net, with long puffed sleeves braceleted in gleaming, square-cut sapphire beads, with a belt of the same stones and a wide band of silver fox midway between the knee and the ankle on the plain and rather tight skirt.

O-o-o-h, Calestra's words, had they applied to "The Season" at Saratoga, wouldn't have been a bit exaggerated!

* * * *

Wearability is one of the most desirable features of the clothes we buy for autumn wear—and, of course, that includes beauty! The ensemble I have sketched today is of dark purple wool crepe, with an odd shoulder yoke of beige crepe de chine, beaded in tiny purple bead circles. The simple scarf is attached right to the collar, and can be adjusted as Miladi pleases. And because puffed sleeves are the very newest way to enhance graceful arms, the shoulder yoke is extended into sleeves that puff just below the elbow and are very tight from there to the wrist, with a cuff of the purple wool crepe.

* * * *

And the three-quarter length coat to this ensemble has the new broad, well-emphasized shoulders and turned-back lapels that reach to the hem!

* * * *

* * * *

You can so make them—and make much nicer ones than you can buy in the stores! It's only a matter of satin and elastic and eyelets and knowing what to do with 'em, after all. 'N' if you'll buy the elastic and the satin and the eyelets, and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right away to the Dare department of The Post, you'll get a leaflet telling you just how easy it is to put them together in the form of the most effective corset you've ever owned! And the best part of it is that the materials for this marvelous corset will cost only a tiny fraction of what a much inferior corset would.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

IF September 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:50 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:35 p. m. The danger hours are from 12:10 p. m. to 2:50 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of September 21 denote slightly favorable but not important influences. Things promise to run pretty smoothly, and those who have literary or artistic ambitions would do well to concentrate on their work. Married women are assured an exceptionally happy time in their home life.

Children born on this September 21 will have active minds, much originality, considerable pride and an acute conscience. They will be on the level, affectionate and kind in the home, and their horoscope denotes not a spectacular but a continuous success combined with much happiness and content.

You, if born on September 21, have a subtle and versatile brain. You are, however, difficult to understand, and blow "hot and cold" almost at the same moment. You are quick mentally and rapid in thought. While others are puzzling a way out of a difficulty, you have solved it. If you were not so changeable in purpose—and you rarely show continuity of method—your future would be a brilliant one.

As a social companion you are delightful when the environment pleases you. When it does not, however, you can make yourself very disagreeable. In your heart you persuade yourself that you are constant and faithful. Although strong, you are disposed to overtax your prowess by endeavoring to accomplish too much.

You have hosts of friends and are kind-hearted and generous to those near you. Absence does not make the heart grow fonder in your case. "Out of sight, out of mind," fits your attitude more aptly. You are highly strung and restless and must be always on the move. You, owing to the uncertainty of your disposition and unreliability of your temperament, often abandon your ambition at the very moment of success and see others reap the reward for which you have worked.

(Serving 6.)

1 cup kidney beans
1 cup diced roast beef
1 cup diced celery
2 hard cooked eggs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons chopped onions
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
¾ cup salad dressing
¼ teaspoon paprika

Mix ingredients and chill. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Jelly Tarts (Cookies).

1 cup fat
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
2 tablespoons cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon extract
1 teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
4 cups flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup currant jelly

Cream the fat and add the sugar. Add the eggs and cream. Beat well. Add the vanilla, lemon, nutmeg, salt, flour and cream of tartar. Roll out stiff dough until very thin. Select cookie and doughnut cutter of the same diameters. Cut out cookies and then use doughnut cutter and cut out equal number of rings. Moisten under sides of rings with milk and place on top cut out rounds. Place 2 inches apart on greased baking sheets and bake twelve minutes in moderate oven. When cool, place cubes of jelly in "holes."

To clean grease spots from silk, rub cake magnesia into the spot. Let stand a day and brush off with clean brush. It is advisable to keep cake of magnesia on hand as it is very effective as a cleaner.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

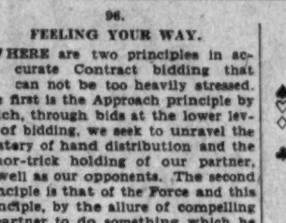
FEELING YOUR WAY.

THERE are two principles in accurate Contract bidding that can not be too heavily stressed. The first is the Approach principle by which, through bids at the lower levels of bidding, we seek to unravel the mystery of hand distribution and the honor-trick holding of our partner, as well as our opponents. The second principle is that of the Force and this principle, by the allure of compelling a partner to do something which he would not freely do, has a tremendous appeal to many players. In fact, its appeal is so great that losses are sometimes accepted by players who force on hands not strong enough to justify it. I am indebted to Mrs. R. M. Tenney, of Rockford, Ill., for a very interesting hand which gives point to these observations.

South Dealer.

East and West vulnerable. North and South not vulnerable.



The Bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1◇(1)	1♠	2♣(2)
Pass	2♠(3)	Pass	3NT(4)
Pass	6♠(5)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—west's hand looks very powerful, but it counts only 4½ honor-tricks and the heart and club tenaces make inadvisable opening with a Forcing bid of two, as the diamond suit has the possibility of one loser and the distribution is extremely unfavorable to the ultimate play of the hand at no-trump, which is a strong possibility if West forces a response from her partner.

2—East's hand is really quite strong opposite a partner who has opened the bidding. With 1½ honor-tricks a pass might be misconstrued.

3—West encouraged by her partner's bid now shows no losers in the spade suit.

4—East by this bid shows that the Takeout was a minimum, but indicates a probable stopper in spades inasmuch as West's two spade bid may be based on a void in that suit.

5—Holding four of partner's proposed trumps headed by the K J, West feels that all that is necessary for a slam is to find either the Ace or Queen of hearts in her partner's hand. One of these cards would seem to be an essential honor to give East the strength to have made even one overcall.

The play of the hand, of course, is quite simple. West's judgment that the combined hands contain only one loser was confirmed. The distribution of the trump suit was such that East did not even need to risk a finesse in diamonds, as West's surplus trumps were available for trumping the two losing spades.

TODAY'S POINTER.

The tactical structure of surprise bids rests upon three essential requirements:

1—The possibility that partner—who is also misled—might interfere must always be carefully weighed. The advantage of surprising the opponents must outweigh the disadvantage of misleading the partner. Only such bidding situations should be chosen for "psychic" bids where partner's possible inference can do no harm, or where subsequent bidding will give a clear cue to him.

2—The player, as a rule, must have in reserve an "escape bid" of sufficient strength to carry the bidding high without risking severe penalty. This "escape bid," which usually consists of a long and fairly powerful suit, offers a safe retreat not only against opponents but against partner's possible inference. Without elements of real strength in the hand any surprise bid is a bomb charged with sawdust.

3—In passing for a swing or in making an aggressive bid in one suit in order to conceal strength elsewhere the player must be reasonably certain that the bidding will be kept open either by opponents or by part-

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

PROPINQUITY.

STRANGE how we humans love hokum and hate truth. We revel in believing ourselves actors in a great drama of love, when we are just being rather silly for want of something better to do. We love to picture ourselves swept along on a great tide of circumstances when we are, as a matter of fact, just standing on shore, hoping the tide will come our way! That is what Helen is doing and that is what thousands of silly women the world over are doing—and probably will go on doing until old age catches up with them and ends the game for good. Is Helen "suffering" half as much as she thinks she is. Or is she having rather a good time in a pretty cheap fashion.

Dear Frances McDonald: I hardly know where to begin, nor whose fault it is. I know that I am suffering greatly, but seem powerless to do anything to put an end to what has become a situation beyond my control. To begin with, we have had some business reverses, and in order to keep up the payments on our home, my husband suggested that we take one of the fellows at the office to room with us. I never had liked this fellow. He had always seemed to me to be too forward and pushy. I try to keep reminding myself of all these things now, but it does no good. I just live for the moment he comes in. I can't imagine what I did or thought about before I knew him, for I have no thought beyond him now.

My husband, of course, does not dream that I am interested in him, and recently suggested that he board as well as room with us. In fact he wanted that at the start, but I said it was bad enough to have him in the house without having to look at him every meal. Well, now he eats with us and is like one of the family. The three of us go to the movies every evening or sit around and play cards. Then have a cup of cocoa and a sandwich and could say everything was perfect except that when my husband is not around. I think this man must know how I feel toward him. He pretends to be just joking, but is always telling me how cute I am, how he would not mind being married, if he could find my twin. But he never sits outside his own room if my husband is not home. Always has something to do.

I know that he is in love with me. I found a small snap shot of me under another picture in his room. He had taken it from a pile in the living room. Yet he just pretends to kid about liking me. The only way I can get him out of his room when we are alone is to pretend I need help with something. Then he is all there. I hate myself for doing things like that, but that is how I am. I seem in a dream or something, where I can not help myself. I have thought of telling him how I feel and asking him to go. But I am afraid that he might make things worse—as I know that he feels the same way toward me that I feel toward him. Should I tell him? I simply can't tell my husband, as he would never believe that we had not made love. What should I do?

HELEN.

There you have it. The great love of a lifetime. The big hokum. The old story of the boarder and the silly woman. No wonder the poor man stays in his room—wondering whether there is one sensible woman left in the world, or one with the least sense of honor and dignity. There are just two things Helen can do. She can tell her husband that she is tired of keeping a boarder. Or she can tell herself that she is being pretty cheap and snap out of it—quick. But Helen will probably do neither. That is why men think slightly of women.

It has been proven many times that Business opportunities, or merchandise for sale in the Classified Columns of The Post are worth investigating.

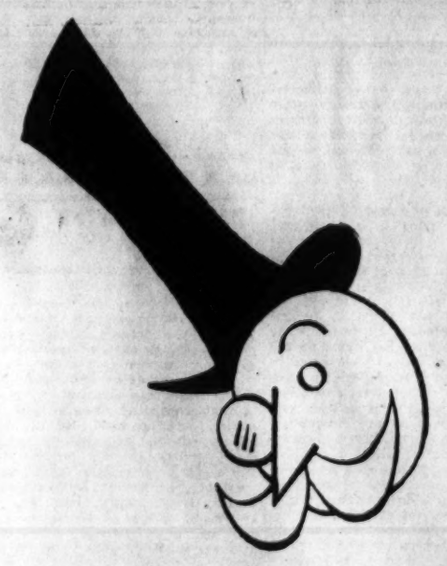
What this country needed was a good



Five Cent Nickel

And as far as food is concerned, we've succeeded in filling the need. It used to cost so much to get food from where it was raised to where it was eaten that the best part of every nickel went—not to pay for the food—but to pay many profits and many handling charges on the way.

We don't buy our food from somebody, who bought it from somebody, who bought it from somebody else—and so forth—with a profit added each time it changes hands. We go for food direct to the men who produce it, and we sell it to you at a single profit.

And so you get the best food in an A & P store at a low price. For nearly all of the money you spend in our stores goes to pay for food, and a very small part of it goes to profits and expenses.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHERE THY KEEP TRACK OF CONTAGION.

THE United States census office is responsible for two types of what they call registration areas. The first of these is what is termed the registration area for deaths. If the State has an approved law for the registration of deaths and if, upon investigation, it is found that the enforcement of the law is more than 90 per cent perfect, they enter that State in this registration area.

The advantage of being in this area is that life insurance companies, business concerns, economists and statisticians accept the vital statistics of the States in this area, while they reject as unproved the claim of healthfulness made by States outside the area. When this plan was adopted American vital statistics were in disrepute all over the world. This is not the case now. A few years later the same agency started a registration area for births. Thanks to this effort—at least, in great measure—birth registration approaches a satisfactory basis in most of the States of the Union. In Canada conditions are somewhat better.

The United States Public Health Service is now set to apply a similar plan to communicable diseases, by establishing what they call a morbidity registration area. States which have good laws for the reporting of communicable diseases, such as smallpox, in which these laws are reasonably well carried out, are entitled to entry in the registration area.

They proposed this plan a few years ago, and got the formal approval of the State health departments. They next began a survey of the States, to discover which had good laws and in which the enforcement was above a certain level of efficiency. As a result of several years' investigation, they are arranging to establish a registration area which includes the following States: California, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Illinois, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The States rejected as below grade were Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Tennessee, Texas and West Virginia.

States that were rejected because of incomplete proof were Georgia, Montana, Nevada and New Mexico.

It was found that smallpox was well reported. On the other hand, not over one-half of the consumption is registered. Therefore, these diseases were rejected in the selection of standards by which to measure the different States. It was finally decided to accept in the registration area those States in which, for a term of years, more than 75 per cent of the cases of five diseases were registered. The diseases were diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, typhoid fever and whooping cough.

New York appears to lead all the States in meeting the standards set. Their record was 145 per cent of the expectancy, using a term of insurance actuaries. That of Maine was 96 per cent.

GRAVEL IN THE URINE.

A reader writes: Is there any remedy for gravel in the urine?

REPLY.

If gravel forms it should pass, else it might be cemented into stones. The diet to prevent the deposit of gravel depends on the chemical constitution of the gravel and, somewhat, upon that of the urine. The most frequently encountered gravel is that composed of uric acid and urates. To prevent this the diet should consist principally of vegetables, fruits, breads, cereals, fats, and sugars. The foods to be eaten sparingly, or not at all, are sweetbreads, liver, kidney, beef tea, roe, and eggs. Foods as to which there can be more leeway are sauces, meats generally, peas and beans, coffee, and tea.

In any event, a person subject to gravel should drink an abundance of water and should use no alcoholic beverages.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Curiously enough a youthful feeling usually accompanies a dress with a capelet collar. And it's practical and smart too when the capelet falls sufficiently over the arms to take the place of sleeves as does today's pretty model.

The skirt displays slimness in low-flared skirt flounce and smooth fitting hip sections.

And how simple it is to make it! Just try it in a printed crepe silk. You'll want to make another in a sheer printed cotton as batiste or lawn. Linen prints and eyelet embroidered batiste make up lovely.

SHELTON HEARING OPENS TOMORROW

Alexandria Selected as Site for Trial of Minister on Woman's Charges.

The trial of the Rev. William A. Shelton, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South, on charges of an unrevealed nature preferred by his former secretary, Miss Carry A. Williams, will open in Alexandria tomorrow. Church officials refuse to disclose just where the ecclesiastical hearing will be held but it will probably be in the young people's building of the Alexandria M. E. Church.

An attempt to move the trial to Fredericksburg, Va., was blocked by the protests of supporters of the accused pastor. Many character witnesses will be heard in the pastor's defense, they say, and the removal of the hearing to a too-distant point would have worked a hardship on the defense.

The removal of the trial to Fredericksburg, it is believed, was suggested by Bishop E. D. Mouzon, of Charlotte, N. C., who is head of this conference. Bishop Mouzon's idea, it is believed, in suggesting removal of the trial, was to avoid, as far as possible, any publicity. Bishop Mouzon has consistently refused to divulge any information on the entire affair.

Some members of the congregation, however, and especially friends of the accused pastor, are opposed to a secret hearing. They seek to have the hearing opened to representatives of the press, claiming that the pastor will be readily vindicated and that full details, in justice to Dr. Shelton, should be immediately made public.

Miss Williams, whose address is 3822 Forty-first street northwest, has steadfastly refused to talk and will not reveal what charge she made against the pastor.

Dr. E. V. Regester, former presiding elder of the Washington district, will act as prosecutor. The Rev. J. Rives, of the Francis Asbury Church; the Rev. H. H. Sherman, of the Board of Christian Education, and Raymond B. Dickie, a local attorney, will defend Dr. Shelton.

Arlington School P.-T. A. to Install

Brown and Aids to Take Office at Meeting on Thursday Night.

The newly elected officers of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington-Lee High School at Arlington will be installed at a meeting to be held in the school auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

Those to be installed are Harold M. Brown, president; Mrs. Norman E. Sims, first vice president; F. E. Schutze, second vice president; Mrs. George Tabor, third vice president; Mrs. Joseph E. Shawhan, recording secretary; Mrs. O. E. Daue, assistant secretary and historian; Miss Eva L. Harbaugh, correspondting secretary, and Miss Ellen P. Fox, treasurer.

Concluding the installation of the new officers there will be a reception to the teachers, with an especially arranged program of entertainment. Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, is announced as the principal speaker.

Baptists Hear Report On National Convention

An echo meeting covering conventions of the Mount Bethel Baptist Association and the National Baptist Convention was held last night in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church, Sixth and G streets.

The Rev. James H. Marshall, pastor, give a graphic account of the recent national convention at Atlanta, while Miss M. M. Kimball told of the work of the women's department. The Rev. Richard Johnson, 93 years old, a founder of the Mount Bethel Association, together with the Rev. James E. Marshall, William C. Green and Joseph Hall, outlined the anniversary program of that organization in relation to its activities during the past 57 years in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia. Mrs. L. A. Pinckney presided. Musical numbers were rendered.

Ballston Church Session Set.

The Rev. W. H. Pinkerton, of Washington, will be the principal speaker at a dinner meeting of the council, officers, teachers and official board of the Ballston Christian Church tomorrow evening.

Carrier Pigeon Meets Its Death Under Auto

If a carrier pigeon dispatched by some Washington pigeon fancier fails to come a-homing, Miss A. F. Story, of Amherst, Va., knows the secret of its interrupted mission.

"Yesterday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, we saw a beautiful pigeon on our lawn," she wrote The Post. "About 10 minutes later friends found it on the highway, killed by an auto.

"Band on its leg was marked 'W-D-C-2821—Au-31.'"

TAX ON INCOME CUT BY FAIRFAX DROUGHT

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The figures compiled recently by Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe of Fairfax County, which have been forwarded to the State Department of Taxation in Richmond, reflect the effect of the past two years of drought on the farmers of Fairfax and on the incomes of county merchants. The income tax for last year was on $29,848.63 for the citizens of the county, while this year they will only pay $15,327.55.

It has been stated that Fairfax County is making a better showing this year than many of the other counties in the State, since many residents derive their incomes from the Federal Government. Fairfax County residents will pay $36,927.82 to the State in taxes on intangible property, valued at $4,515,539. This includes $17,850.94 on bonds and notes valued at $3,570,188; $1,946.85 on $923,425 on deposit in the banks; $164.46 on merchants capital; $21.07 in penalties and $17,044.50 in capitation taxes.

Of the total tax on intangibles, white persons will pay $34,380.62 and colored $2,547.20. This has been divided among the several districts of the county as follows: Centerville, $2,553.09; Dranesville district, $2,889.40; Falls Church, $3,839.19; Lee district, $2,410.05; Mount Vernon district, $5,724.61, and Providence district, $10,468.46. Incorporated towns will pay, Clifton, $544.58; Herndon, $1,663.96; Falls Church, $2,858.37; Fairfax, $2,754.63; West Falls Church, $72.60, and Vienna, $1,048.08.

Tangibles Show Drop.

Tangible personal property valued at $2,382,192 will raise $54,315.52. Last year's valuation was $2,523,684. The valuation this year has been divided as follows: $2,123,512 for tangible property; $10,000 for machinery and tools and $248,680 for merchants' capital. Merchants' capital a year ago was $262,194. The decrease from $2,267,190 in tangible property a year ago is believed to have been caused by the selling of cows and other live stock last year when feed was scarce.

Of the amount of taxes paid on tangibles, Centerville district will pay $3,904.47; Dranesville district, $9,191.89; Falls Church district, $7,187.55; Lee district, $3,131.67; Mount Vernon district, $7,497.30; and Providence district, $14,218.03. Of the towns, Herndon will pay, $3,232.54; Falls Church, $3,007.09; Fairfax, $1,534.56; Vienna $1,049.49 and West Falls Church, $101.25.

Land and Buildings Up.

The general recapitulation figures show that land and buildings are assessed to pay $284,133.73 as compared with $258,249.73 last year. Part of the increase is for new construction and part represents increased values made by the board of assessors. The country districts will pay $249,747.75 and the towns $34,382.35. White persons will pay $269,647.88 and colored persons $14,495.85 in land taxes.

In Centerville district, the 46,647 acres of farm land and the town of Clifton have a total valuation of $908,936 and will pay, $20,895.11 in taxes, as compared with $984,839 and $22,516.86 last year.

Dranesville district with 49,908 acres and the town of Herndon are valued at $1,511,197 and a tax of $48,025.33 which is also a decrease from the previous valuation of $1,587,130 and a tax of $51,348.39.

Falls Church district, with 22,412 acres, and the town of Falls Church, are valued at $2,314,084 and will pay $62,324.67, an increase from $1,906,789 and a tax of $53,842.42 last year.

Mount Vernon Gains.

Lee district, with 39,272 acres, has a valuation of $668,631, with a tax of $15,044.20, a decrease from $704,784 and a tax of $16,562.42.

Mount Vernon district shows the largest increase in valuation and tax, the assessment this year is $2,285,829 as compared with $1,526,346 last year. The tax this year will be $56,002.80 as compared with $38,921.83 last year.

Providence district, with 42,415 acres, and the towns of Vienna and Fairfax, and West Falls Church, will pay $81,841.62 on a valuation of $3,667,883. The taxes paid last year were $75,057.80 with a valuation of $3,257,301.

The value of property owned by corporations in the county, and any taxes to be paid the State or county are computed by the State Corporation Commission and are not included in the present figures. They will be transmitted to the County Commissioner of Revenue before the taxes become due this year.

School Curtailment Is Up for Discussion

A meeting of the Andrew Chapel School and Community League has been called for tonight in the school house at Andrew Chapel on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike, about four miles west of Tyson's Cross Roads. The members will discuss the recent action of the Fairfax County school board reducing the school to a one-room teacher plant, and the possibility that the building will be closed later.

The board plans to transfer the teacher of the upper grades, Miss Margaret Finley, to the school at Vienna to teach the sixth and seventh grades. The primary grades teacher, Mrs. Marion Money, will go to the Lee-Jackson school to assist in teaching the second and third grades, which have been reported greatly overcrowded. The pupils of the Andrew Chapel school will be transferred to the Vienna school as soon as transportation can be arranged.

VIRGINIA RAIL GROUP TO SEEK REHEARING

Session in Alexandria Today To Hear Tabulation of 1,500 Inquiries.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Citizens from Alexandria and the counties of Arlington and Fairfax, appointed members of a committee to consider proposed abandonment of the electric railway between Alexandria and Washington, will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Arrangements will be made for appearing once more before the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia to urge that a terminal for the electric line be permitted north of Pennsylvania avenue.

A report on 1,500 questionnaires recently sent out will be submitted at this meeting, the work of tabulating replies having just been completed. It is understood a site for the terminal south of the Avenue has been offered but is not considered satisfactory.

With sixteen State conventions scheduled for Alexandria in 1932, in addition to five major celebrations which will be held in the city, it is apparent that hotel accommodations will be inadequate to accommodate the visitors, and many private homes are expected to be thrown open for their entertainment.

Two conventions which are expected to draw largest attendance are those of the American Legion, which usually means approximately 2,000 visitors, but which will probably be much larger in 1932, and the State Firemen's Association which, with its auxiliary, is expected to surpass all previous conventions in point of attendance. In a majority of the other fourteen conventions, it is expected hotel accommodations will be adequate.

The five major celebrations will be Washington's Birthday, marked by a big parade; dedication of the George Washington Masonic National Temple, which will be attended by Masons from all sections of the United States and several foreign countries, May 14; the Fourth of July, with an elaborate program; Labor Day, with a pageant, and Thanksgiving Day, also with a pageant.

Tax bills which will soon be sent out by City Collector Purvis Taylor for the second half of the current year will, unless paid prior to the expiration of the final date, in the event the taxes for the first half of the year have not been paid, carry penalties and interest amounting to 13 per cent of the original bill. This is arrived at by adding 7 per cent for delinquency for the first year, and another 6 per cent at the beginning of the second year.

Unpaid tax bills are understood to be larger at the present time than for a number of years, and the city collector has been instructed by the city council to make every effort to make collections. Mr. Taylor holds that if the average person realized the heavy penalty he pays for delinquency he would make immediate settlement, as it would be much cheaper to borrow the money and pay interest than to pay both penalty and interest imposed by the city for nonpayment.

School Dentistry Program Changed

Arlington Children Will Get Treatment Only in Low Grades.

Dr. C. R. Boyland, county school dentist, will divide his time among the elementary schools this year according to enrollment, according to Dr. P. M. Chichester, Arlington County health officer. He will treat only the pupils in the first, second and third grades.

This new schedule, Dr. Chichester stated, is due to the fact that it is impossible for one person to take care of all the grades in the eighteen elementary schools. Proper care for the teeth in early life will reduce to a large degree any need for work in grades above the third, said Dr. Chichester.

He announced further that the tuberculosis clinic held monthly during the school year by Dr. H. A. Latane, of Alexandria, will be conducted Wednesday at the Jefferson District health center from 10 o'clock in the morning until 1 p. m.

Red Cross to Open Work in Clarendon

Sailors' Christmas Bags to Be First Care for Fall Efforts.

Arlington County Chapter of the American Red Cross will open headquarters in the Rucker Building at Clarendon tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, according to an announcement yesterday by Mrs. Bertha Kelly, chairman.

At that time, says Mrs. Kelly, work will be started on Christmas bags for sailors of the American Navy who are in foreign waters.

The headquarters will be open each Tuesday through the fall and winter. The Christmas bags for the sailors will be shipped within a month.

Engineers' Highway Plan Opposed in Mount Vernon

Citizens Favor Short Route for Cut-Off Road to Provide Link With Washington-Richmond Connection as Aid to Business Interests.

new opportunities for the citizens between Mount Vernon Hills and Engleside and would be approximately one mile shorter than the other proposed route. This route would omit the Mount Vernon estate.

The route engineers hold would be more logical would include the Mount Vernon estate. Starting from the southern terminus of the Mount Vernon boulevard it would follow the present country road for half a mile and then cut across the country to connect with the Washington-Richmond highway east of Dogue Run. State highway engineers are now surveying this route. J. N. Fagan, district engineer of the State Highway Department, has stated that the shorter route would parallel the Washington-Richmond highway too closely and would not accomplish the primary purpose for which the road is to be built.

The State Highway Commission has allocated approximately $82,000 for the construction of the proposed road, which is to permit through traffic to visit Mount Vernon estate by the way of the new Mount Vernon boulevard. Tentative plans for the construction of the cut-off road call for an 80-foot right of way, although the actual width of the roadway has not as yet been decided. It is to be completed in time for the bicentennial celebration next year.

Selection of the route for the proposed connecting link between the new Mount Vernon Boulevard and the Washington-Richmond Highway in the vicinity of Woodlawn, Va., has stirred up a controversy between the citizens of Mount Vernon Magisterial District of Fairfax County and highway engineers.

The citizens favor a short route which would follow the present Mount Vernon road about a half mile and then join the Washington-Richmond Highway south of Mount Vernon Hills. They point out that such a route would divert vehicular traffic in such a way as to provide busi-

Traffic to South Diverted Tonight

Ten-Day Detour Necessary as Bridge Trestle Is Removed.

Because of removal of the detour trestle at the south end of the Highway Bridge, which will be started tomorrow, traffic from Alexandria to Washington will be detoured over U. S. Route 1 to Columbia pike, where a left turn will be made, thence over Columbia pike to Russell road, to Military road and thence to the Highway Bridge, where cars will operate on a one-traffic lane.

Those who would avoid the the slow movement of the one-lane traffic at the bridge are advised, when Military road is reached, to follow that road around Arlington Cemetery to the Key Bridge.

These conditions will continue for about ten days, starting at 7 o'clock tonight, it is announced. The District of Columbia will widen U. S. Route 1 from the Highway Bridge to Columbia pike and during this operation the same detour will be effective for about three weeks.

Ballston Citizens to Meet.

After a two months recess, the Ballston Citizens Association will meet tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the Ballston Firemen's Hall at 8 o'clock.

DO YOU LIVE in a house like one of these?

. . . . THEN YOU CAN AFFORD
Automatic GAS HEAT . .

Hundreds of Washington houses—on the same order as the typical row of homes pictured above—are automatically heated by gas, and their occupants find the cost entirely reasonable. While gas is the ideal fuel for any home, it is made-to-order for row houses. Because of their construction, row houses can use gas heat with exceptional economy, and the cleanliness of the gas heating plant makes the basement as neat and usable as any room in the house. Read what these three typical families say:

"The results from gas are superb. The cost is much lower than I had figured for another fuel."—H. C. Kramer, 3033 Ellicott St.

"Our home is at a uniform temperature, never varying more than a degree. The bills are not as high as I expected. Our basement is as neat and orderly as any room in the house. If I could not replace my gas heater, I would not give it up for twice its cost."—Geo. L. Williams, 4512 49th St. N. W.

"The Bryant Gas Furnace is the most satisfactory and enjoyable addition we have made to our home. The cost is no more than (another fuel was named here)"—J. W. Burch, 6627 Harlan Place N. W.

Hundreds and hundreds of other Washington families, in large homes and small, in detached and row houses, are equally enthusiastic about automatic gas heat. Why should you deny yourself and your family the comforts, conveniences, ease which others enjoy? Gas heat costs less than you probably think, and we can tell you by a survey of your home just what this cost will be. This survey is free. ARTS COMMISSION TO JUDGE PROJECTS

Memorial Bridge Plaza to Be Considered as Also Taft Busts.

The Commission of Fine Arts will meet Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The commission will have for consideration various projects relating to the further development of the Arlington Memorial Bridge, which is rapidly nearing completion. Particular attention will be given to the treatment of the plaza at the Lincoln Memorial and to the development of Columbia Island Plaza.

The committee will have a joint meeting with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for the consideration of several problems relating to the public buildings program in the National Capital, particularly the treatment of the "Northwest Triangle."

The commission will advise as to plans for a building to be erected by the Animal Rescue League, at North Capitol and O streets northwest. Several plans submitted by the inspector of buildings of the District of Columbia as coming under the Shipstead-Luce act will have the attention of the commission.

The commission will confer with representatives of the War Department as to a memorial at Appomotax that has been authorized by Congress.

At the request of Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the joint commission on the library, the commission will inspect a model of the bust of the late Chief Justice Taft, made by Bryant Baker, sculptor. Also the commission will inspect the Agricultural Department World War memorial, recently set in place in the new administration building of the Department of Agriculture. The memorial is in the form of a large panel, 11 by 6 feet, of Carrara marble. It is the work of John Flanagan, sculptor.

STORY LINKS BOYS IN DEATH OF MAN

scrubbed, and there was little blood on it.

George was interviewed by the sheriff yesterday morning and produced the new evidence. Saturday, the day of the shooting, only the other four children were questioned. At this time they said that Brady denied the shooting when he cautioned them not to tell that he left the house. Mrs. Brady and her mother, however, told the sheriff then that Phillip had admitted firing the shot which tore into Marr's abdomen.

Marr and Brady were both neighbors of the McKinzie family, who live on the grounds of the shooting club. At the time of the death Becky was in the Brady home and the father of the children, George McKinzie, was out on the marsh. The house was deserted, except for Marr, paying a neighborly call, and the two younger boys, George said. Becky, hearing the shot, ran to the house and found the man dead. The two boys said Saturday that at the time of the shooting they were in the yard of their home, lying under a tree.

Because of the youth of the children, Sheriff Hopkins said, they can not be prosecuted, but they will be removed from the custody of their father. Their mother is dead, and their father is absent from the house during the day. They are cared for by Mrs. Vermilion.

The inquest, tomorrow night at 7:30, will be held as scheduled. It was called by Judge Horace Taylor and William H. Brooke is foreman of the coroner's jury.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ARCH SELWYN.

THE plight of the legitimate theater is not so bad as it thinks it is.

And this, I hasten to state, is not so much my own personal opinion, although I heartily agree with it, as it is the gist of a long and interesting conversation with Arch Selwyn, producer of "Cherries Are Ripe," to be given its premier performance of the new season in the National Theater tonight, with Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis in the costellar roles, whom I trapped in his hotel yesterday evening and almost made late to the dress rehearsal, scheduled for 8-something at the theater.

Arch Selwyn has been around quite a while now—he is five years older than I am, and I have been dangling about the theaters since shortly after the Indian wars—and what he thinks are the ailments of the theater art apt to turn out to be the ailments of the theater.

First and foremost, he places the failure of the theater to adjust itself to the altered conditions imposed by the economic depression that has affected every phase of creative and productive activity in the United States since the bottom dropped out of the market in 1929.

Attractions that were able to command tariffs ranging all the way from $3.30 to $6.60, top, in boom times, in many instances have endeavored to continue that inequitable scale of admissions ever since, with fatal results. The money just isn't in the pockets of the man in the street. And it is the man in the street, after all, who pays the freight for theatrical productions, exactly as he does for clothes production, shoe production, food production and all the rest of the long list of essentials and semiluxuries that go to make up the daily lives of the great American proletariat. Amusements must be kept within the budget of the average buying power of the country.

It is upon this premise that Mr. Selwyn has grounded his plans for the ensuing theatrical season.

THESE plans of Mr. Selwyn's are not purely domestic. He is allied in several of his major projects with Charles Cochran, the noted London producer. One of their most interesting productions will be a new vehicle for Evelyn Laye, the blonde hurricane who swept New York off its feet by the charm of her performance in "Bitter Sweet," and later captivated movie audiences, in association with John Boles, Leon Errol and Hugh Cameron, in "One Heavenly Night." This production is not scheduled to find its way to the boards before December.

One of the plays to be sponsored by Mr. Selwyn in this country is "The Devil," a new work by Ben W. Levy, a young playwright of no more than 30, who possesses the combined facilities in play construction and the writing of dialogue of both a Noel Coward and a Frederic Lonsdale, according to Mr. Selwyn.

Queried as to the probable confusion that might result from the repetition of the title borne by the play that created such a controversial furore years ago when both the late Edwin Stevens and George Arliss starred in it simultaneously—owing to some defect in the Hungarian copyright law—Mr. Selwyn merely laughed, which you may construe, as I did, as meaning anything you like.

There are two more productions that occupy a prominent place in the daily thoughts of this astute young—I told you he is five years older than I am, so you can use your own judgment about my choice of adjectives—producer, and no wonder.

One is Noel Coward's "Cavalcade," enlisting the services of a cast of some 300-plus; the other Frances Marion's play, "The Lady Is Tired," in which Ina Claire will be the star, supported by Rod La Rocque.

The definite committment on the part of Arch Selwyn lays at rest the previous report — chronicled in this column, by the way—that Miss Claire, Washington's own star, is to abandon the stage and appear hereafter exclusively in pictures.

It is worthy of note, in this connection, that Rod La Rocque, who will appear opposite Miss Claire, last season toured in "Cherries Are Ripe," which Mr. Selwyn is reopening at the National tonight. Mr. La Rocque's costar in the John Emerson-Anita Loos comedy was his charming wife, Vilma Banky, perhaps more noted on the screen than upon the boards. Miss Banky now has retired from both the stage and screen to become a dutiful and gracious housewife, exclusively.

Mr. Emerson and Miss Loos, unless you have walked out on me, also are in town for the first performance of their comedy, with the Sydney-Ellis combination in the pivotal roles, in the National tonight. They slipped through my fingers yesterday late afternoon while I was gabbing away at a great rate with Arch, Freddie McKay, his chief cymbal whanger, and Miss Natalie Schaefer, prominent in Mr. Sydney and Miss Ellis' support.

This Miss Schafer, since you ask, is an articulate and artful young actress, who has decided notions on a number of subjects, including the absurdity of cross-eyed young women who are also "bow-limbed," meaning, I take it, legged—who are catapulted into preeminent stardom before the cameras. There will be more—I hope—about her here later.

But reverting to the wholly sane Selwyn viewpoint in the matter of production, it is a pleasure to record that here is one man who approaches the theater as a source of entertainment rather than education or flagrantly specialized propaganda. He produces plays because he feels that the public is entitled to a break in the matters of relaxation and wholesome diversion!

"Cherries Are Ripe," his current offering, and "Private Lives," which follows, with Madge Kennedy and Otto Kruger in the star parts, he produced because he felt they were "nice things to give the theater."

He felt, also, that they should not exact a tariff out of all keeping with the cost of production. Hence, both will be available at scales that are within every reach. I asked him if he adopted this policy as an aid to the "S. O. S." campaign being fostered by the T. P. R. O. A., and he replied emphatically in the negative. He adopted it as an aid to the artistic and financial resources of one Arch Selwyn.

A pretty smart showman, if you ask me, who could see beyond the end of his own nose, even if he were old Cyrano de Bergerac himself.

WIMBLEY SAYS WIFE'S NAME FORGED ON INSURANCE POLICY

was unable to give the police any material assistance.

She had been married to Wimbley for ten years, she said, and divorced him on December 2, 1929. She refused to give the grounds upon which she obtained the divorce. On July 11 of this year, she said she met him at the Veterans' Administration here, where she attempted to intervene in his collection of compensation.

Last week she said she wrote him a letter asking him to send money to her for the support of her and their two children.

There is a desire on the part of police as well as insurance investigators to learn how Wimbley obtained the accident policy without first having Mrs. Wimbley submit to a medical examination. They are anxious to learn whether another woman was substituted for Mrs. Wimbley.

Wimbley was as much of an enigma to neighbors at 305 C street northwest as he is to police. There he had two names on his mail box—one, Howard C. Dickerson, and above it "also Wimbley." Mrs. Eugene Leonard, who conducts the furnished apartment house, said Wimbley, who she knew as Dickerson, said he was once a boxer and went under the name of Wimbley.

Card on Box Removed.

Whenever she knocked on his apartment door, Mrs. Leonard said, he always answered and she had very seldom seen his third wife, Miss Graves. After the drowning on Thursday, the card on the mail box bearing the words, "also Wimbley" was removed.

When he returned after the drowning, Mrs. Leonard said, he told her that Miss Graves was not his wife, and that the woman and child who drowned were his wife and child from Baltimore.

The inquiry which resulted in the confession of the plotting of deaths was instituted by Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, who thought it peculiar that a 4-year-old child should be on a fishing party in a canoe. As he conjured the picture in his mind, Coroner Nevitt said, his suspicions were aroused.

Later, he said, he talked with Detective Sergt. Dennis J. Murphy, and Coroner Nevitt asked him how the story impressed him. Murphy said, "Not so good." Then the inquiry was started.

Impressed by Haste.

Coroner Nevitt also was impressed by Wimbley's haste to make funeral arrangements. Less than an hour after the drowning, and before the body of the child had been recovered, Wimbley was at an undertaking establishment making arrangements for a double funeral.

Detective Sergeants Truscott and Murphy are the youngest members of the Homicide Squad. They were formerly connected with the Clothing Squad, being transferred a few months ago. Truscott studied scientific crime detection under Col. Calvin Goddard at Northwestern University. Detective Sergeant Springman, who directed the investigation, is one of the veteran investigators at headquartres.

That the drownings of the two were a sequel to an aborted multiple murder plot against Mrs. Wimbley's entire family was the confession of Crowder.

For a brief time during the birthday outing in celebration of Mrs. Wimbley's twenty-sixth birthday anniversary, Crowder said he left the canoe to get a drink and when he left he said he had a feeling that something would happen before he returned.

Only Crowder's faint-heartedness, he said, prevented the murders of Mrs. Wimbley's family. Before their trip to Dendron, Va., Crowder said Wimbley told him "he had a plan by which both could make some money."

Beating Planned.

Crowder's part of the murder plot, he said, was to beat the people into unconsciousness. About midnight on Tuesday night, Crowder said, Wimbley came to his room in the Tench home and asked him, "Are you going to go through with it?" Crowder said he thought at first that Wimbley was "kidding" and told him that he "had no intention of doing it."

Death by fire, Crowder said, would bring double indemnity to Wimbley. That was the reason, he confessed, that the gasoline and the sandbags were prepared.

ROOKIES HELP NATS WIN FROM WHITE SOX TWICE

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

OFF THE CHEST . . . There is a method in Clark Griffith's dealing with the Baltimore Orioles . . . The purchase of Weaver and Gill and Boyle from the Baltimore club may be warranted on their ball playing ability. . . . But if they make good, any one or two of them, the Nats will draw thousands of week-end customers from Baltimore at games here. . . And wean away the Baltimore patronage that the Philadelphia Athletics have enjoyed ever since the Orioles sent up Grove, Earnshaw, Bishop and Boley. . . Washington is much closer and with Weaver taking a regular turn on the mound the 36 miles over the new boulevard would seem short to Baltimoreans. . . . If the Nats lose second place by half a game, young Andrus may be a very unpopular lad with the ball players . . . on account of his error in the thirteenth inning Saturday. . . . And the $600 difference between the second and third place world series checks . . . Which the ball players are very much aware of . . . Georgetown will have no "breathers" after the Lebanon Valley game Saturday. . . Then comes Western Maryland, N. Y. U., Duquesne, Michigan State, Boston College, Bucknell, West Virginia, Villanova and Detroit . . . The schedule makers at the Hilltop are asking a lot of Tom Mills. . . But he has hopes . . . Of winning every game . . . And is willing to quit in 1932 if his team doesn't come up to expectations. . . . The laws of compensation take care of Georgetown. . . The archbishop of the diocese decreed no more night football games threatening the season's gate receipts. . . And Congress votes a year-round half holiday on Saturday which is calculated to send the attendance at the games rocketing. . . . And George Washington may find it advisable to drop its night games next year in favor of Saturday afternoon contests. . . . The Maryland-Navy game October 10 will be a test for the football-going public of Washington. . . . Navy is willing to make it an annual event if Capital fans show they want the game . . . By turning out in goodly numbers . . . Navy is tiring of its Baltimore games . . . But will meet Notre Dame at the big Baltimore Stadium on November 14 in the East's feature battle of the day . . . Catholic U meets Boston College at Boston on Saturday . . . It is in these early season games that the under dogs have the best chance to score an upset . . . Because the big schools with their hundreds of candidates have not yet had time to sift their best players . . . And are in a much more experimental stage than the smaller schools with smaller squads . . . Every driver in the President's Cup regatta is required to wear a life belt, under the rules. . . . There is talk of a William Freitag Memorial race in the regatta next year . . . John Shibe, owner of the ill-fated Miss Philadelphia, was near collapse after learning of the death of his friend, Freitag. . . Strange about these river people who don't know how to swim . . . Dempsey is still pushing over the push-overs in the Rocky Mountain district . . . And says he will fight at the Garden in December. . . But why the Garden when the outdoor ball parks can hold three times the crowd? He won't fight in the Garden. . . Unless his victories are signed, sealed and delivered before the bouts . . . He'd like the winner of the Carnera-Sharkey battle . . . With Carnera preferred . . . Dempsey still remembers the pasting Sharkey gave him for four rounds . . . Before he interrupted Sharkey's conversation with the referee in the seventh with a left jolt that knocked the sailor down . . . And out . . . The St. Louis Cardinals are doing well with their "chain store" system of baseball . . . With pennants in the National League, the International, the Texas and the Western Association . . . But they are still the short enders in the world series.

Clark Stops Cardinals As Dodgers Win, 6-1

St. Louis, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Cardinals could do little with Southpaw Bill Clark's offerings and the Brooklyn Dodgers took the series opener from the champion Cardinals, 6 to 1, here today.

Sylvester Johnson limited the Dodgers to two hits and one run in the three innings he pitched, but the visitors hopped on Allen Stout at a merry clip in the last six innings.

Sparky Adams, star third baseman of the Cardinals, sprained his left ankle while participating in the meet. He suffered the injury while taking part in a base-circling contest. Previously he had won a bunting and running event.

Adams was unable to play today, and probably will be out of action for several days. The injury, however, was not regarded as serious enough to interfere with his playing in the world series.

Heavyweight Market Is Bullish

Schaaf and Griffiths Clash in Feature of Week.

Loughran to Battle Sekyra; Gallagher Faces Poreda.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Fistic promoters, hoping for well-filled arenas this week, again are pinning their collective faith upon the heavyweights. A half dozen of the big fellows, including Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, Max Baer, of Oakland, Calif., and Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, appear in headliners in various fistic centers during the next few days.

Schaaf, who has run up a string of nine successive knockouts, the last over the giant Argentine, Victorio Campolo, will battle Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City puncher, at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night in what looms as the week's most important offering. Griffiths once was regarded as a coming champion, but always has fallen short of his friends' most enthusiastic expectations.

Baer, whose winter Eastern invasion brought him only defeats by Loughran and Schaff and a questionable victory over Tom Heeney, battles Jack Van Noy, of Los Angeles, at Oakland Wednesday night.

Loughran to Battle Sekyra.

Loughran, the boxing master, tops the Queensboro Stadium's card here Tuesday night, meeting the Dayton, Ohio, veteran, Joe Sekyra, recent conqueror of Charley Retzlaff, young Duluth heavyweight. Retzlaff and another promising youngster, Stanley Poreda, also will appear on the card, Retzlaff against Dick Onken, of Germany, and Poreda against Marty Gallagher, of Washington.

At Cincinnati Thursday Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., world's featherweight champion, will meet Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., veteran, in a ten-round nontitle affray, and at St. Louis Wednesday the first boxing show under the new State law permitting 15-round bouts will be held. Lou Terry and Sammy Ward, rival St. Louis lightweights, will clash for the Missouri title at that distance.

Bouts on the national schedule:

TUESDAY—At New York, Queensboro Stadium, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, vs. Joe Sekyra, Dayton, Ohio; Carles Retzlaff, Duluth, vs. Dick Onken, Germany, and Stanley Poreda, Jersey City, vs. Marty Gallagher, Washington, all heavyweights, each 10; at Portland, Oreg., Tod Morgan, Los Angeles, vs. Eddie Shea, Bellingham, Wash., lightweights, 10; at Los Angeles, Harry Smith, New York, vs. Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., middleweights, 10; at Indianapolis, Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, vs. Johnny Edwards, Huntington, W. Va., flyweight, 10 (nontitle); at Boston, Jack McCarthy, Boston, vs. Ring Larsen, Quincy, Mass., heavyweights, 10.

WEDNESDAY—At Chicago Stadium, Ernie Schaaf, Boston, vs. Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, Iowa, heavyweights, 10; and Lou Scozza, Buffalo, vs. Larry Johnson, Chicago Negro, light-heavyweight, 8; at Oakland, Calif., Max Baer, Oakland, vs. Jack Van Noy, Los Angeles, heavyweights, 10; at Seattle, Freddie Steele, Tacoma, Wash., vs. Cowboy Sammy Evans, Great Falls, Mont., welterweights, 6; at St. Louis, Eddie Shea, Chicago, vs. Midget Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, Ohio, featherweights, 10; Lou Terry, St. Louis, vs. Sammy Ward, St. Louis, lightweights, 15; Johnny (Peewee) Kaiser, Chicago, vs. Babe Ruth, Louisville, featherweights, 10, and Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., vs. Jimmy Davera, Lafayette, Ind., bantamweights, 10.

THURSDAY—At Cincinnati, Bat Battalino, Hartford, Conn., vs. Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., featherweights, 10 (nontitle); at Indianapolis, Tracy Cox, Indianapolis, vs. Allen Whittlow, Phoenix, Ariz., lightweights, 10.

Braves Drop to 7th As Reds Win Twice

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds pulled the Boston Brayes down into seventh place in the National League today by beating them twice, 5 to 2 and 14 to 5. The Braves had been in a sixplace tie with Philadelphia, which was idle today.

Cincinnati approachd its own double play record of 194, by completing the 188th and 189th of the season in the second game.

Women Stars Open Title Tourney

Enid Wilson Serious Threat to Chances of Mrs. Vare.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 20 (U.P.).—Miss Enid Wilson, British women's champion, loomed today as the most serious threat to Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare's hope of winning her fifth United States women's championship in the tournament opening tomorrow at Buffalo Country Club.

Mrs. Vare, the defending champion, who has held the title since 1928 and previously won it in 1925, remained as a slight favorite, although her play in practice rounds has not been impressive. Apparently saving her best game for the long pull through the tourney, Mrs. Vare's best practice round has been an 83 on the par 81 course.

Miss Wilson, who hopes to become the Bobby Jones of women's golf, has been playing brilliantly since her arrival in this country, but still is troubled with the "balloon" ball.

Practices With New Ball.

She has been practicing with the American ball since she first decided to invade America for a try at the United States and Canadian women's titles, and showed indications of mastering the unfamiliar sphere when she turned in a par 81 in her final practice round today.

Other highly regarded entrants include Miss Maureen Orcutt, of New York; Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, 1930 runner-up; Miss Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, Long Island, probably the longest hitter in the tourney; Miss Ada Mackenzie, former Canadian title holder; Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo; Mrs. Marion Turple Lake, of New Orleans, recent winner of the women's Western title, and the always dangerous Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City.

Gledhill Beats Vines In One-Set Exhibition

Los Angeles, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, intercollegiate singles champion, defeated Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, national men's singles champion, 6—4, in a one-set exhibition match preliminary to the fifth annual Pacific Southwest tournament, here tomorrow.

George Lott, Philadelphia, and Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, defeated George Hughes, English Davis Cup player, and Edith Cross, of San Francisco, 5—7, 6—2, 8—6, in another exhibition game.

45,000 See Cubs Beat Giants by 16-6 and 7-6

Chicago, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—A powerful batting attack won a doubleheader for the Chicago Cubs this afternoon as they sunk the New York Giants in two games before an overflow crowd of 45,000 that jammed Wrigley Field. The scores of the games were 16 to 6 and 7 to 6, and assured the Bruins of third place regardless of what happens from now on.

The only semblance of a contest was in the nightcap when two youngsters, Dick Warneke and Bud Parmalee, scrapped through a tight contest before Warneke won.

The Cubs pounded out twenty hits in the terrible first game, pounding Hubbell, Chaplin and a youngster named Pianetta until Berly came into the game in the fifth to stop the carnage. Meanwhile Pat Malone went along only fairly well and won his sixteenth game of the season.

PITT, MILLER CHOICES AT MANOR

HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

WITH the possibility that the final round in the club championship of the Manor Club will be played between Harry G. Pitt, recent winner of the District amateur golf championship, and George F. Miller, who won the club title last year, members of the Manor Club yesterday followed with interest the matches in the first and second rounds of the championship flight.

Pitt and Miller yesterday survived into the semifinal division, Pitt winning his morning and afternoon rounds by default, while Miller defeated D. L. Thomson, chairman of the green committee, in the forenoon and E. N. Carver in the afternoon. Pitt will play in the semifinal round against Mack Myers, while Miller will be opposed by J. T. McCarthy. The results of the matches yesterday were as follows:

First flight—First round—Harry G. Pitt defeated E. M. McClelland, by default; E. E. Wesely defeated S. M. Grogan, by default; Mack Myers defeated W. M. Baldwin, 1 up; Charles H. Gerner, defeated Wilson Barrett, by default; E. J. Carver defeated W. W. Dean, 4 and 3; George F. Miller defeated D. D. Thomson, 4 and 1; W. L. Hop defeated E. H. Teague, 4 and 3; J. T. McCarthy defeated J. C. Taylor, 4 and 3.

Second round—Pitt defeated Wesely by default; Myers defeated Gerner, 6 and 4; Miller defeated Carver, 4 and 3; McCarthy defeated Heap, 4 and 3.

Second flight—First round—N. D. Parker defeated C. W. Schafer, 1 up; G. C. Billard defeated George F. Ashton, 1 up; G. A. Metzler defeated Col. C. G. Storm, 8 and 7; A. L. Alderman defeated E. J. Healy, 3 and 2; H. L. Simcoe defeated M. H. Robb, by default; W. T. Speer defeated I. T. Donohoe, 5 and 4; C. E. Moore defeated C. M. Colbert, 5 and 4; A. E. Turner defeated W. I. Green, 4 and 3.

Second round—Parker vs. Billard, not played; Metzler defeated Alderman, 2 and 1; Speer defeated Simcoe, 5 and 4; Moore defeated Turner, 4 and 3.

Referees Chief Attraction As Girl Reporter Watches Chisox Win Two Defeats

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

BASEBALL has always been regarded as a man's game, but in response to the growing feminine interest in the sport the following story has been prepared to describe from the woman's angle the stirring double-header here in which the White Sox fought to clinch eighth place in the American League.

By EMMA O'MAGORD

It was perfectly thrilling. The players were all so nimble and the shouts of the crowd of 7,000 people in their best "bib and tucker" were so exciting. Actually, I found myself pounding my escort on the arm with my tiny fist in my excitement in the fourth inning when that poor man fell down running to his goal. My escort had to smile because he said the man fell down purposely trying to slide to his goal, and, of course, I blushed my confusion because it all looked so accidental, and I suppose the maternal in me cried out for the poor boy when he went down so hard.

"Oh, is that so?" I demanded with a pout. "Well, we women are learning fast, and we will soon know all about baseball, too, and let me tell you, mister man, we will be better critics than you men, too, because of our feminine intuition."

But I must not go any further before I tell you about that wonderful referee who stood behind home base in the second game. My escort told me his name was Mr. Brick Owens. I think they choose the ugliest nicknames but then I suppose that is their way of showing their masculinity. I should think they would let the women choose them for them. Then Mr. Owens would be called "Honey Boy" or "Wonderful" or something more expressive. Such poise! Such stature! I found myself involuntarily screaming, "Oh Mr. Owens" and it seemed to me that he did half turn around and recognize me with a wan, rather melancholy smile. My escort did not seem to like this very well, however, so I gave him a playful poke with my program and after that I had to admire in silence.

The other referee, Mr. Hildebrand, I did not like so well. He seemed a rather elderly man and all business and this made him seem rather a crosspatch at times, but then with Mr. Owens it is a matter of natural charm which he exudes from every angle of his personality.

Between games you should have seen me eating a "hot dog," standing right up in front of the bar among the men and I must say that although they sometimes forget themselves in the heat of the baseball match and shout in the angriest tones, they were all exceedingly polite and did not use any objectionable language at the "hot dog" bar.

I am not a prude, of course, and the modern business or professional women frequently find that they have to calmly ignore many things

Burke-Sweetser Beat Jones-Dawson, 3 and 2

Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 20 (A.P.). Billy Burke, national open champion, teamed up with Jess Sweetser, Bronxville, N. Y., amateur, to beat Bobby Jones and Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, 3 and 2, in an eighteen-hole exhibition golf match played for charity today over the links of the Round Hill Club.

YANKS BEAT TRIBE BY 7-1, 10-4

Gehrig and Ruth Hit Homers; Johnson Shows Form.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The Yankees ran their winning streak to ten games in a row today by defeating the Cleveland Indians twice, 7 to 1, and 10 to 4. Due to rain which delayed the first game, the second clash was halted by darkness after seven innings.

Dick Porter's homer in the first inning was the only run off Henry Johnson in the first game, as Cleveland got only seven hits. Lou Gehrig featured the second-inning rally which netted five runs by clouting his forty-fifth homer with one on.

Another second-inning rally brought another five runs to win the second game, as Babe Ruth walloped home run 44 to remain one behind Gehrig.

60 DAYS OF MARYLAND RACING OPENS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Stables Seek Million in Purses

Graw Offers 3 Races at $20,00 in 12-Day Meet.

Charity Day Booked at Each Maryland Course.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 20 (A.P.). — Thoroughbreds from the best racing stables of the Nation will begin fall campaign on Maryland's tracks tomorrow, with approximately $1,000,000 at stake during the 60-days they will operate.

Three $20,000 stakes will furnish the big incentive at the 12-day meeting here. The first of these is the Potomac Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, with all the best 3-year-olds of the East, including Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand, nominated.

Juveniles will have their chance at $20,000 on Saturday in the Eastern Shore Handicap at six furlongs. The Havre De Grace Cup, for 3-year olds and up, at a mile and an eighth, is scheduled for the closing day of the meet, with the name of Twenty Grand again among the probable starters.

Laurel Next on List.

Following the close of the track here, the ponies will move to Laurel Park for a 22-day campaign with more than $100,000 in stakes alone offered. From there they will shift to Pimlico, where the twelve-day meeting is headed by the $40,000 Futurity, the $25,000 Riggs and several $10,000 stakes.

Bowie, if present stake values are maintained, will offer the $30,000 Southern Maryland and at least three $10,000 stakes during its twelve-day stand.

All the tracks have an extra day for their fall meets this year, due to the "charity days," inaugurated during the spring.

Each track donated its proceeds for one day, and the State remitted its $6,000 daily tax. Already at Havre de Grace, Pimlico and Bowie, $73,000 has been realized. Backers hope the extra day at Laurel will bring the figure to $100,000.

GRAW NOTES

Special to The Washington Post.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 20.—General Manager Burke expects to be guest to 25,000 on opening day. The Waite starting gate will be used.

St. Brideaux will measure strides with Mate in the Potomac Wednesday.

The track, according to those who have been training horses over it, is a second faster to the mile than last spring.

Several new approaches to the track have been completed since spring. The new road from Baltimore eliminates crossing the railroad tracks at Aberdeen.

General Manager Burke again will donate to the jockey riding the most winners a $500 stop watch.

Among the large stables arriving over Sunday were the Glen Riddle, C. V. Whitney, Greentree, W. M. Jeffords, W. R. Coe, K. E. Hitt, William Ziegler, the Middleburg and Max Hirsch.

Jockeys Workmen, Robertson, Kurtsinger and Coltiletti were among the Sunday arrivals.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

NATURE has created some strange partnerships. Small pilot fish which attach themselves to sharks, help the big fish to find food and in return are allowed to feed on the scraps. Some fig trees and other plants would never bear fruits, were it not for small insects that transfer the pollen. Crocodiles have living toothpicks in the shape of tiny birds that clean the reptile's teeth while he lies basking in the sun with open jaws. Many animals carry small birds about on their backs to warn them of approaching danger which the birds detect because of more sensitive ears. The birds, in the meantime, feed on insects which annoy the animals. But the bitterling and the clam seem to outdo all of these.

By means of a long egg tube, the bitterling deposits her eggs in an open clam, and the clam protects them while they are hatching. But the mollusk is not unaware of what the fish is doing. She sends out a stream of baby clams that attach themselves to the bitterling's scales, and remain there until they are able to care for themselves. Thus the baby clams receive a free ride until the time they drop off in a more fertile feeding ground than they would have found had they stayed at home.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 20.—The Maryland racing season for the fall opens here tomorrow, with Laurel, Pimlico and Bowie to follow, ending about Thanksgiving Day, during which time some very large stakes will be decided, with three $20,000 added purses at the Harford course, including the Potomac Handicap on Wednesday, September 23, for 3-year-olds. The Eastern Shore, September 23, for 2-year-olds, and the Havre de Grace Handicap, Saturday, October 23.

This meeting will be twelve days. Post time will be at 2:15, Eastern standard time.

The opening card is a good one, including in the entries many of the best horses that have been racing in New York, and also many of the leading horses from Canada and the West.

The card for the opening is featured by the Autumn Handicap, with a purse of $2,500 for 3-year-olds and upward, at a mile and 70 yards. C. V. Whitney's HALCYON should win. He failed to run up to expectations last Friday at Belmont Park, finishing third to Ironclad and Mountain Elk. In his previous start he was beaten only a head by Mr. Sponge. HALCYON takes off weight in this race, and the longer distance may also help. SUNVIR, Mrs. Hitt's seasoned campaigner, is in light and is regarded the contender. The W. R. Coe filly, CONCLAVE, was third to Mr. Sponge and Jack High and should be in the money. She is approaching top form and has worked fast on the New York tracks.

FIRST RACE—One of the two races for 2-year-olds opens the card. The Greentree Stable's BYZANTYNE which has run second in its only two starts, beaten last out by Scotch Gold, is ready for graduation from the maiden class, and appears much the best of this field, which is a large one with a good deal of class. Glen Riddle Farm's WAR HERO which was third to fast juveniles at Saratoga is rated the contender. All of his races have been good. SUN MELUS of the Sun Briar family, is regarded better than he has shown by his stable. Rain would not hurt his chances.

SECOND RACE—C. V. Whitney's MAGNIFICO, a speedy 3-year-old, has the best of it in the September Handicap second race. He beat good horses at Arlington Park and in his last New York race was second to Sun Meadow. He takes off weight. BLACK MAJESTY should be a dangerous contender. He showed dazzling speed in his last race when he beat Sonneill, coming from behind. LADANA, lately in the Rancocas Stable, whose poisoning at Saratoga caused a sensation should be third. She is supposed to have entirely recovered from the effect of the poisoning.

THIRD RACE—One of the surprises of the recent Belmont Park meeting was the speed of Mrs. John D. Hertz's filly, SEVEN VEILS, which beat the fast Stage Craft by three lengths, and the surprise was shown when she won at 15 to 1. She should repeat in the third race for 2-year-olds. But she will not be 15 to 1. The Greentree Stable's PARRY is rated the contender, and she was never out of the money in her eight starts, winning three. STEP SIS, winner last out over Well Heeled, should take the show money.

FOURTH RACE—BACKGAMMON, from the Sagamore Stable, is as game as they make them, and fought his way to the front in his last two starts, and should make it three in the fourth race, which is a mile and 70 yards. HILLSBOROUGH has won two signal victories over strong opposition, and may be a dangerous contender. He beat Glastonbury and Blenheim in his last start. MASKED BALL, which ran BACKGAMMON to a nose finish last out, should get in the money, but the route may be too long for her.

SIXTH RACE—The sixth race is a mile and a furlong. The Greentree Stable's PRINCESS ISABEL recently beat Broad A, at this distance, and she has been running well this season, being out of the money only three times in as many starts. She is picked to win this event. ROYAL CHARGE also is well placed, and the race appears to be largely a duel between these two. MADCAP MARVIN has a good chance to show.

SEVENTH RACE—VOWED VENGEANCE should win the seventh race. He won his last three starts. BLANC SEING was a close third to Baritone last out and may be the contender here. COGWHEEL will be one of the contenders.

RICH STAKES LISTED FOR LAUREL

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, Md., Sept. 20.—Andrew J. (Cy) Cummings, president of the Maryland State Fair, which will hold its 23-day meet October 6 and 31, has decided upon the days to offer the stake features of the season.

Twin features on October 17, 24, and October 31 should attract the largest crowds to see the highest class thoroughbreds perform. This arrangement should meet with the approval of both visitors and horsemen.

As usual, the $25,000 Washington Handicap will be run on the closing day of the meeting, October 31. Three-year-olds will show what they can do over the mile and one-quarter distance, and one the best fields in the history of the fixture should be seen parading. The companion of the Washington will be the $10,000 Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, exclusively for 2-year-olds at a mile. The latter will give owners a chance to see their best in action before the Pimlico Futurity early in November.

Dates for all Laurel features follow:

Tuesday, October 6—$5,000 Capital Handicap, 3-year-olds and upward, 6 furlongs.

Saturday, October 10—$10,000 Richard Johnson Stakes, 2-year-olds, 6 furlongs.

Wednesday, October 14—$5,000 Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap, 3-year-olds and upward, 2 miles.

Saturday, October 17—$5,000 Maryland Breeders Futurity, 2-year-olds foaled in Maryland, 6 furlongs.

Saturday, October 17—$10,000 Laurel, all ages, 1 mile.

Saturday, October 24—$10,000 Selima Stakes, 2-year-old fillies foaled in 1929, 1 mile; $15,000 Maryland Handicap, 3-year-olds, mile and one-quarter.

Wednesday, October 28—$10,000 Gov. Ogle Steeplechase Handicap, 4-year-olds and upward, 2½ miles.

Saturday, October 31—$25,000 Washington Handicap, 3-year-olds and upward, mile and one-quarter, and $10,000 Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, 2-year-olds, 1 mile.

COACH MILLS TO NAME GEORGETOWN REGULARS THIS WEEK

King Certain To Direct Eleven

Carolan Only Sophomore to Start, Is Indication.

C. U. Loses Fraatz for Boston College Contest Saturday.

Though but five days remain before the opening game with Lebanon Valley in Griffith Stadium, Head Coach Tommy Mills has not as yet announced the personnel of the first string team. However, according to close observers, the veterans from last year's team are holding an edge in the battle over the sophomores, several of whom have been the talk of the training season to date.

It is predicted by some observers that the team that strides out on the stadium turf Saturday afternoon will be composed entirely of veterans, with one exception. Tommy Carolan, an end, it is said, will be the lone 1930 yearling to start against Lebanon Valley.

Dick King will be seen at his old quarter back position, according to reports, while Bill Maczees and Russ Danieu will fill the half back berths. Leroy Bordeau, line crashing full back, will start the game if he recovers from an injury which threatens to develop into the dreaded water on the knee.

At the tackles, so the report goes, will be George Dyer and Ed Katalinas, and at the guards will be Dick Danner and Maurice Dubofsky. Charles McManus will hold forth at center. Carolan will share end duty with Ray Hudson.

The chief problem confronting Coach Walter Young at American University is the reconstruction of the back field, which lost Forrest Diehl, its best member, who has transferred to a Middle Western school.

At present Young is experimenting with two former linemen in the hope of filling a couple of the back field positions. Ed Parke, formerly an end, is being tried out at full back, and Fred Johnson, former guard or center, is getting a chance at half back.

Producing a starting end to replace Vincent Fraatz, veteran Catholic University wingman who likely will be unable to participate in Saturday's Boston College game because of a lame ankle, was the problem confronting Athletic Director Arthur Bergman and End Coach George Vik today as the Cardinals opened final preparatory work for their season's inaugural.

Fraatz, counted among Catholic's outstanding dependables, was one of the few 1930 holdovers who virtually had clinched a starting status. Naturally his probable absence causes considerable concern.

Special to The Washington Post.

Camp Letts, Md., Sept. 20.—Coach Pixlee and his assistants spent practically all of the time in today's practice session toward correcting faults which cropped out in yesterday's scoreless tie between the Blues and Grays of the George Washington Colonials.

Plays were run through time after time in dummy scrimmage until they were letter perfect in precision and inapt.

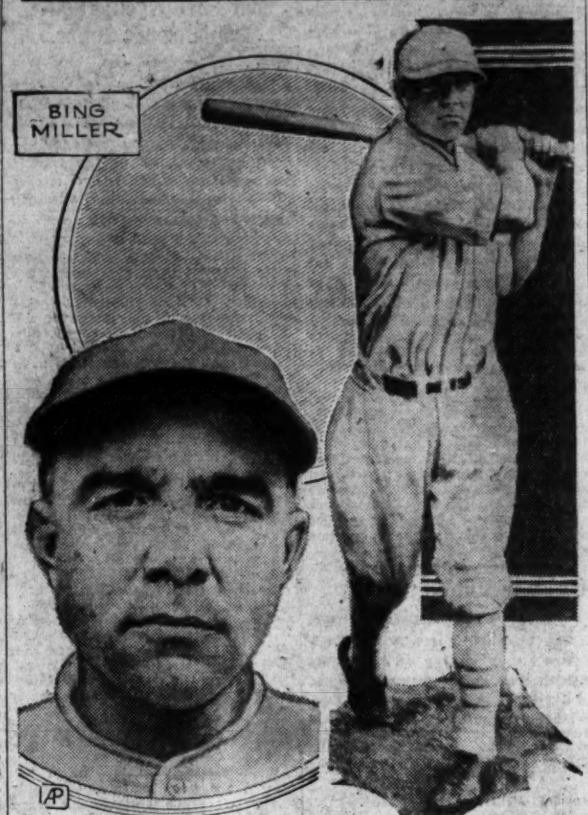
Connie's Crew-Up Close



Bing Miller is "Dark Folks" to the Athletics due to his nut-brown complexion. His first big league assignment was to keep a President's car from being hit by a foul fly. Now he's one of the most valuable players on a world's champion club.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

No. 7—"Dark Folks."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The first big league club Bing Miller ever played with was Detroit. He came up as an outfielder in 1919 and Hughey Jennings used him to pitch to batters.

His first major league assignment was in Washington, guarding the late President Wilson's automobile at the opening game of the season to see that it wasn't hit by any fly balls.

Makes Hit With Jim Crow Section.

When he plays in the South in the spring and the bleachers are packed with Negroes, an excited buzz passes through the Jim Crow section as he gallops out to right field.

He's their particular pride and they cheer him lustily. He waves back.

"Looka that black boy playin' with them white folks," they shout. "Now ain't he sumpin'?"

So his teammates call him "Black Man" and "Dark Folks." He gets a great kick out of it. Jimmy Dykes hails him as "Carranza."

Bing was a pitcher for the Clinton, Iowa, team until he contracted typhoid. In some mysterious manner that made an outfielder out of him and he never pitched again except under duress. The World War found him with the Eighty-eighth Division in France.

"Going over," he says, "they served us stewed fish three times a day on the boat and when we got to France it took 28 of us seven solid hours to lug up out of the cellar of that ship all of the sides of beef and steaks we didn't get."

Connie Mack bought every member of the Atlanta team but him one season when the Athletics were struggling for material to rebuild the discarded White Elephants.

The greatest disappointment he ever had was when Connie traded him to Detroit in order to get Baby Doll Jacobson to give to the Boston Red Sox for Howard Ehmke.

Connie said he'd get him back some day, and he kept his word. And Bing's disappointment faded even as a memory when that same Howard Ehmke baffled the Cubs in the first game of the 1929 world's series.

Collected $400 From Fans For Homer.

The year after the war, playing with Little Rock, Bing ran into a quaint Arkansas custom. In those days, when a player hit a home run, it was his privilege to take up a collection among the fans at the game.

Bing hit one that won a "crucial" contest and broke the league record for receipts. He collected $400 and it took him until nine that night to count all the pennies.

The biggest thrill he ever had on a ball field was catching a ball Bob Meusel hit to the center field scoreboard with the bases full in one of those bitter Yankee-Athletics duels in Shibe Park in 1928.

Capital City League Elevens in Meetings

Three meetings for Capital City Football League teams are scheduled for this week. Each of the gatherings will be held at French's Sports Store, 721 Fourteenth street northwest, at 7:30 o'clock.

The 135-pounders will meet tonight, the 150-pounders tomorrow night and the unlimiteds Wednesday night.

It is important that every club expecting to compete have a representative present.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Sept. 20.—The Olmsted Grill nine, winner of the Capital City League senior championship of Washington, D. C., were downed here this afternoon by the All-Stars by the score of 2 to 1. Johnson, in winning his twentieth victory of the season, allowed only six well scattered hits. Lanahan, the visitors' star lefthander, was touched for seven hits, but weakened in the final frames to allow the tying and winning runs. Borden had seven put-outs in left field for the locals and collected two hits.

D. C. JUNIOR CHAMPS IN 12-2 WIN

Schwartz Nine Routs Springer Team of Richmond.

THE Schwartz Jewelers, winners of the Junior section of the Capital City League, yesterday ended their season with a 12-to-2 victory over the Springer Post Legionnaires, of Richmond, American Legion champs of Virginia.

Hale, on the hill for the Jewelers, allowed but seven fairly well-scattered hits, while the District team garnered thirteen from Hatcher's slants, of which were a triple by Fox and doubles by L. Nau and Kayser. C. Miller, of the visitors, cracked out a homer.

Farrell, Holy Cross Star, To Coach Apache Gridmen

6 Other Ex-Gonzaga Players to Perform for Champions.

JAMES J. (TUBBA) FARRELL will coach the Apache Athletic Club eleven this season, Manager Seymour Hall, of the Indians, announced last night. Farrell will succeed Jerry Carroll, former Georgetown University star, who coached the Apaches to the District championship last year, and who is expected to play again this season.

The new Apache pilot is well versed in the ways of football. The oldest of the Farrel brothers, who have made grid history here, he first attracted attention with the Stanton Juniors, undefeated 115-pound champions of the District for two years.

Farrell then played high school football under Coach Ken Simondinger at Gonzaga, and helped Johnny Bozek keep Gonzaga undefeated. He entered Holy Cross in 1927 and played center for the freshmen, graduating to the varsity the next season, where he was regular center until his graduation last year.

The acquisition of Farrell is timely for the Apaches, inasmuch as Bits Clifford, veteran center, has announced that he will not play football this season.

Six other members of the unbeaten Gonzaga team will play with the Apaches. They are Byrne, Himmelberg, Dugan, Nolan, Tracy and Tobin. Manager Hall said last night that Johnny Bozek, who starred at Georgetown, may play with his club.

The Apaches will defend their championship in the South Atlantic Football League against the Celtics, Mohawks and Irvington.

COLESVILLE WINS FROM EAGLES

Heim Bests M'Donald in Mound Duel in Tenth, 1 to 0.

EDDIE HEIM bested McDonald in a pitching duel yesterday as the Colesville Cardinals defeated the Skinker Eagles, 1 to 0, in a ten-inning game. Heim, in addition to holding his foes to four hits, scored the winning run. He singled in the tenth and scored on Wheeler's sizzling triple.

The game resolved itself into a dog-eat-dog affair in the early stages, as both flingers showed evidence of being in tiptop form. Heim fanned eleven batsmen, while McDonald whiffed seven.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 20.—Columbia Firefighters annexed the Alexandria City series today when they defeated the Del Ray tossers, 5 to 0, in the crucial game. More than 1,000 spectators, the largest crowd of the season, witnessed the battle.

Les McMenamin's superb hurling assured the Columbias of the victory. He fanned eight men and allowed the Red Birds four scattered bingles. Curtiss, Del Ray's ace, struck out thirteen batters, but sloppy support aided in his downfall.

In the other city series game, the Cardinals were tripped by Del Ray, 8 to 2. Dick Cannady toiled for the winners. Three pitchers, Allen, Chilcotte and Zimmerman, worked for the Cardinals.

The Columbia tossers will be awarded the Sylvester A. Breen trophy for winning the championship of the city in the amateur unlimited division. In the other game listed for the day the Colonials defaulted to the Nation-Wide team.

KNIGHT AND MILES WIN IN RACE

IN the modified marathon race held by the Washington Canoe Club yesterday, Harry Knight won the double blade event, with Johnny Miles, of Potomac Boat Club, taking first in the single blade event.

For the first part of the ten-mile race, Knight trailed along with the others, watching and coaching them, then with lighted pipe setting off clouds of smoke, he left them away behind and finished in grand style. Both Miles and Knight finished away ahead of the other contestants.

Dor-A Nine Trounces Mount Rainier, 10-7

The Dor-A- nine upset the Mount Rainier Team yesterday, 10 to 7, after the latter club had run up a long list of victories. By virtue of their victory, the Dor-A players will meet the Dixie Pigs next Sunday for the championship of Prince Georges County.

MERCHANTS TARDY IN ORDERING GOODS

Many Observers See Bright Outlook for Autumn in Retail Business.

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—An unseasonably hot spell over much of the country, coming on the heels of an unusually late Labor Day, has made the consumer tardy in filling his autumn requirements.

The past week in business and trade has seen no break in the dull monotony of bumping along the bottom of depression, although the steel industry has recovered to the upper level of the 28 to 32 per cent range of operations in which it has fluctuated for several weeks.

Continued unsettlement in the securities markets at home and abroad has probably had a bad psychological influence on business, but the stock market's contortions have been growing progressively milder over the two years of deflation, and its woes may be forgotten when it finally settles into a period of protracted quiescence such as may be expected to mark the end of this bear orgy.

Uncertainty Is Injected.

Further uncertainty is injected into the outlook with the approach of the new session of Congress. Some prominent bankers are frankly concerned over the prospect of large demands upon the Treasury.

On the whole, however, many observers regard the business outlook over the remainder of the year with some degree of optimism. Wholesalers are inclined to feel that merchants have not provided for even minimum demands, and that hasty reorders of merchandise will appear in some volume before the autumn shopping seasons wanes.

Several of the lighter lines of manufacturing continue to hold their recent gains, particularly the textiles. There are some signs of a slight letup in the flurry of activity in shoe manufacturing. The hide and leather markets have taken a rather decided dip.

The pickup in steel making has been largely the result of orders for heavy pipe and structural materials. The number of large construction projects under consideration is encouraging, and despite the low rate of railway revenues, the carriers are beginning to inquire for rails, as this is the usual season of rail buying.

Purchases of Rails.

Although aggregate purchases of rails this season may be the lowest in several years, any business from the carriers will be gratifying to steel makers.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended September 5, showed the small decline of about 4,000 cars from the previous week, which was to have been expected, in view of the lower movement toward the end of the week, because of the Labor Day week-end. This showing may be construed as favorable, in view of the smaller than expected gains in the preceding week.

The automobile industry continues to mark time pending the introduction of new models around November 1. If new models are to be ready to be placed on the market throughout the country in time for the January shows, a fair revival of activity during the last quarter of the year seems assured.

Rather conspicuous weak spots had developed in commodities, with copper touching a new historical low at 7 cents. Recent gains in petroleum have not been well maintained since the renewed production from the east Texas field. There have been some declines in foodstuffs, but dair

GIRL, AGED 5, KILLED AND 18 ARE INJURED IN SUNDAY CRASHES

Driver, Free on Bond, Faces Manslaughter Charge in Death of Child.

COLLISION IS RESULT AS CAR LEAVES ROAD

Four Hurt in Accidents on Boulevard Near Laurel; Five Autos Damaged.

City streets and roads leading to Washington took their toll in automobile accidents yesterday. One child was killed and several persons were injured in a series of mishaps.

Audrey Dime, a 5-year-old child, colored, was killed yesterday when she was struck down by an automobile while walking near her home at Old Germantown, Md. The girl had been to a well to draw a pail of water and was returning home with her sister, 12 years old. Witnesses said the child ran in front of an automobile operated by James Claggett, colored, 32 years old, of Gaithersburg.

The child died half an hour after the accident. Policeman Paul Watkins, of the Rockville headquarters of Montgomery County police, swore out a warrant charging manslaughter against Claggett. He was released under $500 bond.

Struck by an automobile yesterday morning, Mrs. Elizabeth Gisariel, 58 years old, of 1224 Massachusetts avenue northeast, suffered fractures of both ankles.

The accident happened as the woman was attempting to cross the street at the intersection of Twelfth and Massachusetts avenue northeast. Police said she was struck by an automobile driven by Alexander Hunt, 39 years old, colored, of 1618 Swann street northwest.

Hunt took the woman to Providence Hospital for treatment. No charges were placed against him.

Six Injured in Crash.

Six persons were injured on the Frederick Pike yesterday afternoon when the driver of an automobile lost control of her machine, after it had slipped from the shoulder of the road, according to police. Three of those injured were residents of Cumberland, Md., on their way to Washington for a short visit. They were taken to Georgetown Hospital.

Mrs. Lula A. Hershey, of Gaithersburg, was driving north on the pike near Rockville when the wheels of her car slipped off the edge of the pavement. Police say she attempted to pull her car back on the road and it skidded over to the left side striking another machine, driven by Ernest S. Huth, of Cumberland. Mrs. Hershey and her two children suffered only slight injuries, but Mrs. Huth, who was riding with her husband suffered a fractured hip. Mr. Huth was cut on the lip and was injured internally. Miss Madelaine Moore, a passenger in their car suffered a sprained ankle.

Five Automobiles Damaged.

Four persons were injured and five automobiles damaged in a pair of early morning traffic accidents on the Baltimore-Washington boulevard, near Laurel, yesterday morning. The accidents were spaced only an hour apart.

Two of the persons injured were enlisted men from the submarine R-3, which is at the Washington Navy Yard. The other two persons were hurt as a result of a freak crash in which four automobiles were cracked up. One of the victims suffered a broken leg when he ran off a bridge to escape being run down by the fourth machine.

The naval men were hurt about 3 o'clock yesterday morning when their car struck a culvert three miles north of Laurel, crashed into a ditch and turned over. John E. Mason, 28, first-class quartermaster, suffered cuts about the head and internal injuries. Frank L. Johnson, 30, was badly cut about the head.

Bound for Washington.

The two were bound to Washington from Baltimore when the crash occurred. Corpl. John Kreis, of the Laurel substation, State police, summoned an ambulance and had the sailors sent to the Naval Hospital, Washington.

According to Corpl. Kreis the men were traveling at a high rate of speed when another machine cut them off, forcing them into the culvert.

In another accident on the Washington boulevard at 4 a. m., near Deep Run, four automobiles were damaged and two men injured in a quadruple accident.

Harold A. Mansfield, 5300 block Hanlin avenue, was driving toward Washington, he told State Patrolman Arthur Plummer, when his steering gear broke and he crashed into the fence of the bridge over Deep Run. He went to a nearby refreshment stand for first aid for his injured hand and left the lights of his automobile burning.

Crashed Into Rear.

When he returned he found that Henry E. Sissler, 14 P street northeast, Washington, bound in the same direction, had crashed into the rear of his car and had forced it into the road, blocking traffic. Sissler's car careened across the road, was damaged slightly, but the occupant was uninjured.

By the time State patrolmen gathered and with flares were warning drivers to beware of the congested road. Out of the murk came a car bearing seven Negroes. Apparently unaware, the driver sideswiped the car of a spectator who had stopped to see what it was all about, and crashed into Mansfield's car, making the automobile casualties four.

Sissler, driver of car No. 2 seeing a wreck inevitable, rushed for the side of the bridge, but when he got to the railing could not stop and he went over and down 20 feet to the shallow water below. He was taken to a Washington hospital with a fractured leg.

James E. Davis, the driver, was charged with reckless driving and driving with an expired chauffeur's license. He was fined by Magistrate Howard U. Gosnell, of Savage, $26.45 on the former charge and $11.45 on the latter. Unable to pay, Davis was taken to Ellicott City Jail, where he will spend the next 35 days.

Car and Bus Collide.

Five persons were slightly injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided head-on with a Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus at Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue. Police said the accident happened as the bus was attempting to make a left turn at the intersection.

The injured persons were taken to Emergency Hospital where they were treated for minor cuts. They are R. D. Mahoney, 19 years old, of Herndon, Va.; Miss Arlie Poole, 17, of Herndon; Miss Etta Bradford, 17, of Vienna, Va.; H. G. Bradford, 21, of 62 Princeton avenue northwest, and James Bradford, of Vienna, Va.

Reckless Driving Charged.

A charge of reckless driving was placed against Justine S. McGraw, 34 years old, of 646 Park road northwest, last night after he was taken from Emergency Hospital where he received treatment for injuries he received in the crash.

McGraw, proceding west around Washington Circle, struck a parked automobile in which George E. West, 21 years old, of 2606 L street northwest, was sitting, police said. McGraw was cut about the chin in the crash. Police took him to the hospital and then brought him to the Third Precinct Station where he was booked.

Willie Harris, 44 years old, colored, of 26 L street northwest, suffered a fractured leg yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by William I. Miller, 26 years old, of 637 E street southeast, according to police reports. Harris is said to have been struck when he stepped from behind a car parked on First street northwest between G and H streets. Mr. Miller took Harris to Sibley Hospital for treatment.

BLUES SINGER IS REWARDED

Miss Edith Reed presents diamond-studded wrist watch to little Ruth McCullough, now leading the juvenile entertainers' contest conducted by Kallipolis Grotto in connection with its fall festival at Washington Auditorium, October 2. Little Ruth is a blues singer and tap dancer.

MAJ. C. E. EDWARDS DIES IN LONG ILLNESS

Corcoran Cadets Organizer Was Recruiting Officer in Two Wars.

Maj. C. Eugene Edwards, 66, U. S. A., retired, 1451 Longfellow street northwest, first captain and organizer of the old Corcoran Cadets, District Militia, and lifelong resident of Washington, died last night at his home after a long illness.

Maj. Edwards, who was born in Georgetown, attended the local schools and was commissioned in the District Militia in 1887. He rose to a captaincy and was appointed commander of the Corcoran Cadets, which he helped to organize. The cadet corps is now known as Company E of the 121st Engineers.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, Maj. Edwards was appointed chief recruiting officer of the District militia, and in the World War he served as military advisor to the Tenth District Draft Board, with the rank of captain. At the close of the war he retired and President Wilson commissioned him a major.

Maj. Edwards was one of the organizers and an active member of the firm of Edwards & Zanner, jewelers, 1317 F street northwest, at the time of his death. He was president of the Corcoran Cadets Veterans Association and a membe. of the Lions Club, the Knights of Columbus, the Elks, the Holy Name Society and the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, C. Eugene Edwards, jr., who is treasurer of Francis R. Waller, Inc., consulting engineers. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

HOTEL GUEST FOUND LYING DEAD IN ALLEY

Man Had Registered Early in Morning; New Mystery Facing Police.

A new mystery confronted police last night when the body of a man was found in an alley in the rear of the Allies Hotel, 482 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. It is believed he either fell, jumped or was pushed from a third floor fire escape.

According to the hotel management, the man registered there at 9:45 o'clock yesterday morning. He gave his name as E. L. Janes and said he was from Macon, Ga. He was admitted by a maid, it was said at the hotel, and went directly to his room. The last time he was seen alive was at 6 o'clock last night.

William F. Rector, night clerk at the hotel, discovered the tragedy when, in making his rounds of inspection, he found the door of the man's room open. A small terrier, the man's only companion when he registered, was lying on the bed. A quantity of money—about $30 in bills—was scattered about the floor.

Upon investigating, Rector found that a screen in a window at the end of the hallway had been removed. He climbed onto the fire escape and saw the man's body lying in the alley below.

Although he registered under the name of "Janes," police who investigated found that the initial "G" was on the man's belt buckle. Two cards in his pocket bore the name William M. Todd, Dobbs Tire Co., Atlanta, Ga. Besides the money strewn about the floor, a suitcase was found containing a quantity of new wearing apparel, purchased in Atlanta.

An automobile bearing Georgia license plates was found parked in front of the hotel. In it was a .32-caliber rifle, a pair of overalls and a number of tools. Police are investigating the tag numbers.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt declared he would not issue a death certificate "until a number of details had been straightened out." An autopsy will be held at the District morgue today.

Community League Will Hear Artists

Music, Dancing, Literature Featured on Program of Winter Events.

Arrangements have been completed by officers of the Community Institute for a program of twelve events next winter, the first of which will take place October 20. The schedule is subdivided into three groups, music, general interest and literature.

Several authors are on the program, including Vachel Lindsay, Stoddard King and Rafael Sabatini. In the musical group the daughters of Louise and Sidney Homer will be heard, as will also the Harvard University double quartet, Sylvia Lent, Washington violinist, and John Erskine. The general interest group includes Ted Shawn and his dancers, Ellery Walter, young American traveler; Herbert Adams Gibbons, authority on world problems, and Albert Leonard Squier, artist and master of cameracraft.

Seats will be available after October 1 for guarantors and subscribers, and reservations are now being accepted at the institute office in the Franklin Administration Building.

INDEPENDENT TAXIS HIKE RATES IN DEFI

Fail to Comply With Ruling on Ten-Day Notice and Face Heavy Fines.

Independent taxicab owners again are testing the powers of the Public Utilities Commission by boosting their rates without complying with the required formalities and ten-day notice.

In doing this the operators face the possibility of a $200 fine a day for each operator.

Officials of the larger cab companies said their rates would not change.

Representatives of nearly 250 independent operators said that they notified the Public Utilities Commission, but that the ten days' notice was not given and the changes went into effect almost immediately. The higher rates have been in effect since Thursday.

Spokesman E. D. Leffingwell said the increase was absolutely necessary to obtain living wages for the independent operators.

A new basic zone smaller than the old one and set inside the previous zone is still operated under the 20-cent rate. This area is bordered by North Capitol street, Florida avenue, Twenty-second street and Constitution avenue. The new 40-cent area, the same as the old 20-cent zone, is bounded by Wisconsin avenue, Macomb street, Decatur street, Monroe street northeast, Twelfth street northeast, Fifteenth street northeast, the Potomac River, Water street southwest and P street southwest.

The old 40-cent zone rates will be increased to 60 cents, and 80 cents will be charged in the fourth zone from downtown.

Mr. Leffingwell explained that the reason the operators acted as they did was that they were fearful lest the larger cab companies would attempt to block the increase before the Public Utilities Commission.

Masons Plan to "Swap" Stories of Vacations

Members of Benjamin B. French Lodge, F. A. A. M., will "swap vacation stories" following a routine business meeting tonight at the lodge quarters, in the new Masonic Temple.

Two weeks from Monday the second degree will be conferred at the lodge, with Marshal Charles B. Robey presiding. The "grand visitation" is scheduled for the October 19 meeting.

Neck Is Fractured By Falling Plank

A plank falling from a scaffolding at the new Internal Revenue Building at Twelfth and C streets northwest yesterday seriously injured Fred Bartholdic, 31 years old, of 1121 I street northwest, an employe of the Alliance Construction Co., which is working on the building.

Bartholdic, according to police, was walking under the scaffolding when in some unexplained manner a 20-foot plank slipped from the scaffold and struck him in the back of the neck.

At Emergency Hospital, where Bartholdic was taken, physicians said he had suffered a possible fracture of the vertebrae in his neck. His condition is regarded as serious.

THE REV. HUGH A. DALTON.

REV. HUGH A. DALTON IS SENT TO BUFFALO

Former Holy Trinity Pastor Given New Assignment; Other Transfers.

The Rev. Hugh A. Dalton, who has been pastor at St. Ignatius Church at Chapel Point, Md., since October, 1930, and who was pastor of Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown for six years, has been transferred to St. Michael's Church in Buffalo, N. Y.

The Rev. John H. Gampp, assistant pastor at Leonardtown, Md., for some time, took Father Dalton's place at Chapel Point yesterday. This transfer brought the Rev. Joseph Morning from Jamaica, British West Indies, to Leonardtown to fill the vacancy created by the removal of Father Gampp.

Both Father Gampp and Father Morning studied for the priesthood at Woodstock, Md.

Father Dalton left Holy Trinity Church here last October and the Rev. Joseph A. McEneany was named as his successor.

Father Dalton was ordained by James Cardinal Gibbons and was first assigned to St. Francis Xavier Church in New York until the World War, when he was made a chaplain in the Army Transport Service. After the war he returned to his parish, but was transferred to the Jesuit Church at Leonardtown shortly afterward. From that church he came to Holy Trinity. Father Dalton is a native of Philadelphia.

Father Gampp, before coming to Leonardtown, was assigned to a church in Jersey City. He has also served at Canisius High School in Buffalo.

Engineer to Discuss Light Plant Problems

R. H. Smart, illuminating engineer of Philadelphia, will discuss methods of efficiency in the modern small industrial plant at the third of a series of lighting conferences tonight at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

He will also speak on the possibilities of cutting down accidents to workmen. Z. A. Biggs, local electrical engineer, will discuss some of the recently remodeled industrial plants in Washington from the standpoint of illumination. The Electric League of Washington is sponsoring the conferences.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Our Own Stock Market Report.

FULFILLING the hopes of investors for the first time in weeks, stocks made a fine show of strength, such investment issues as Steel, Telephone and Can falling only 4 points the first hour. National Biscuit was another decidedly strong issue.

• • • •

During the first fifteen minutes of trading speculators were inspired by an unknown pool operator's bid of four hearts for 50,000 shares of American Locomotive. This was topped by a Detroit operator with a bid of four spades. Morgan interests finally got the stock for five no-trumps.

• • • •

I. T. & T. was very active, 20,000 shares changing hands on one transaction, the buyer getting them for two dozen eggs, a loaf of rye bread and a pair of yellow shoes, slightly worn. This was a new high for the stock this week. It turned traders bullish and there was one sale of 50,000 shares of Montgomery Ward for a repainted golf ball, a barrel of cider, six cigars and an old bureau said to have once been owned by Admiral Dewey. A willingness to go that high for the issue is taken by market experts as indicating that the buying was by insiders who are in possession of good news concerning earnings.

• • • •

Around noon the market turned a little dull, possibly due to the fact that all four active traders went to lunch at Joe's drug store, but at 1:30 there was a buzz of activity when there was lively bidding for General Motors. One trader, said to be a big Western bull, offered a trout rod, a bag of marbles, two floor lamps and a collection of mounted butterflies for 10,000 shares. Interests thought to be close to John Raskob offered a pair of binoculars, a hair sofa of early colonial design and a season pass on a roller coaster for the same number of shares. Raskob finally got them by agreeing to throw in a pair of pliers, an old violin and six ears of sweet corn.

• • • •

New York Central was stronger, at one time commanding a dozen cinnamon buns per share. The oils were in good demand, a Boston man causing a sharp run up in Standard of New Jersey with a bid of a peck of potatoes and eighteen back numbers of World's Work for 1,000 shares.

• • • •

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND shares of International Nickel found a new high at one package of chewing tobacco per share. Radio was bought in volume following the entrance of a big Wall street banker into the market with an offer of a yachting cap, one cup custard, five pairs of golf sox, a slide trombone owned by his grandfather and six horse-car tickets for all the outstanding common.

• • • •

There was considerable excitement around 2 p. m. when three well-known speculators started bidding for Case Threshing. Finally 100,000 shares went to a St. Louis man for a bird dog and an electric cigarette lighter. Case is always a spectacular actor.

• • • •

American Metal hit a high for the year when 300,000 shares went to a well known financier for a box of Swedish matches and an old program of "Floradora."

• • • •

There was a bid of four Belgian hares and an old snuff box for 50,000 shares of Vanadium, but nobody could recall the stock. The bidder finally took 25,000 shares of Sears-Roebuck, 20,000 shares of Studebaker and a ham sandwich (on rye). After a little dullness around 2:15, there was a sharp flurry when the floormen for two leading financial houses shook dice for the outstanding supply of seven co-called blue chip securities.

• • • •

• • • •

MARLENE DIETRICH, movie star, has been sued for alienation of affections. If the plaintiff wants to win a verdict she had better get a court order making Marlene's appearance a dress affair.

• • • •

A mortgage of $65,000,000 was placed the other day on Radio City in New York. If it ever becomes necessary to call it, the calling will probably be done over a national network by Graham McNamee, Rudy Vallee and Morton Downey.

• • • •

Oh, Mr. Edison, this is
The season of the year
When I—kerchoo!—turn tearfully
And yearn so much to hear
How go those tests of yours, oh, great
And scientific god,
To turn—kerchoo!—to rubber all
The blank blank goldenrod?

The decision to discard the new golf ball eliminates all except three or four thousand details that cramp the style of the American golfer.

CLERIC SEES JESUS AS HOPE OF WORLD IN ENDING POVERTY

Dr. J. R. Sizoo Returns to Pulpit After Tour of 15,000 Miles.

POINTS TO FIRST TALK OF JOHN THE BAPTIST

Says There Is More Hate in Europe Today Than at Any Time Since War.

"The Road Back" was the topic of a sermon delivered yesterday morning in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church by Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo. The service marked the return of Dr. Sizoo from a 15,000-mile trip which carried him throughout Central Europe and the Eastern United States. He had been gone since early in June.

Dr. Sizoo pointed out the message of the pulpit today throughout the world. In studying this message the pastor considered the theme of the first sermon preached by John the Baptist, "Behold I am of God who taketh away the sins of the world." It was shown that a speaker must know of the surrounding world from which he draws his material. He must have a working knowledge of the times and must see the world.

John filled these qualifications, having an accurate insight into the world of his day, Dr. Sizoo said in outlining the pertinent things that John saw.

"First of all he saw hate. The constant trouble between the Romans, the Jews, the Greeks and the Samaritans proved to him that hate was one of the leading characteristics of the people.

Men Without Work.

"Secondly, he saw poverty. On all sides men were without work, idling on the street corner or in the market place.

"In the third place he saw a world of lost confidence. The Greeks were losing faith in their god. The Hebrews and the Romans alike also were losing faith in theirs.

"Faced with this situation, John chose to teach the pure truth."

Analyzing the era in which John taught and the present time, the preacher noted the striking resemblances of the two widely separated periods.

Dr. Sizoo told of some striking examples of national hate, which had come to attention on his recent trip. He said he was of the opinion that there was more hate in Europe at the present time than at any period since the war.

In giving one-word characterizations of the countries which he visited on his recent trip, Dr. Sizoo said, "In Italy we have fear, in France, victorious power; in England, desperate anxiety; in Austria, utter indifference; in Hungary, resentment; in Czechoslovakia, boldness, and in Germany, despair.

Apparent on All Sides.

"As in the day of John, poverty is apparent on all sides. Evidence has been produced to show that more than two-thirds of the world's population goes to bed hungry every night."

As an example of contemporary lost faith, Dr. Sizoo told of foreigners he had met expressing pessimism over the future of governments and investing what available funds they had in countries other than their own or storing them away out of circulation.

Carrying this thought into the realm of the church, he gave examples and told of the skepticism many people are displaying toward religion in general.

Referring to the words of his topic, "The Road Back," Dr. Sizoo pointed the task of true religion and how it can minister to the ills of the world. He said Jesus of Nazareth taught something higher than violence; that He showed the world the conquering power of a virile and active love.

"Although many men are not agreed as to just what characteristics Jesus displayed on certain occasions, they are agreed that he was a compassioned teacher, and with the return of compassion there will be a new day.

Take Jesus Seriously.

"Do you think 6,000,000 men would be employed in American factories today; that forts would be loaded with powder; that armies would face one another across national borders; that two-thirds of the world would be going to bed hungry tonight, if we took Jesus of Nazareth seriously and faced the cross of life? If we faced life by the stand of Jesus you know and I know that this thing called political discussion, economic wrong, financial disaster would not engulf the world. The world must trace again the road back to life. Even He had his Calvary. I believe that the eyes of the world are turned toward that gospel."

The church quartet under direction of Paul W. Fishbaugh, and composed of Mrs. Paul W. Fishbaugh, soprano; Miss Ruth Kobbe, contralto; Arthur C. Gorbach, bass, and Bernard G. Spille, tenor, rendered Gounod's "Jerusalem."

The entire program was broadcast over Station WOL.

Propeller Breaks Fingers of Flier

Kensington Reserve Pilot Hurt in Accident at Hybla Valley Port.

His hand struck by the whirling propeller of an airplane when his foot slipped in the mud as he attempted to start the machine at the Hybla Valley airport yesterday afternoon, Lieut. William C. Buell, United States Army Air Corps Reserve, suffered two broken fingers.

Lieut. Buell, who lives in Kensington, Md., is an instructor in the District of Columbia Air Legion. Preparing to take a student flier aloft, he was attempting to crank one of the legion's planes when the accident occurred.

Taken first to the Alexandria, Va., hospital for first aid, Lieut. Buell was later removed to Walter Reed Hospital.

BACK IN PULPIT

DR. JOSEPH R. SIZOO,
pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, who returned to his pulpit yesterday from a 15,000-mile trip through Europe and the United States.

MAN SEEN LACKING IN SENSE OF TIME

Minister Calls Humanists and Fundamentalists Both in Error.

Because fundamentalism and humanism deny the implication of friendship between God and man, both conceptions of the relation between the divine and the human have failed, said the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy in a sermon yesterday morning at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. His subject was "Man as a Friend of God."

"The humanist derides the idea that man is a son of God, and has thus prevented us from being friends of God," said Mr. Clinchy. "The fundamentalist claims that the only relationship we can have with God is that of an obedient, adolscent child; that we are forever immature children of a mature God.

"A philosophy which destroys our friendship with God because it makes Him a weakling or nonexistent, and a philosophy which also destroys that friendship by picturing God as an autocratic parent and a sentimental nurse girl can never serve mankind's greatest need.

"No vague relationship, no flabby relationship, will satisfy the kind of men and women, or the kind of a God who are living in these modern times. Man has a mutual responsibility with God in life. From this conception of friendship with God we also have an understanding of God's relation to time.

"The present predicament of the world is due to the lack of a sense of dealing with time, rather than the immediate present. Any decision made regarding humanity that is made in the concept of one period or one generation is bound to bring about disaster. No problem of man can be fully solved until it comprehends God's relation to time. The only hope we have in this world is not that men will fight for what they want, but that men will want to be drawn to the cross on Calvary, and will plead to share its spirit and power."

Traffic on Canal Road Is Blocked

Sewer Construction Work Involves Detour for About 2 Miles.

Traffic along Canal road, which for more than 10 years has been rerouted at intervals while sewer construction operations were in progress, must continue to take a detour of 2.6 miles through Conduit road while a two-mile portion of the sewer is laid on a narrow stretch near Nebraska avenue northwest.

The rerouting will be in effect 24 hours a day. It will continue until October 20. Sanitary Engineer J. B. Gordon, explaining the long and cumbersome operation, pointed out that the need for the sewer is not pressing, so the work has proceeded leisurely so as not to tie up too much of the department's funds and men needed on more urgent jobs.

The sewer is being hewn through a layer of solid rock. When completed it will intercept sewage in the Potomac Valley north of Canal road, including Chevy Chase and Glen Echo, Md. This sewage now pours into the Potomac River.

Interview With Curtis "Scoop" for Boy Scouts

The Canteen, Boy Scout newspaper published by Troop 89, of 1717 B street southwest, boasts a "scoop" in its September issue, which carries an exclusive interview with Vice President Curtis.

The interview was obtained and written by Scout Willard Smith, of Troop 81. Other features of the issue include a cover design drawn by Scout Robert Kirby, a stamp department, troop news, coming events, athletic news, lost and found department and "swap ads." The paper is of twelve pages.

SCHOOLS IN DISTRICT TO OPEN TODAY WITH RECORD ATTENDANCE

Last Year's Enrollment of 78,059 Is Expected to Be Surpassed.

MANY TEACHERS BEGIN WITH NEW ASSIGNMENTS

Miss Dean and Dr. Haworth Among Those Changed From Old Duties.

District public schools will open their doors this morning for the 1931-1932 scholastic year. With hundreds of students having returned to the city during the past week, principals and faculties are prepared for a record enrollment during the opening week.

The attendance figure today, however, will not be of much significance as it is Yom Kippur, most sacred of Jewish holidays.

Many new children will pay their first visit to classes and will be greeted by several teachers who are serving in their new capacities for the first time.

Miss Mildred Dean, of Central High School Latin department, becomes the new head of the Latin department of the District high schools. Miss Dean succeeds Miss Mabel Hawes, who was retired on September 1. The new head has been a teacher in the school system here since 1900. She is a graduate of Goucher College and has written numerous Latin plays and articles on the teaching of Latin, together with the prose composition exercises which are used at the present time in the District schools.

New Department Created.

A new department of science has been created and will be directed by Dr. Ellis Haworth, former physics teacher at Eastern High School. The new division was formed by a consolidation of the department of biology and chemistry and the department of physics.

Dr. Julia Hahn, formerly of the public schools of San Francisco, will become new supervising principal of the Third District, succeeding Miss Janet McWilliams, who retires.

Lester C. Walters becomes the new principal of the Powell Junior High, succeeding Miss Bertie Backus, who had been transferred as principal of the Alice Deal Junior High School.

Mrs. Agnes I. Kinnera becomes the new principal of the Eliot Junior High. She formerly held that position at Columbia Junior High.

When classes are started there will be two teachers' colleges in operation, eight senior high schools, sixteen junior high schools, four vocational schools, 137 elementary schools and five special elementary schools, making a total of 172, of which 56 serve colored students.

78,059 Average Last Year.

The average enrollment for 1930-1931 was 78,059 pupils, of which 26,774 pupils were colored. Of these 52,292 were enrolled in elementary schools, 13,517 in the senior high schools, 10,749 in the junior high schools, 932 in the vocational schools and 586 in normal schools.

The supervisory staff of the District schools for the year follows: Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent; Jere J. Crane, first assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs; Henry W. Draper, supervising principal of the first division; Dr. Julia Hahn, supervising principal of the third division; Selden M. Ely, supervising principal of the fifth division; Mrs. Florence H. Rogers, supervising principal of the sixth division; Miss Elizabeth A. Hummer, supervising principal of the seventh division; E. J. Lockwood, director of evening and summer schools; Col. W. M. Cragie, professor of military science and tactics; Dr. E. C. Higbie, president of Wilson Teachers College.

Allan Davis, principal of Business High; Dr. H. A. Smith, principal of Central High; Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High; F. C. Daniel, principal of McKinley High; Dr. E. S. Newton, principal of Western High; Miss Bertie Backus, principal of the Deal Junior High; Mrs. A. I. Kinnear, principal of the Eliot Junior High; F. A. Woodward, principal of Gordon Junior High; Dr. H. E. Warner, principal of the Hine Junior High; R. W. Strawbridge, principal of the Jefferson Junior High; C. W. Holmes, principal of the Langley Junior High; H. P. Stafford, principal of the Macfarland Junior High; L. J. Cantrell, principal of the Paul Junior High; L. T. Walker, principal of the Powell Junior High; C. J. Schwartz, principal of the Stuart Junior High.

Others Are Listed.

Mrs. M. H. Group, chief examiner, divisions 1 to 9.

Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education.

R. W. Holt, chief accountant, office of finance and accounting.

R. S. Anderson, chief statistician.

H. F. McQueeney, superintendent of custodians, department of buildings and grounds.

G. C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent in charge of colored schools.

Bargeron to Be Guest At Ad Club Luncheon

The Advertising Club of Washington, planning a year of unusual activity, will hold the first luncheon meeting of its fall season tomorrow in the National Press Club Auditorium, Howard W. Berry, president of the club, announced yesterday.

Carlisle Bargeron, Washington newspaper man, will be the speaker. His subject will be: "The Listening Post Looks at the Merry-Go-Round."

$150 Clothing Stolen in Store.

Clothing valued at $150 was yesterday reported stolen from a haberdashery at 429 Eighth street southeast. Harry Aplestine told police that when he entered the store yesterday morning he found the side door broken open and a cap and jimmy on the floor.

Child, Five, Is Near Death After Falling From Auto

Five-year-old Joseph Bozzi was fighting for his life at Casualty Hospital last night after toppling from the lap of his father, Frank Bozzi, of 651 I street southeast, when an automobile door gave way near Hughesville, Md.

Physicians said the child's condition was grave, but that if he lived for 24 hours he would have a fair chance of recovery.

The accident happened while the parents of Joseph were on their way to Benedict, Md., for a day's outing, as guests of Mrs. Bozzi's brother, Thomas Thornton. Mr. Thornton was driving the car and the child was seated in his father's lap.

As the car neared Hughesville, Mr Bozzi noticed that Joseph's sweater had been caught in the door of the car. He reached over to unfasten the door, he said, and the wind tore it from his grasp. Before Mr. Bozzi could recover his balance, the child fell from his lap, striking his head on the roadway.

Joseph was hurried to the hospital and physicians found he had suffered a fractured skull and severe lacerations. His chances for recovery are believed to be small.
